Heredity and Genius
Magic Hangs On Music Soothes Gandhi
Why Drag In Guilt?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

TWO GRANDSONS of the late Marshal Foch, commander of the Allies, will enter St. Cyr, French military school, this fall. Believers of inherited ability will watch these young men, hoping, however, that there will be no war to let them show how much of their grandfather's ability they inherited.

Military genius rarely, if ever, is inherited. Philip, father of Alexander, and the father of Frederick the Great were not military geniuses. Caesar stood alone in his line.

The Foch grandsons have this in their favor: They appear to be sons of Foch's DAUGHTERS. A man's ability is transmitted through his girls, not through his sons, according to Galton, authority on heredity and genius.

The old days of magic have ALMOST, not quite, gone. We no longer make a wax image of our enemy, stick a pin in it every day, and expect the enemy to die at the end of so many days. But, among the ignorant superstitious, magicians still practice. Justice Ewing, of Edmonton, Alberta, issues an injunction to protect a 16-year-old girl, Paulion Chizen, accused of having "the evil eye."

In Harlem, New York city, colored and white alleged practitioners of "black magic" are locked up for telling fortunes intended to cure the sick.

In Finland four are sent to jail for exhuming and mutilating corpses in the course of "black magic" operations. They said they acted "under instructions from the spirit world."

They will act, for a few years, under instructions of Helsingfors jailers.

Britain forbids Mahatma Gandhi to talk with Indian political leaders, according to reports from Poona. This seems to change the wise British rule, applied in far away colonies or in Hyde Park, "Let them talk all they like, as long as they don't DO anything." Talk is a safety valve.

Fathers, mothers, doctors, and especially Christian Scientists, will learn with interest that Gandhi, building up strength after a dangerous fast, relies largely on "sweet music." Nervousness is injurious. Mind controls nerves. Music controls the mind. Man is at least 50 per cent mind, and ought to be 99 per cent.

The late Dr. Leven, in charge of the Rothschild Hospital for Children in Paris, gave orders that children in delicate health be awakened with soft music.

The Nazis, Germany's imitation Fascists, demand that the Allies "retract the war guilt lie," accusing Germany of starting the war.

Why quarrel about who started it? Every country involved would have started it, had it chosen to do so.

It is hard to discourage Mussolini. He is sending to us now a gigantic liner, The Rex, built in the worst of the depression, and has just launched the Oceanic, another huge liner, to run between Italy and South America.

We are supposed to be richer than Mussolini, but nobody here would think of building newer and bigger steamships.

Also, in case it should interest you, Germany's dirigible, Graf-Zeppelin, arrived at Pernambuco, Brazil, yesterday, on one of its regular flights between Germany and South America.

Our government seems afraid even to give American enterprise permission to attempt a transatlantic dirigible with the usual mail-carrying privilege.

A British editor in India is shot by home-made Indian bandits adopting, partly, American methods. They drove their car alongside that of the editor, shot him with ordinary pistols, without hurting him much. They knelt on the floor of the car.

If the Hindus go a step farther in copying our civilization, using machine guns and "pineapples," gangster name for explosive bombs, Britain's task may become more difficult.

Mr. Thomas Hall Shastid writes from Duluth, Minn.: "The American people have a Constitutional right to vote on any proposal to make war outside our boundaries or to lend our money governmentally to foreign governments." He thinks that should be put into the Constitution. It ought not to be necessary to put it into the Constitution, and it would not be necessary if the voters paid attention to their government.

Gentlemen in Washington, flattered by foreign ambassadors, entertained at Buckingham Palace or elsewhere, should not be allowed to send billions of American dollars, or millions of American men across the ocean, without the people's explicit approval. But common sense should attend to that, without another amendment.

Machine Guns' Bullets Halt $50,000 Rum Ship

Under a machine gun barrage, Coast Guards captured the 65-foot rum boat, Madame X, with five men and $50,000 worth of liquor, in Vineyard Sound today, marking another advance in the government drive against New England activities of a $10,000,000 New York syndicate.

One of the men arrested is a leader of the bootleg trade in this section, according to federal officials. He had a large sum of money, all in small bills, and several diamond rings.

A Coast Guard picket boat, No. 2296, out of Woods Hole, sighted the Madame X running without lights off Mishyan Point, and after a brief pursuit fired across the bow of the speed boat.

SHOTS CAUSE SURRENDER

The Madame X hove to and her lights were snapped on. But as the patrol boat drew alongside the crew evidently changed their minds, for the lights were turned off again and the boat shot away toward the mouth of Buzzards bay.

The patrol boat, in charge of

CHILDREN PLEAD FOR 'TWO-GUN'

Quincy school children want Patrolman James H. (Two-Gun) Baker back on his motorcycle and they plan to parade late today in protest against his recent transfer to night cruising in an automobile.

Some 100 pupils of the six grades of grammar school, whose safety Baker guarded zealously in his war on speeders, made arrangements to march in Hancock st.

Edith and Dorothea Gardner, aged 11 and 12 respectively, of Myrtle st., are leaders of the movement, which has the sponsorship of many parents.

Placards asking Baker's transfer back to day motorcycle patrol will be used.

Six school children were killed by autos before "Two-Gun" began pursuing speeders and none during the 10 years he kept traffic moving within the speed limit.

O. HENRY PLOT GETS HIM JAIL

Utilizing the basic plot of one of O. Henry's famous stories, Joseph Guillett, 54, no home, kicked in the cellar window of a home in Washington st., Newton, last night, when he saw a man he believed to be a policeman approaching.

He had $5 but he didn't want the bread line; he wanted jail and the three square meals of jail.

Unfortunately for those who insure plate glass, the person Guillett saw approaching was a motorman, not a policeman, and when his first transgression went unheeded he tossed a rock through the show window of a vacant store at West Elm and Washington sts.

"Rock bottom prices," said an old sign in the window, and Guillette rocked the "rock," dead center.

He had beter luck, because Patrolman James Corcoran, happening by, arrested him for malicious destruction of property, and in Newton court today Judge Bacon accommodated with a two-months' sentence.

Unlike O. Henry's hero, who finally got arrested when he didn't want to, Guillett was tickled pink.

POMEROY, OLD LIFER, DEAD

PASSING ENDS 56 YEARS IN PRISON

Jesse Pomeroy, who spent 56 years of his life in prison for a fiendish crime, died last night in the State Farm in Bridgewater, at the age of 70.

He was Massachusetts' most notorious convict and the nation's oldest "lifer."

Forty of the years he served as an outcast from society were in dreadful solitary confinement in the State Prison in Charlestown.

Alone, without social intercourse with his fellow-men, without human contact except with his guard, he existed in semi-darkness on meagre fare and grew from youth to manhood and through the period of middle age.

HEART DISEASE CAUSE

In 1917 he was taken out of "solitary" and four years ago, in failing health, was transferred, against his wishes to the state farm.

His death was attributed to heart disease by Robert C. Sherman, superintendent at the farm. Death effected the release, which he had sought in vain for many years.

In the latter years of his servitude, after he had become known as a trusty and was writing verse for the prison paper under the nom-de-plume of "Grandpa," there was built up about Jesse Harding Pomeroy the glamour which sometimes comes in old age to men—even men, such as he, who have committed atrocious crimes.

Men and women of prominence worked to bring about his freedom, yet time could never wholly erase from the public mind the picture of two children brutally tortured and slain and he was never very close to going free.

PERVERTED MIND

Pomeroy had, in youth, a perverted mind. Constant reading—there was nothing else he could do—improved it and gave him a fair measure of education. But psychiatrists were divided as to whether self-education had erased perversion.

In his latter years he was a grouchy and petulant old man, and stubborn and not good to look upon, withall he wrote uplifting verse and articles for "The Mentor."

LEFT ALL TO ALTAR BOY

Twelve years ago, Pomeroy made a will, naming Judge Charles S. Sullivan of Charlestown district court as executor, and as sole beneficiary, "my little friend William M. Finn"—then an altar boy serving under Rev. Michael J. Murphy in the prison. Pomeroy also asked that his body be cremated.

Judge Sullivan, who left today on a trip, turned the matter over to Thomas F. Fitzpatrick who will attempt to locate Finn and carry out the lifer's request.

When the will was made, Pomeroy had about $2000 saved up but he contributed to charities and according to reports from Bridgewater today he had, when he died, an estate consisting of 95 cents.

Governor Charges Thayer Outrage Is Peril to the State; Lays It to Sacco Friends

Total rewards of $50,000, half by order of his executive council and half by public subscription, were asked by Gov. Joseph B. Ely today for the arrest of those connected with the bombing of Judge Webster Thayer's home in Worcester Tuesday morning.

Gov. Ely, who made a personal inspection of the wrecked Thayer home a few hours after the blast, said at the time that he considered the bombing a distinct gesture at the courts of Massachusetts.

It was on this idea that he suggested today the public subscription be raised.

RECORD STATE REWARD

His request of the executive council is one of the largest ever made with a view to apprehension of criminals.

The bombing of the Sacco-Vanzetti justice's home, however, has been definitely laid to sympathizers of the two radicals by investigators of federal branches, the state and city of Worcester.

The action of Gov. Ely followed a conference with Frederic Snyder, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Gov. Ely was promised the full support of that organization and was told that other organizations would readily aid in raising the public subscription.

BATTLE CRY OF VICTORY

MARY CURLEY GEORGE CURLEY THE MAYOR

Mayor Curley united with his family at the Huntington ave. station on his return from his 10,000-mile speaking tour for Governor Franklin Roosevelt. The mayor, in excellent health and spirits, brought home with him the news that the entire country has turned to Gov. Roosevelt and he predicted a sweeping Democratic victory on November 8. He is shown here with hai daughter, Mary, and one of his sons, George. (Staff photo.)

Thousands in Welcome to Mayor Curley

The American people believe the time has come to elect a real American, Franklin D. Roosevelt, as President of the United States, Mayor Curley, returning from a 10,000-mile trip in behalf of the New York Governor, told thousands who gathered at the Huntington ave. station to give him a royal welcome home today.

The first thought of the mayor was of his children as he alighted from the Western express, and in a voice that trembled with emotion said as he embraced them:

"It's wonderful to be home and see you all again."

The mayor looked tired, but his eyes lighted up when he saw the crowd, estimated variously from 6000 to 10,000, who gave him a tumultuous greeting.

6000 AT BANDSTAND

Every civic and fraternal organization was represented in the enthusiastic gathering. Escorted by police, the mayor made his way to the grandstand outside the station where his reception home took place.

Theodore A. Glynn, chairman of the Street Commission, introduced City Councillor Edward M. Gallagher, who has been acting mayor in Curley's absence, who made an address of welcome.

The mayor was hailed by "as a tower of strength to the Democratic party," in the speech of welcome by Acting Mayor Gallagher.

"Boston takes a justifiable pride in you, Mr. Mayor," he said, "returning as you do with your message of victory."

Glynn told the mayor that at least 6000 persons had gathered at Parkman bandstand on the Common, and were disappointed because he had changed the original plans for a reception there.

Gallagher's speech was followed by musical selections by the Firemen's Band, and the band from the House of the Angel Guardian.

MAYOR BANS PARADE

Mayor Curley was accompanied here from Worcester by a delegation of Boston Democrats, including Chairman Glynn, Cornelius Reardon, ex-Councillor James Purcell and Councillor Thomas Green.

There was no parade, the mayor having expressly forbidden it because he felt it might interfere with the business of the city.

Stations WNAC and WBZ carried the program to all New England over the air.

After his speech, Mayor Curley was escorted to his car by police, amid another ovation, and driven to his Jamaicaway home, followed by an auto parade.

DRY LEADERS THREATEN TO BOLT PLANK ON REPEAL

Steam Roller of the Republicans Flattens the Opposition to Pay for Vets

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

The Republican steam-roller, guided by Massachusetts G. O. P. leaders, flattened the bonus issue and the "drys" today as the state convention at Symphony Hall adopted the platform exactly as presented by the resolutions committee, despite a strong undercurrent of opposition.

There was no doubt that the delegates wanted a plank putting the Republican party on record against immediate cash payment of the bonus but a scheduled fight on this issue was called off and the convention followed the leaders down the road of evasion and political expediency.

DRY REVOLT LOOMS

On the Prohibition issue, prominent "drys" solemnly served notice on the floor of the convention that they could not support the repeal plank in the state platform, and their remarks drew applause from a large portion of the gathering.

The "drys" presented no plank, however, and there was no voting on any individual planks, the platform being put to the delegates as a whole and thus adopted.

When the platform was formally placed before them for a vote, there were scattered loud nos, but the vote in favor was overwhelming.

Failure of "drys to make a more vigorous fight against the repeal plank, despite their evident dissatisfaction, led to reports that promi-

ANALYSIS SHOWS ROOSEVELT VICTORY CERTAIN

NOMINEE NEEDS ONLY 25 MORE VOTES TO WIN

G. O. P. Concedes Him 154 Electoral Ballots; No Difficulty in Picking Up Majority

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

New York, Sept. 30 (US)—The Democratic task of electing the Roosevelt-Garner ticket has been made less difficult by one advantage conceded by the most optimistic Republican leaders.

For the first time since 1916 the Democratic presidential ticket will enter the final bout Nov. 8 with 154 of the 531 electoral votes. These votes will be provided by 14 states below the Potomac and east of the Mississippi.

To obtain the necessary majority of these 531 electoral votes (266) Roosevelt and Garner must obtain only 112 votes in the 34 remaining states.

STATES NOT DISPUTED

In the tabulation of the votes certain to be cast for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket, only those states which are not disputed by the Republicans are included.

These states and the electoral vote of each are as follows:

Alabama	11	Louisiana	10
Arkansas	9	Oklahoma	10
Florida	7	S. Carolina	8
Georgia	12	Tennessee	11
Kentucky	11	Texas	23
Mississippi	10	Virgina	11
N. Carolina	13	West Virginia	8

In no presidential contest since 1916 has the Democratic ticket been assured of so great an advantage.

Four years ago, Alfred E. Smith carried only six of the states named above: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina.

DEMOCRATS FAVORED

Other states at this time almost certain to award their electoral votes to the Roosevelt-Garner ticket are:

Arizona	3	Iowa	11
Colorado	6	Kansas	9
Delaware	3	Missouri	15
Indiana	14	Wisconsin	12

The 87 votes accounted for just above make the probable Democratic total 241, or 25 votes less than a majority.

Indications are that comparatively little difficulty will be found in obtaining these 25 votes from the 26 states which have not been listed above.

The most important states having blocks of electoral votes are not included. These states are New York (47), Pennsylvania (36), Ohio (26), California (22), Michigan (19), Massachusetts (17) and New Jersey (16).

N. E. NOT INCLUDED

Not a New England State is included in the list on which the reasonably safe estimate is based.

There also have been excluded several of the middle Western, Mountain and Pacific Coast states.

It is now evident that the Roosevelt-Garner ticket can win without the electoral votes of a single North and Middle Atlantic coast state and some of the more important Middle Western states, like Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, North and South Dakota.

RECEIVERS TAKE INSULL LINE

Chicago, Sept. 30 (INS)—The Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Electric railroad, an Insull subsidiary, went into receivership today.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson appointed as receivers Britton I. Budd, president of the railroad, and Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works here.

The receivership petition was filed by the American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company, which has a claim of $3,897.98 against the railroad line. Attorneys for the railroad filed consent to the petition. It was also set forth that the road owes other creditors and will be unable to meet taxes and interest payments of approximately $285,000 due tomorrow.

Memory of Sweden's 'Lion' to Be Honored

People of Swedish extraction throughout the country are looking forward to a memorial service in Trinity Church on Nov. 6, to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the death of Gustavus Adolphus, "Sweden's Lion of the North."

Bishop Sherrill and Prof. E. T. Erickson of Upsala College will speak. The affair is under the direction of a committee headed by Dr. A. W. Sundeloff of St. Angarii church, Roxbury.

Pomeroy Sentenced When 14 for Atrocious Crimes

The severity of the punishment meted out to Jesse Pomeroy when a child, as well as the atrocities conceived in a warped brain, made his case notorious and one that has been a subject of discussion and disagreement since he was sentenced.

His career of crime began at the age of 13. Day after day in Chelsea and South Boston, children four and five years of age were found tied to street poles or strapped to boards, stripped of clothing and suffering from cuts and bruises.

ALL TOLD SAME STORY

They all told the same story—an older boy had attacked them, tied them up, and beaten them with sticks and ropes.

Police went around to all the schools with the victims and in one school a lad named Joseph Kennedy pointed to Pomeroy:

"He did it. I know him by his eye," he said.

Pomeroy was convicted of these assaults, none of which was fatal, and served 17 months in reform school. Within six months after his release he committed two frightful murders.

Both of his victims were little children. The body of one, four-year-old Horace Millen, was found on the clam flats in South Boston, naked and mutilated. That of the other, Kittie Curran, a pretty little South Boston girl of nine, was dug from the ashes in the cellar of Pomeroy's home.

MANY ESCAPE ATTEMPTS

Pomeroy was tried and convicted for the murder of the Millen boy, and despite his years he was sentenced to death. Gov. Gaston, who opposed capital punishment, refused to sign the death warrant, and Gov. Rice, his successor, commuted the sentence to solitary confinement with hard labor for life.

In Charlestown he was given little hard labor because he always managed to contrive tools and use them in attempts to escape. During his years of solitary confinement he made at least a dozen attempts to escape, none being successful.

He fashioned saws of any bit of metal he could get his hands on; he made drills and knives and in one attempt he tunnelled to within a few inches of freedom. Once he burned himself severely when he rigged a conductor from a gas jet in the hope of burning his way out of his cell.

CAT FOILS ESCAPE.

Freedom was a mad obsession with him, as well it might be with a man who was more than two-score years alone. In 1912 he sawed through three cell bars, crept through the hole and was dashing along the prison corridor when the prison cat leaped at him.

Many believe he had tortured the cat. If that was so, the cat repaid him, for its activities attracted the attention of a guard who overpowered the lifer.

During the five years preceding his removal from solitary confinement Pomeroy apparently despaired of escape and devoted his time to preparation for a legal fight for freedom.

He prepared several pleas for pardon and gained some knowledge of five languages and studied on laws affecting his own case. He thought he found loopholes several times but there was always the case of little Kitty Curran, for whose murder he never was tried, standing between him and liberty.

PROTESTED TRANSFER

Despite solitary (and many said solitary could not drive him mad because he already was mad) he was in good physical condition and did not show any signs of premature age.

In 1929, after many rebuffs, his hope for freedom had dwindled and on August 1 of that year he was transferred to the Bridgewater state farm. If officials hoped by this gesture to pacify him they were soon rudely disillusioned, because Pomeroy's ill temper increased and he demanded to be returned to Charlestown to be with his old prison cronies.

His transfer, made by automobile, afforded him the first glimpse of civilization's modern inventions of which he had only read. They did not impress him greatly. He asked few questions of the guards who accompanied him.

Once, 49 years before, he had walked in a chain gang from Charlestown to Concord while repairs were being made on the State Prison.

LAST ATTEMPT

In Bridgewater, in June of 1930, he made a half-hearted attempt to escape, fashioning crude tools which he hid with a bundle of clothing and a rope. Some officials said he just wanted publicity, that he didn't want to get away, that freedom would kill him.

That may have been true; he always liked publicity. He would always talk to newspapermen about anything under the sun except his crimes.

Barry Gave Pledge Not to Aid Lifer

Former Lieut.-Gov. Edward P. Barry, once a schoolmate of Jesse Pomeroy in South Boston, was a member of the Governor's Council that voted to free him from solitary confinement. He did so only after making a solemn pledge to John Curran, brother of the little girl Pomeroy murdered, that the favor would not be a step towards Pomeroy's freedom. Barry kept his promise and always thereafter was active in opposition to the lifer's frequent attempts to get a pardon.

U. S. FLEET TO REMAIN IN PACIFIC

Decision Comes on Eve of the League of Nations Report on Japanese Situation

Washington, Sept. 30 (INS)—On the eve of the publication of the League of Nations' report on Japan's military invasion of Manchuria, the navy department today announced the United States scouting force will remain in Pacific waters for another year.

The scouting force comprises some of the finest fighting ships in the navy. Normally, its home base is in the Atlantic. It was sent to the Pacific last January to take part in fleet maneuvres at the time the Sino-Japanese crisis was at its height.

Announcement of the decision to keep the fleet in the Pacific was made by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations. He said:

"It is the present intention of the navy department to keep the scouting force in the Pacific until after the next fleet concentration, which take place next winter.

"This assemblage of the two forces, the scouting force and the battle force, permits of a greater degree of fleet training than is possible during the somewhat limited time of fleet concentration.

"Moreover, being assembled now it is more economical in the matter of oil expenditures for the fleet to operate in this manner than to be broken up.

Japan May Drop Plan to Protest U. S. Action

New York, Sept. 30 (INS)—Exclusive International News Service dispatches from Tokyo Sept. 23 reported that the Japanese government contemplated an informal request upon the United States to remove some of its warships from the Pacific to eliminate Japanese suspicions that America was preparing for war.

Vice-Admiral Nomura, who had planned a "good-will" mission to the United States, was to convey the request to naval authorities at Washington.

Strong opposition to the proposal developed among Japanese militarists and the latest news from Tokyo was that Nomura's trip probably would be cancelled.

$75,000 Idle Gift Is Profit or Loss

Washington, Sept. 30 (INS)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today held that a contribution of $75,000 to the emergency unemployment relief fund of New York City by the New York Telephone Co. was not a proper charge to operating expenses, but should have been charged to profit and loss.

The commission said that while its finding was confined to the particular item in question, it follows from the finding that only such contributions for charitable or social or community welfare purposes are properly chargeable to operating expenses as can be shown to have a direct or intimate relation to the protection of the property of the company or the development of its business or the welfare of its employes.

ROOSEVELT IN MILWAUKEE FOR PARADE

Democratic Presidential Nominee Sure to Win Wisconsin, Say Leaders

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

In Wisconsin with Governor Roosevelt, Sept. 30 (INS)—From the grain and cattle belt Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt carried his campaign for the presidency into Wisconsin today.

Gov. Roosevelt entered the state today fresh from his continuous appeal to the Progressives and Independents of the West to support his candidacy.

POWER IS BIG ISSUE

In this connection, the power issue has played an important part. It was the point stressed by Sen. Norris in Nebraska in explaining why he had bolted President Hoover and was supporting Gov. Roosevelt this year. And the power issue is important in Wisconsin, too.

Gov. Roosevelt faced a long program today in Milwaukee. At 1 p. m. he will be taken on a parade of the city, then to Eagles Hall for an informal speech. Later he will hold a public reception, confer with state leaders, and leave at 7 p. m. for Chicago.

All of tomorrow will be spent in Chicago, where he will make several speeches.

Forty thousand persons jammed in the ball park at Sioux City, Ia., yesterday, heard and applauded a slashing attack by Roosevelt on the Republican tariff and Hoover's lack of leadership.

SPEECH ON TARIFF

Roosevelt declared Republican efforts to explain their "mismanagement o fthis country by blaming the foreign nations for their own economic blundering was a classic impertinence."

Anticipating Republican answers to his "downward revision" pledge, Roosevelt declared rates would not be reduced below the point of a genuine competitive tariff equalizing the cost of production, and added:

REASSURES LABOR

"We should not lower them beyond that point.

"Such revision of the tariff will injure no legitimate interest.

"Labor need have no apprehensions concerning such a course—for labor knows by long and bitter experience that the highly protected interests pay not one penny higher wages than the non-protected industries, such as the automobile industry."

RUM SHIP IS CAPTURED

Bo'sun's Mate Alfred E Phalen, immediately opened fire into the rum cargo and the rum boat surrendered.

There were 1,000 cases aboard, and the arrested crew gave their names as Dennis McHugh, New Bedford; Joseph Williams, Joseph Costa and William Bronson, all of Newport, R. I., and Frank Savage Fall River.

High bail will be asked for Williams on suspicion that he is a "big shot," Customs Inspector William A. Fitzgerald of New Bedford said.

Coast Guards and customs men have been after the Madame X for months. The craft was seized two years ago, but no liquor was found aboard, and she had to be returned to her owners, although charges of running without lights were made.

Government agents were seeking today to link the big New York syndicate definitely and conclusively with a liquor ring centering its operations in Boston and Portland, Me.

Fifteen indictments, most of them secret, were returned last week, here, by the federal Grand Jury against Greater Boston men and the arrest of at least 30 is expected as government agents launch their coup to smash the New England rum ring.

RING BETRAYED

The astounding diversion of alcohol through illicit channels into Boston, as revealed exclusively in yesterday's Boston Evening American, conforms with information obtained in a six-month probe of the gigantic ring operating through New England.

From sources close to government investigators, it was learned today that the real tip on the New England liquor ring came from a person closely connected with its operations. The informant declined to state definitely that the tipster was Joe Bloom, who disappeared and, according to federal officials, was executed and buried at sea in a barrel of cement by his former associates.

Bloom's activities in the huge alcohol syndicate turned the federal investigation into this section.

While this probe was being carried on, another group of federal men were delving into the ramifications of a well-organized ring, which in reality consisted of three rings. Liquor was brought from Canada in mother ships and transferred off shore to speedboats, which ran it into the drops along the coast.

Trucks and planes were used to transport the liquor to the several distributing centers of the ring. In addition, the outfit maintained a short wave radio station for transmitting orders to the ships and distributing centers.

While the greater part of the liquor was landed in Maine, the ring was said to be operated by a group of wealthy Boston and Massachusetts men.

BASE IN MAINE

The main headquarters of the ring was at Boothbay Harbor, according to officials, and a $50,000 yacht and a hotel and summer estate there were used. The radio station was seized in Portland on Wednesday.

The alleged head of the ring, according to Seth May, Maine prohibition supervisor, is Thomas H. Kearns, of Raynham, former New England hotel operator, and well known in sporting circles. He was arrested early this week and is being held pending hearing on his removal to Maine jurisdiction.

The Portland radio station was located by the federal radio monitor station at Boston and federal men surrounded the place and intercepted messages until they gathered plenty of evidence before making their raid.

(The Masked Reporter in tomorrow's Boston Evening American will reveal the amazing facts of the inner workings of New England rum gangs in collusion with a $10,000,000 New York syndicate now under federal investigation. He will name the big importers of liquor and show how their activities help swell the profits of the nation's biggest liquor combine.)

UPHOLDS PLAN OF ROOSEVELT ON POWER

Governor Is Keynoter at Meeting of State Democratic Resolutions Committee

In anticipating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, Massachusetts should proceed to have laws drawn up for the manufacture, transportation and sale of liquor, Governor Ely declared today to the Democratic State resolutions committee at the Hotel Bellevue.

The Governor, keynote speaker at the meeting, a prelude to the Democratic State Convention tomorrow, recommended that the Resolutions Committee "adopt a platform similar to that adopted in Chicago, which was concise and complete."

BACKS ROOSEVELT PLAN

"On the power question," he said, "the platform should carry out the position of our candidate, Gov. Roosevelt, as enunciated on his western tour, with the reservation that regulation of domestic rates be retained by the State."

Gov. Ely recommended a revision of laws in regard to nomination papers, as a result of recent hearings before the Ballot Law Commission and elimination of candidates, and said he believed the Democratic party should take action on the "yellow dog" contracts which deny the right of a worker to join a union.

RAPS BALLOT CROOKS

"I think, in view of what has transpired before the Ballot Law Commission, that there should be a revision of laws in regard to nomination papers," he said. "All the energy that I possess has been used in an endeavor to show to the public the influences and methods adopted for the purpose of defeating the will of the people.

"Fortunately the proposition has been pretty thoroughly shown up. Unfortunately, and without my knowledge, it appears that certain members of our party participated in these methods. I place no blame because they were following a custom of years standing.

"Now that this whole thing has been shown up, I think it is up to the Democratic party to so modify the laws that it cannot

PIUS DECRIES FAILURE OF AGREEMENT

Attacks Government for Treatment of the Catholics Despite Pact of 1929

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Vatican City, Sept. 30 (INS)—Pope Pius issued a new encyclical titled "Acerba Animi," dealing with the Mexican-Catholic controversy, today.

The document, dated Sept. 29, but not made public until late this morning denounced the "persecution" of Catholics in Mexico, which it charged was carried on by the Mexican government after an agreement had been reached in 1929 permitting resumption in Mexico of free Catholic worship.

In the document Pope Pius recalled the events of recent years leading to the 1929 agreement and explained the reasons why the Holy See concluded the accord opening all Mexican churches to worship while the government agreed to mitigate application of the anti-religious laws.

WORSE PERSECUTIONS

But all hopes for settlement went smashing, he continued, when, instead of peace, new and worse persecutions were enacted against Catholics, all leading up to the governmental measure limiting the number of Catholic priests allowed in Mexico.

Turning from the history of the controversy, the Pope advised the Mexican clergy and worshippers as to what they should do under the circumstances.

He particularly affirmed the point, which he called a matter for discussion between Mexican Catholics, that "forced acceptance of vexations does not mean approval of these laws."

Non-co-operation with the persecuting government, the Pope declared, cannot be condemned.

OBEY LEADERS

The document concluded with an exhortation to the persecuted Catholics to obey their religious leaders and to remain united with them. In this way, the Pope said, they would confound their enemies.

The encyclical recommended cooperation wit hthe "Azione Cattolica"

DIVORCE ENDS WAR ROMANCE

A marriage, made on the eve of the husband's departure for France in 1917 to fight in the World War, ended today in Suffolk Probate court when Mrs. Alice V. Conroy, of Boston, was granted a divorce from Richard J. Conroy on grounds of cruelty and drunkenness.

Following Conroy's return from France, Judge McCoole was told, their married life was quiet until 1925, when the fighting urge returned to Conroy.

Continual battles and almost constant drinking, during which he inflicted black eyes and bruises on her, terminated in 1929 when she left him. Judge McCoole awarded her a decree nisi.

Hornets Force Airmen Into Forced Takeoff to New Abode

Even with a swell Hornet motor, Edward Rogers, field manager for American Airways at Boston Airport, and John D. Murphy, an aviator, have made forced landings, but today hornets impelled them into a forced flight in Malden.

The two fliers have lived for some months in a one and a half-story wooden house in Oliver st., Malden, where hornets have nested also for some time, but within the walls.

Last night, however, the hornets decided to move right into the house where it is warmer, and having decided, they did so.

Rogers and Murphy frantically called emergency crews from the Malden health department, called the fire department and called the police department, but although fumigation candles and other vile-smelling and choking substances were burned, the hornets still held possession.

Today the fliers gave up and moved to Roberts st., Malden.

Dispatches from Gibraltar quoted Walker as saying it was imperative that he reach New York before Oct. 6, as "my political career is at stake."

The Tribune said John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, had assurance of enough votes in the county committee Oct 6 convention to nominate Walker, provided former Gov. Alfred E. Smith does not oppose the choice."

LETTER NAMES 3 'BOMBERS'; PLOT ON CITY HALL BARED

Three known radicals, one of whom was already under suspicion, were named as the bombers of Judge Webster Thayer's home in a letter Worcester police were checking today.

Coupled with a postcard that threatened the bombing of Boston City Hall, it was one of two missives being traced in connection with the wrecking of the Worcester home of the Sacco-Vanzetti judge.

One Worcester letter, written in Italian, was described by Superintendent William P. Finneran as "the most tangible clue yet revealed."

iFnneran refused to name the radicals, or say from what city the letter came other than "from quite a distance."

"At first I believed it to be just another crank letter but after its translation I am convinced it is the most tangible clue received," Finneran said.

Immediately after the translation, two Worcester detectives left the city and Frank A. Chase, federal expert on radicals, could not be found in the city.

FULLER HOME WARNING

Finneran revealed the radical he already had under suspicion was named as the head of the Thayer bombing plot.

The Quincy postcard also intimated that the home of former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller might be harmed in addition to City Hall here. Guards were doubled there and at the home of A. Lawrence Lowell, Harvard president, and others connected with the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Captains in the various police divisions have been instructed to maintain a close watch at all public buildings.

The card, police believe, verifies fears that the bombing of the home of Judge Webster Thayer in Worcester was but the start of a reign of terror in which the homes of public officials and the centers of state and municipal government were to be bombed.

The postcard was mailed in Quincy about 9 o'clock last night and was intercepted by an alert postal clerk. Boston police were notified and Special Officer John J. Hancotte, of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, went to Quincy and returned the card to headquarters.

The card was addressed to Boston police headquarters and the message was headed "Police Dogs." It read in part:

"In a few days you will know all about ex-Gov. Fuller. City Hall is going to be bombed with all the bums in it."

Yesterday's promising clue, a report that 550 pounds of dynamite had been stolen in Gilbertville, 30 miles from Worcester, collapsed today, when investigators learned it had been "cribbed" by workmen there over a period of a month.

The thefts were attributed to a "bonus" system at the Metropolitan water works project there, whereby workmen were given extra pay if they could blast more rock than ordinarily figured for a certain quantity of dynamite.

To obtain the added yardage in blasting, workmen pilfered in order to add to the dynamite allotment charged to them, according to a report to investigators by Frank E. Winsor, superintendent of the project.

A "SWARTHY MYTH"

The story of a "swarthy stranger," who attempted to buy dynamite at the plant Monday night, was branded as a myth by the investigators.

State troopers today, however, continued the tedious task of checking up with every citizen on the roads out of Worcester for possible happenings that might pick up the trail of the bombers.

For the work, Lieut. William V. Shimkus of the Holden barracks, has been assigned troops from other barracks.

The troopers, working on a slogan "every citizen a detective," sought any information on untoward happenings for the 48 hours preceding the bombing of Judge Thayer's home Tuesday morning.

A decision of investigators to round up members of radical organizations was characterized as "an effort to destroy the working class" in a statement today by John J. Ballam, Communist candidate for governor.

"It is precisely out of such a bombing frameup that Tom Mooney now languishes in jail, though the whole world is aware of his innocence," Ballam said.

M'FADDEN HITS HOOVER DECEIT

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP)—Representative Louis McFadden of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican on the House banking committee, renewed his attack on the Hoover administration today with the charge that it was the policy of those in control here and abroad to "make rich America pay bankrupt Europe the cost of its war."

Addressing the Executives' Club, McFadden said the busines slump three years ago was not the normal penalty for a "reckless boom," but "the resultof a comprehensive deception of the American investment public by its government." He mentioned the sale of foreign securities in this country.

"But, you will ask, why should those who controlled in Washington be willing to sacrifice the American people to the interests of the foreigner?" McFadden continued.

"The answer is that they were controlled by the powerful international bankers of New York who, although they had our confidence and were looked up to by the bankers throughout the country, were in the service of foreign governments from the beginning."

Brother of Ban Johnson Is Dead

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 30 (AP)—William R. Johnson, formerly of Cincinnati and for a time closely associated in business with his brother Byron Bancroft Johnson, known as "Ban," the former American baseball league president, died at his home in Coronado last night.

NATION SWINGS TO ROOSEVELT, SAYS CURLEY

Mayor Curley, in his talk to the thousands who welcomed him today, painted a picture of the sufferings of the people throughout the country that stilled to awe the great gathering.

"When I accepted the invitation extended by the next president of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt," he began, "to conduct a speaking tour through the major portion of the northwestern portion of the United States, I little realized the character of the receptions accorded in the places I visited.

"I travelled 8000 miles by train and 2500 miles by air. I spoke over the radio 20 times, once over a world-wide hookup. As a result, I was able to present the case of the failure of Herbert Hoover, and the case of that great humanitarian, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

PITIFUL CONDITIONS

"We of the East think condition are bad here, but I wish the citizens who are hesitant about their choice in the coming election had been privileged to make the trip with us.

"We saw over 100 women riding on top of freight cars. We saw men hiking along railroad tracks, with cooking utensils and blankets, frequently leading little children by the hand while wearied mothers trailed in the rear.

"These people lived on food they were able to either beg or steal, and they slept at night in fields.

"We found the Anaconda mines idle, and hundreds dependent on private charity since public funds were exhausted.

"We found a Republican Legislature in Illinois listening to the appeal of a Republican Governor urging the allotment of funds to save 100,000 men, women and children from starvation in the coming winter.

WANT WORK AND WAGES

"In Pennsylvania, we found the Republican Governor Pinchot, asking the Federal government for $20,000,000 to prevent 500,000 people from starving.

"We found smokeless chimneys and idle men and women, desperate and starving. We found people hostile to the old party appeals. What they want is work and wages, and they are interested, not only in the past greatness of the country but in how work and wages can be restored.

"After three and a half years of Hoover rule, we found the people thoughtful. We found the the people believe that the time has arrived to restore the government to the people by electing a real American, Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the United States."

Mayor Curley, in speaking of his address to the American Legion national convention, rapped Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

THE HUMBLE HURLEY

"When I concluded my speech," said the mayor, "Lo, and behold, if I didn't see the secretary of war coming down the aisle. But it was a different Hurley I saw. Not the Hurley who ordered the veterans out of the capital with gas and machine guns, but a very humble and apologetic Hurley."

The mayor concluded his speech amid a storm of applause when he said:

"When I started out on my tour, I believed Roosevelt would carry 40 states. After all the misery and suffering I saw, the poverty and sorrow, the closed factories, the idle workers, the homes for sale, I have come to the conclusion that it is the duty of every American to vote for the one man who can lead them to happiness, to the plane where equality awaits everyone, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

COMMENDS N. Y. LAW

The Governor recommended adoption of the New York State law under which a candidate is eliminated when five per cent of the names on his nomination paper are proved to be fraudulent.

Regarding a recent proposition that insurance companies and banks of the State be permitted to take advantage of the Home Loan Bank, Gov. Ely said he was not opposed to it, but he pointed out that the State savings banks are not restricted in the amount of their loans as is the Home Loan Bank.

He declared also that the Central Savings Bank plan adopted by the last Legislature was used as a pattern for the Home Loan Bank.

United States Senator Marcus A. Coolidge, chairman of the meeting, suggested that in line with the governor's recommendation for a short platform, he submit in concise form each of the recommendations he had made, and the governor said he would draw up a resume.

RESOLUTIONS OFFERED

Resolutions were submitted to the committee by Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville, Robert J. Watt for the American Federation of Labor, Whitfield Tuck of Winchester, Andrew T. Clancy of Brockton, and Mrs. Walter W. Lovett, chairman; Mrs. Colin W. MacDonald, vice-chairman, and Mrs. Thurlow W. Barnes, of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

They included recommendations for endorsement of Gov. Roosevelt speech against the Power Trust, abolition of county governments and the Governor's Council, the right of a taxpayer to appeal to courts from decision of the tax appeal board, a flat rate for compulsory automobile insurance throughout the state, emergency measures by the state to aid cities and towns financially.

THE "YELLOW DOGS"

Resolution also provide for a state fund for workmen's industrial injury compensation, abolishing "yellow dog" contracts, a plan for compulsory noncontributory unemployment insurance, ratification of child labor amendments, elimination of child labor for all under 16 years and prohibiting those under 18 in hazardous occupations, one day's rest in seven for all workers, endorsement of the principle of high wages, adoption of five-day week for state, county and city employes; repeal of the 18th Amendment, return to state control of liquor, a five-day week and six-hour day.

Opposition to the sales tax and a requirement that all candidates for public office be required to deposit $100 before circulating papers also was asked.

The traditional "night before" love feast of the Democrats will be held tonight in the memorial auditorium of Lowell, under the auspices of the Democratic State Committee. Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri will be the principal speaker.

Chairman Joseph A. Maynard will open the convention tomorrow in the Lowell Auditorium. Gen. Charles H. Cole will be the temporary chairman and the keynote address will be delivered by the permanent chairman, Senator David A. Walsh. Addresses also will be delivered by Governor Ely, Mayor Curley and Senator Reed. The address of Sen. Reed will be broadcast over WBZ and WBZA at 1:30 p. m.

LINDY SUSPECT HELD IN BAIL OF $15,000

John D. Granger, 25, no home, arrested early today in Weston with a loaded revolver, 20 grains of morphine and a jumbled note mentioning the Lindbergh baby kidnaping in his possession, was held in $15,000 in Waltham court today for a hearing in 10 days.

Police are pretty well satisfied he knows nothing about the Lindbergh case, nor about a North Carolina murder also mentioned in the note, and that he is just a dope addict, but they took no chances and a sample of his handwriting was forwarded to Col. Lindbergh while inquiries were made of Clarkton, N. C., authorities.

WROTE SAME NOTE

Granger wrote for police what he said was a duplicate of a note he sent Lindbergh. This was it:

"Dear Colonial—I am very sorry for what has come about in your family and I believe I can or will help you if you want to locate the ones you and the officers are looking for."

Beside a nine-chambered .22 calibre revolver, Granger had a flashlight, two boxes of cartridges and a pair of canvas gloves on his person.

'DRAMA' POLICE SAY

Capt. F. W. Garrett of the Metropolitan District Commission, whose officers arrested Granger, said Granger is "just a dreamer."

Granger admitted to Capt. Garrett a positive belief in dreams and said that only a few weeks after he dreamed of his wife's impending death she did die in Laconia, N. H.

He dreamed also, he said, that a woman kidnaped the Lindbergh baby, but he denied all knowledge of the case.

The cryptic note found in his possession read:

"Run out murder of Mr. Smith scene old brown marsh, Sheriff of Clarkton, N. C. Prin (five-point star) A. Milligan B. Pope C. Thompson D. Floyd Kidnap Lindbergh (eight-point star) Irees Corp Ress Segars Trials Whiteville Court Aug Dec T of Sting."

"It won't belong now until I'm O. K. and out of here," smiles 16-year-old Lee Wilbur Koeppen as he clasps the hand of Mrs. Vera Ada Moyer, a mother, who is also 16, also smiling. The two were injured recently when a bomb exploded in front of the home of Chicago's Judge John P. McGoorty, chief justice of the criminal court and arch foe of gangsters. The youngster smiles because he has not been told that he will never see again, nor does Vera know that her sight is in danger. But young Koeppen's parents know. It is hard for them to smile. The picture was taken when the two victims met in the hospital.

DRYS MAY BOLT G. O. P. WET PLANK

nent dry Republicans plan to bolt the candidates and vote for the Prohibition party standard bearers, Upshaw and Reagan, on the national ticket.

The repeal plank in the platform adopted today at Symphony Hall goes beyond the Republican national platform and beyond President Hoover's resubmission plan. It comes right out for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, with guarantees for dry states and safeguards against return of the saloon.

A third party threat was made in a letter to State Chairman Amos L. Taylor today by Mrs. William Tilton of Cambridge, prominent dry.

An anti-bonus plank in the platform was stricken out by the resolutions committee last night on demand of Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman, candidate for governor. Youngman, heretofore a champion of the drys, swallowed the repeal plank.

Asked why he abandoned his proposed fight to reinsert the anti-bonus plank, Philip Carter of Newton replied:

"After all, the main thing is harmony and the election of Herbert Hoover."

DEMANDS RATE CUT

A plea for a 50 per cent cut in the salaries of state legislators and elective officials was made by John A. Carlson, delegate from Boston, as the convention opened.

Carlson also protested against what he termed the indiscriminate granting of bank charters, and then he drew loud applause by demanding a reduction in rates of gas, electric and telephone companies.

Then came the dry protest, voiced first by Edwin P. Bliss of Malden, who said he would support Hoover, but could not support a platform which, as he put it, compromised a moral issue. He said he spoke for many in his district. Prof. Alfred C. Lane of Tufts College and others supported Bliss' stand.

U. S. Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island, Eastern manager for the national committee and keynoter today, devoted most of his address to prohibition, maintaining that the Domecratic party would be unable to marshal its forces in or out of Congress for outright repeal.

DRAPER, ALLEN THERE

Eben S. Draper, who ran for the senatorial nomination against William M. Butler two years ago, making his campaign on a modification issue, and losing, looked on today as a remarkable change in sentiment resulted in adoption of a wet plank. Ex-Governor Allen, whose defeat was laid in large part to his dry views, was another spectator of a revolutionary change in sentiment.

Conspicuous absentees at the state convention were ex-President Calvin Coolidge and former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller.

Hebert in his keynote address lauded President Hoover's leadership and declared that recovery was in sight, with industries becoming active.

G.O.P.PLATFORM DODGES BONUS FOR REPEAL

The Republican state platform follows:

We, the Republicans of Massachusets, in convention assembled, pledge our allegiance and support to Herbert Hoover.

In these trying times of worldwide economic distress, he has been a patient, wise and fearless chief executive. He has been faithful to the American people. His capacity for constructive statesmanship is proven. Under his leadership we are making definite progress toward recovery. That progress must not be interrupted. It is therefore imperative that President Hoover be re-elected.

ECONOMY URGED

We pledge our every effort to the continuance of the constructive program set forth in the national platform. We also endorse the fine record of public service of William S. Youngman and Gaspar G. Bacon, our candidates for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, and pledge them our support, as we do to all the Republican candidates for election.

The Republican party pledges itself to a program of strict economy. Expenditures must come down. This applies to the nation, state, cities and town. Only in this way can the burden on home-owners be reduced. It is vital to the people of Massachusetts that sound financial policy be followed. We pledge ourselves to the continuation of the state budget system and the Pay-As-You-Go policy initiated by Republicans.

Practiced and adhered to by Republican administrators, this policy has made the financial condition of Massachusetts outstanding among the states. No new or additional taxes should be imposed or bonds issued except as they may be necessary for emergency relief.

FAVOR REPEAL

We favor the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment with absolute guarantees which will protect each state against interference and invasion by its neighbors, and will prevent the return of the saloon.

We stand squarely on Republican policy of protective tariff. The adoption of the Democratic proposal of a "competitive tariff for revenue" would mean a future of uncertainty to every wage-earner in Massachusetts. The wages of the employes in our industries must be protected from foreign competition. We pledge our party to provide adequately for those who are in want through no fault of their own and to forward such measures as shall hold out hope of steady employment in addition to relieving the distress of the moment.

CREDIT TO G. O. P.

Unemployment will be most speedily relieved by industrial activity. When industry languishes, payrolls diminish, employment ceases. Our citizens want employment rather than charity. We believe that every encouragement should be given to industry consistent with the welfare of the wage-earners.

To the Republican party belongs the credit for the progressive labor legislation now on the statute books of the commonwealth which has improved the working conditions of our wage-earners. We shall continue to urge the enactment of such additional legislation as experience demonstrates is necessary for further protection of the lives, health and working condition of our industrial workers.

We support the humanitarian program of child health and protection fostered by President Hoover.

Our concern is the happiness and welfare of all within the Commonwealth. We ask he support of all citizens, regardless of party affiliations, who believe in the policies and principles herein set forth.

Our record of performance in the past is a guarantee that the pledges which we make will be kept.

Candy Firms Seek to Better Product

Joseph Gooch, Jr., president of the Candy Institute of America, told the members of the N. A. R. D. at the Statler Hotel yesterday, that 70 of the leading concerns in the confectionery industry have grouped together in an effort to promote definite quality in the manufacturing of candy.

Many of New England's foremost candy producers are members of this group, among them being: New England Confectionery Co., George Close Co., United Drug Co., Schrafft & Sons, F. H. Roberts Co., The Gobelin Co., H. D. Foss & Co., Durand Co., Daggett Chocolate Co., Lovell & Covel Co., Foss-Edmonds Co., Kibbee Bros. of Springfield, and Bradley Smith Co. of New Haven.

Brazilian Rebels Enter Peace Parley

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 30 (AP)—Peace parleys to end the fighting between the Sao Paulo rebel forces and the government began today at the headquarters of the federal forces at Cruzeiro, but reports from there said hostilities had not ceased. The general impression is that the military group under Gen. Getulio Vargas, provisional president of Brazil, has strengthened its grip because of the apparent collapse of the rebellion.

G. O. P. TO OPEN CAMPAIGN IN MIDWEST

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Republican battle for winning the Midwest is about to begin.

Their first major offensive for the farm vote is to be launched next Tuesday with President Hoover's address in Des Moines.

Party leaders in campaign headquarters here today said they expected the President's speech would be "a complete answer made by outlining a definite plan for agricultural relief" to Governor Roosevelt's recent farm speech in Topeka, Kan.

LEADERS TO CAMPAIGN

Immediately after the Hoover speech, Republican leaders are expected to center their campaign in the middle-western states, employing half a dozen of the party's leading campaigners. They include Vice-President Curtis, Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of the Treasury Mills, Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of the Vice-President, and assistant Secretary of Navy Jahncke.

There are 260 active speakers listed in the Republican national committee speakers' bureau.

Vice-President Curtis, incidentally, will be campaigning in Maryville, Mo., only about 150 miles away, when President Hoover speaks in Des Moines.

In the concentrated farm campaign of the next few weeks such men · l known in the Mid-West as former Governor A. O. Eberhart of Minnesota, Atty.-Gen. Oscar Carlstrom of Illinois, Sen. Vandenburg of Michigan, Henry Field, Republican nominee for senator from Iowa, and Hanford MacNider of Iowa, former minister to Canada and one-time national commander of the Legion, are expected to assume leading roles.

Young Republican League Claims 10,000,000 Members

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP)—Leaders of the Young Republican League said today they were approaching their goal—ten million young men and women between the ages of 21 and 36 taking an active interest in politics.

George R. Olmstead, chairman of the league, a former head of the U. S. Junior Association of Commerce, has left to do organization work in the New England States.

"There are 28,000,000 voters under the age of 36," he said. "Our members will be the young and energetic 'shock troops' of Republicanism."

Only Seniors May Use Lipstick at Conn. College

New London, Ct., Sept. 30 (AP)—Daily use of rouge or lipstick has been reserved exclusively for themselves by seniors at Connecticut College.

The seniors also ruled that they alone may use roller skates on the campus.

D. A. R. LEADERS TO AID G. O. P.

Brousseau of Greenwich, Conn., and Mrs. George Maynard Minor of Waterfield, Conn. They will work with Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt in behalf of the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

FRENCH OBJECT TO HITLER'S SOLDIERS

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Geneva, Sept. 30 (INS)—The question of Germany's political armies, chief Franco-German bone of contention during recent months, came up for discussion before the committee on effectives of the world disarmament conference here today.

Their status was injected into the proceedings by Joseph Paul-Boncour, French war minister, after Hugh Wilson, United States minister to Switzerland, had placed before the committee America's estimates of the present strength of the military forces of the world.

Paul-Boncour waited until Wilson had finished and then arose to address the committee. Bluntly and firmly, he characterized the American figures as incomplete on the grounds that they failed to take into consideration Germany's political armies.

OBJECTS TO HITLERITES

"The estimates," M. Paul-Boncour said, "make no mention of Adolf Hitler's Fascist brownshirts; they make no allusion to the steel helmets.

"Nor is there any mention of the various German militias and Germany's irregular troops.

"All these must be counted at least as partial soldiers."

ALL ARE SOLDIERS

"We have the American figures as a basis for discussion," he said. "Now, it is necessary for us to decide what is a soldier.

"First, we have the full professional soldier. Then, we have the six months' recruit. Then again, we have the blackshirts and the brownshirts.

"The professional soldier, to be sure, is more of a soldier than the untrained recruit. The blackshirt may be more of a soldier than the brownshirt, or vice versa.

"But all, in the last analysis, are soldiers."

The American memorandum recommended reduction of defense forces by 30 per cent. If the plan were put into effect, it would reduce the French army about 100,000 men.

WEBSTER MAN KILLED BY CAR

Webster, Sept. 30 (AP)—Arthur Plasse, 24, an amateur athlete, died today in Webster District Hospital of injuries suffered when he was hit by an automobile at midnight.

Occupants of the car which conveyed the dying young man to the hospital at first maintained they found him lying in the road, but under questioning, Miss Yvonne Boudreau of Worcester admitted Plasse was hit by the car, police said.

However, the five occupants of the automobile, owned by Joseph Essex of Worcester, told such conflicting stories that police delayed making arrests.

Clergy Object to Nude Woman in War Memorial

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 30 (AP)—Inclusion of the figure of a nude woman, crucified, in the massive Anzac war memorial being erected here, has aroused protests from leading Catholic clergymen.

The memorial's main feature is a group of figures entitled "The Crucifixion of Civilization," in which the woman's figure is included.

Archbishop Kelly described the group as a parody and an outrage on religion, "blasphemous, indecent, insulting to God and to all Christians."

Mgr. Sheehan, Catholic coadjutor archbishop of Sydney, announced he would not attend the ceremonial laying of the foundations next July.

Raynor Hoff, the sculptor, replied that the group depicts the "gentle figure of Peace crucified on the war standard of Mars."

R. F. C. Demands That Loans Be Kept Secret

Washington, Sept. 30 (INS)—Declaring that "serious embarrassment" was caused by publication of loans last month, Chairman Atlee Pomerene of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., today formally demanded that South Trimble, clerk of the House of Representatives, suppress the corporation's August report.

The protest of Pomerene, accompanied by an opinion of Morton G. Bogue, general counsel for the corporation, was made public by Trimble when the August reports of loans to banks and other institutions was delivered to him.

Trimble took the matter under advisement and said he would decide next week whether he would reverse his position on publicity

The statement of the corporation's loans was delivered under a provision of the relief act directing that monthly reports be made to the secretary of the Senate and the clerk of the House.

Pomerene, backed by Bogue, flatly declared Trimble had no authority to make public the July report without specific directions from the House.

"In view of this request, I feel justified in withholding publication of the report until I have had an opportunity to carefully consider the opinion," Trimble said.

"The publication of the July report caused serious embarrassment to a number of borrowers," Pomerene said in his letter.

60,000 JOINED MOOSE IN GOLD WATCH DRIVE

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Sept. 30 (INS)—By offering a gold watch for every two members secured, more than 60,000 were added to the rolls of the Loyal Order of Moose in its 1931 silver jubilee membership drive, Joseph Jenkins of the Moose organization department testified today at the lottery trial of U. S. Senator James J. Davis.

However, Jenkins added, the campaign was conducted by the "propagation department," headed by Theodore Miller, instead of the organization department because Miller had made a purchase of 50,000 gold watches very cheaply.

At the end of the membership drive, the organization department received $25,000 from Miller.

BOUGHT DAVIS CONTRACT

It was Miller who also promoted the two charity balls, alleged to be lotteries.

Jenkins, according to the defense, bought the organization department contract, with Fred Jones, from Davis for $600,000. The contract permitted Davis to keep the initiation fees of all new members secured by the organization department.

Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman wanted to know from the witness why he permitted the propagation department to "cut into" the possible revenue of the organization department by taking over its privilege under the contract for conducting the membership drive.

RECEIVED $40,000

Jenkins testified the reason was that Miller wished to get rid of his 50,000 gold watches and that it was agreed by the organization department that it would get 50 cents from Miller for every new member secured.

Taking up the Moose charity balls, distinctive from the silver jubilee membership drive, Jenkins testified to receiving a gift of $40,000 from Miller after the 1931 charity ball.

He said Miller gave him the $40,000 because the propagation department knew that the charity ball campaign had affected the regular membership campaign of the organization department.

$75,000 IN NEW PRIZE LIST FOR COACH MODELS

A $5000 scholarship for a member of the Boston Evening American Chapter:

That the Boston Evening American's slogan from now until July 1, when the third annual coach-building competition of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild comes to a close and the models built in this section are judge for their share of the $75,000 in awards, including trips to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago for two boys in every state!

The Boston Evening American will publish, each week, a brief article written by Frank C. Riess, technical director of the Guild. Mr. Riess has had charge of the judging of the models in the competition ever since the Guild was founded.

WILL INDICATE MISTAKES

He knows the mistakes which boys often make in interpreting their Guild plans. And each article will discuss the commoner errors discovered by the judges, tell how to avoid them, and provide valuable guidance for the construction of the Napoleonic coach.

Careful study of these articles, in connection with the Guild plans, will be a real help—worth dollars and cents—to the boy who is in earnest about the Guild competition.

GET YOUR BLANK TODAY

The Boson Evening American urges every boy in its territory to enroll in the Guild today. Your manual training teacher, scout master or neighborhood dealer in General Motors cars will furnish you with blanks. An early start is important! Let's get going right now!

To clarify the Guild rule on eligibility, the following is published: Boys whose birth dates fall between Sept. 2, 1912 and Sept. 1, 1916, inclusive, are eligible to compete in the senior division this year. Boys whose brth dates fall between Sept. 2, 1916, and July 1, 1921, inclusive, are eligible to compete in the junior division.

IRISH SOCIALIST DEFIES CROWN AUTHORITY

Belfast, Ire., Sept. 30 (AP)—Members of the Parliament of Northern Ireland stood aghast while John Beattie, only Socialist of the House, picked up the mace, emblem of royal authority, and threw it across the room, declaring it was "only an emblem of hypocrisy."

Beattie was angered at a ruling of the speaker and had refused to accept a motion regarding unemployment.

"Out of the room with this!" he shouted as he grasped the mace and flung it across the floor. "It is only an emblem of hypocrisy. I will not stand here and allow this sort of thing to continue."

Something New About American Literature

There are numerous histories of American literature that trace the literary contributions of this country from one point or another in its progress to the approximate present. During the late Nineteenth Century, when our scholars decided America actually had something which could be dignified by the term of literature, and even up to as recently as 20 years ago, the historians started with the revolution or after, considering the work of the preceeding 150 years as worthless.

Lincoln Kirstein

Then to make up for it, the 17th and early 18th century period was rediscovered by industrious students with an almost ferocious compensation. The sermons of Jonathan Edwards the great Boston divine, and the poems of Anne Bradstreet have been resurrected with an acclaim which is, considering the whole perspective of our cultural history, a little startling.

Historians are seldom content with writing histories, that is, simple records of accomplishments, or on the other hand histories are seldom free from the personal bias of the historian. Too often they have some point to prove—perhaps that there is no "American" literature at all, that it is all directly stemming from Europe or at least England or else that there was a full-fledged American prose style within a hundred years of the Pilgrim invasion. The latest history in this category is Mr. V. F. Calverton's recently published LIBERATION OF AMERICAN LITERATURE (Scribners).

A Marxian Critic

Mr. Calverton's book is a very provocative, puzzling and irritating book. Although still a young man, he is the author of one novel, he has edited the THE MODERN QUARTERLY, and an anthology of American Negro Literature, and he has written five other volumes on SEX EXPRESSION IN LITERATURE, THE BANKRUPTCY OF MARRIAGE, and on American literary criticism in general. He is a scholar of his subject, and his sources, bibliography, and references, are formidable.

• • •

Mr. Calverton is also disarming. He admits at the very start: "I have attempted to point out general tendencies rather than deal with specific details. At best I have tried to get at the root-factors in American culture which have determined the nature of our literature. It is only by an appreciation of the class psychologies dominant at the time, as Marx has shown, that we can understand the nature of a culture or the direction and trend of a literature."

• • •

In other words, Mr. Calverton is a Marxian critic. That is, he bases all his deductions, analyses and distinctions on a purely economic basis. Determine the economic nature of the society in which your artist works and you have the key of his work. There can be no question that there is a considerable amount of truth in this attitude.

But like anyone with a very definite point to prove, Mr. Calverton seems to be, to say the least, limited in his final approximation of his subject. He says he will not make any aesthetic judgments; he takes the quality, the particular thing that makes a book different from any other book, for granted, and in almost all cases has immediately proceeded to an analysis of the philosophy, or ideology, if you will, that underlie the individual author's work.

• • •

Not only does this seem to be taking a lot for granted, but Mr. Calverton does indulge in at least implied aesthetic judgments when he rejects the work of certain authors as dead, unreal, or immaterial, since they do not, for a great many reasons, happen to coincide with his own philosophy. The air of an impartial record which he proposes is soon dispelled.

• • •

Changed by War of '98

Mr. Calverton, in a long and most absorbing discussion, analyzes what he calls our "colonial complex." For a long time Americans thought and wrote, or at least were ashamed of not thinking and writing like their Anglo-Saxon forebears. A book or a man had almost to establish his reputation in England before he could be heard in his own country, and this was true, Mr. Calverton thinks, until the Spanish-American War, when the United States took its place as a first-class world power.

Mr. Calverton is particularly interesting about our Puritan ancestors whose traditional attitude of prudishness he thinks is a myth. "The pruderies and reticences in our literature developed after Puritanism as a living force was dead. They came with the rise of the new philosphy of the bourgeoise, that of respectability, which candied over everything real with the surface of decency." He points out that if a Puritan disliked a play, for example, which for one reason or other they disapproved of as irreligious or immoral, they would simply have closed the theater, but they would not have changed the play into a sickly moral sermon about sentimental "sweetness and light."

• • •

In a manner which must claim the respect and wonder of every interested reader, Mr. Calverton anatomizes the writing in North America before, during and after the Revolution, to before, during and after the Civil War, the epochs of rising industrialism, the growth of the factory town, the exploration of the west. If there is hardly any of that writing that one would read now for pleasure, Mr. Calverton has shown the development of our national conscience carefully in a hundred forgotten popularities; works which contributed to the foundation of our independent writing.

• • •

But Mr. Calverton does not explain (perhaps it is impossible to ask him) why the subject of the frontier, the rising industrialism, the Civil War, the railroads, never produced a great novel. Whitman he considers the first American poet, Mark Twain our first prose writer—yet it is Whitman's energy and fresh attitude and Mark Twain's appreciation of America as America that he admires rather than CROSSING BROOKLYN FERRY or TOM SAWYER.

• • •

As a case in point, he writes of Herman Melville's great novel MOBY DICK, or THE WHITE WHALE, as a fable wherein the capitalist society of his day was excoriated. This is the fallacy of Calverton's whole attitude. Why "capitalist society" alone? Melville hated the evil in all men, not in an arbitrary category of them. Also Calverton praises the pioneers of Whitman who had their faces towards the new West, who would open up the prairies, mines, ranches, etc. To become what? To become the great wheat barons, mine owners and cattle kings whom he indirectly blames, as capitalist society, for enslaving American taste at the end of the Nineteenth and the commencement of the Twentieth century.

• • •

Mr. Calverton doubtless disbelieves in individual talent, and he holds no very high brief for personal taste. These things, he would insist, were factors determined by the class standing of the writer. Nevertheless, there are definite objections that can be brought to bear on his rigidly fixed pigeonholing.

• • •

He says Mark Twain was the first "American" prose writer. He does not expressly say Melville was an English writer, but that is the implication. Yet no one in England wrote Melville's prose. Nobody else in America did either, and perhaps Melville is not an "American" writer; but that is no reason to deny him the great breadth of his scale. It is almost as if Mr. Calverton conceived of American literature as a gallery of niches. As he comes to a book he shelves it and labels the pedestal. If the label is not exact, if the niche doesn't fit, nevertheless the object has been put in a place, and given a name, and the soical-economic nomenclature, one grants is as good as any other categorical nomenclature.

But whatever one thinks of Mr. Calverton's attitudes, one cannot deny the very lively dicussions, the brilliant generalizing, and the heroic pioneer digging that has been done here. He says he hopes "The Liberation of American Literature will make it easier for future historians to write more definitive works." Unquestionably in this he has brilliantly succeeded.

GERALD DAVIS DIES SUDDENLY AT CONCLAVE

Gerald F. Davis, 15 Eliot Memorial rd., Newton, general manager in New England for the Graybar Electric Company, dropped dead while attending a convention in Buffalo, according to word received here today.

Heart failure caused the collapse of Davis last night at the Electrical Wholesalers' Association session in the Hotel Statler, said Raymond McCabe, service manager at the Boston office of Graybar in Columbus ave.

McCabe said the body was shipped from Buffalo today for Boston and will be transferred to undertaking parlors in Newton.

Davis was 45 years old and a native of Newport, Ind. He was a graduate of Purdue University and had been general manager in New England since 1927, coming to Boston from Chicago, where he was associated with the Western Electric Co.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ida Davis, and two daughters, all of Newton.

Women Voters Hold Balance of Power in South and N. E.

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Figures rounded up by the census takers tend to show that man, by sheer strength of numbers, can go down to the polls in November and prevail over the power of the woman vote.

At least the cold statistics tabulated in 1930 showed 37,056,757 men over 21 years of age as against 35,886,867 women in the United States.

On the other hand, the woman-strength might be considered as handier to the polls, since in the urban population the women over 21 outnumber the men, 22,149,477 to 21,747,237.

The population tabulated "by sections," North, South and West, give men the numerical edge in every case.

But, in the smaller, "geographic divisions," women hold the numerical balance of power in New England and in the South Atlantic and East-South central groups of states.

The census statistics put women in the majority in 11 states, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, of the New England group; Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, of the South Atlantic group; Tennessee and Alabama, of the East South central group, and Louisiana.

SIX FIRES SET IN MALDEN HOUSE

Six fires were discovered today in an unoccupied house in Pearl st., Malden, to which damage of $1000 was caused before firemen extinguished all the blazes.

The house, police said, is owned by Joseph Tianquicco, father of Patrolman Tony Tianquicco of the Malden liquor squad, and was acquired recently in a foreclosure sale.

The state fire marshal's office was notified as a result of finding two fires in the living room, two in the cellar and one each in the front hallway and on the veranda.

British Physician's Theory Explaining Reason for Death May Lead to Progress in the Control of Age

WHEN science learns why some living creatures apparently keep on growing forever and never show signs of old age, the secret of their eternal life may prove to be the Fountain of Youth for human beings.

This theory—the newest among scientific ideas—was recently reported at a meeting of the British Medical Association in London by a Dr. G. P. Bidder, an English physician. He produced much evidence in support of his idea.

Value of the Theory

Dr. Bidder pointed out that old age was unknown in the early days of evolution. He explained why it now exists and why human beings grow old and die. His theory is one that may well lead, someday, to progress in the control of old age and its postponement. Find out all about it in the unusual article explaining the doctor's idea in next Sunday's American Weekly.

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

A Little O' This, a Little O' That!

It requires no profound student of psychology to understand that the gags or stories most appealing to any group of people are those pertaining to subjects or personalities connected with the group's particular profession. A medical joke might leave you cold but it would rip a doctor apart. A mortuary gag might only give you the shivers but tell it to an undertaker and watch him squirm in merriment. Newspapermen are no better. Stories that appeal to them most are yarns about newspaper people. Jack Lait told one to a group of us the other day at a dinner to a publisher—and even an advertising man who had lost his best account that day chuckled. It was about the time after the war when Lait was asked whether he'd like to cover the peace conference. He said no, he would not like to cover the peace conference, so Ring Lardner was approached with the assignment and said no, he would not like to cover the peace conference either. A few days later the boys learned that Percy Hammond, one of Manhattan's distinguished and well liked dramatic critics, but a caustic reviewer, had been delegated to cover the conference. "H'm," murmured Lardner, "They're taking an awful chance. Supposing Hammond doesn't like the show?"

At this late date for me to inform you that there is no more superstitious group in the world than the people of the theatrical profession would be like telling you that Mister Rudy Vallee and Mister Harry Richman detest publicity. These funny people of the stage toss salt over a shoulder, refuse to light three cigarettes on a match, keep a mile away from a ladder, turn white at the sight of a black cat, shudder when a girl pulls on her left stocking first and take to bed when a mirror crashes. Rossini, famous operatic composer, shared all these superstitions, so you can imagine his despair when at the premiere of one of his operas, a black cat crossed the stage at the beginning of the first act, a performer fumbled his lines so badly at the beginning of the second act that it almost threw the other actors and singers into a panic and at the end of the same act a ladder fell plop across the stage. Sure indications that the piece was doomed to an early demise. The opera was "Barber of Seville" and I'd like to have the receipts grossed by it.

Magicians no longer thrill as of old. You can buy so many of their tricks, ready-made in the stores and so many books instructing you how to saw a woman in half, how to stay submerged in an air-tight milk can, how to produce a king of spades at will, how to make a canary disappear, etc. But I'm still young enough to remember the quiver of excitement that used to shoot through me anytime I could wheedle a quarter out of my folks to go to the vaudeville house nad watch Houdini tear off shackles or disappear from a tightly nailed wooden box. I can even remember the time he was playing in my home town and someone dared him to jump off a bridge into the shallow Naugatuck river handcuffed and footcuffed with a 40 pound weight around his neck. He did it and when he came out on shore he came dragging the shackles and the weight—but he was free of them. Vivian Cosby, one of the few woman magicians I know, tells me a story that may or may not be new—I've never heard it before. There was a time, it seems, when the great Houdini almost failed. He was locked in a cell in the jail in Glasgow where [illegible], notorious murderer, was confined and given an hour in which to escape. He fumbled at the lock. He pushed at the bars. He [illegible] away. He pulled and pushed, sweated and cursed but the steel door refused to budge and the minutes and seconds were winging by. It was defeat for the first time in his life and he knew the newspapers wouldn't let him down. So in disgust and in anger he kicked the door and then turned the knob viciously and pushed it toward him. It opened easily. It had never been locked at all!

Vivian tells me another story—about Nate Leipsig, one of Broadway's favorite necromancers. One of his favorite stage tricks was producing coins out of the air until they filled a high hat. One night, after his performance, he was met outside the stage door by a thug with a drawn revolver. "Produce me some money, fellow—produce plenty to get me to Chicago. You can do it." Leipsig in desperation began flipping coins out of mid-air—but what the holdup man didn't know was that it was always the same coin—the only one the magician had with him. Fortunately, before he had an opportunity to find out, a cop came along and the thug fled.

A few additions to the long neglected Dictionary of a Hollywood [illegible]: From George Felden: Brush: something you use to clean shoes. Bronze: one of the five boroughs. From Charles W[illegible]: Meals: you should have three a day. Bounce: the hot cross kind are delicious. Pitch: a favorite fruit of mine. From Claire K. Frey: France: try and hold them on Broadway; Heat: Schmeling did it to Walker too many times. From Mildred Palmer Hussey: Paul Revere rode on one, remember? Mutton: a nice boy's name. From Oscar Baradinsky: Get a revolver. Crown: Rudy Vallee does it through a megaphone. Cliff: to make a noise with the throat.

WIFE'S LETTERS PLEADED TO BE TAKEN BACK

Heartbreaking letters protesting love for her estranged husband and for their son, were read in Middlesex Probate Court today while Mrs. Helene Smith, the pretty 29-year-old dressmaker who wrote them, sobbed on the witness stand.

Mrs. Smith, formerly of Newton and now living with relatives in Concord, N. H., has filed a counter divorce action to one brought by Chester S. Smith, Newton railroad clerk, who denies paternity of her second child born 10 months after he left her according to his claim.

DENIES PATERNITY

He charges desertion and she cruelty and abuse.

Testifying yesterday, Mrs. Smith said she no longer cared for her husband after he denied paternity of their little girl. Before their baby was born, however, she was willing to return to him "on any terms," her letters revealed.

"Please, Chet, if you ever loved me, let me take Juney (Chester, Jr., their son)" was her impassioned plea in January, 1929, two months after her husband alleges she left him. "Perhaps he may not have a mother to come to very long. That's the God's truth, Chet; I mean it. I begin to see I must have been a burden. I guess I wasn't mad eto be a good wife and mother."

PLEADS FOR JUNEY

In another letter she wrote:

"For Gods sake take me back where I can live with Juney. I love him so. I want Juney so I'll come back on any terms. Answer my letter within a week or answer to God for the consequences."

"Have you kept up my insurance?" she wrote in another. "I hope you have because you may soon have occasion to use it. If I send you my diamond will you see if you can get someting on it? Tell me how Juney is. His mother loves him so but she'll never bother you or him again."

In another letter she told her husband to divorce her if he didn't want her so she could enter a hospital as a free patient to give birth to the baby.

SPOKE OF DIVORCE

"I do so want to see Juney, Chet! Won't you take me back?" she pleaded in May, 1929. "You were always so kind and forgiving. I didn't appreciate you two boys until I didn't have you. Oh, Chet, I love you! Don't you ever feel as though you want to hold me and never let me go again? . . . Chet, I think it's a girl."

"You were a good guesser," remarked her attorney, Dennis M. Cronin.

Mrs. Smith again denied she ever had been unfaithful.

Fist Fight Rivals Make Up; Set Free by Judge

A court order to shake hands and go out and get a cup of coffee abruptly ended a mutual assault case in municipal court today.

The defendants, Henry DeMuth of Massachusetts ave., Cambridge and Elbert R. Belhanke of Jersey st., Back Bay, formerly of California, was arrested yesterday in a Back Bay traffic argument.

Belhanke afterward furnished bail for DeMuth and the two called off their differences.

"Are you friends now?" inquired Judge Murray today.

The two smiled at each other.

"Shake hands, then, and go out and get a cup of coffee," ordered the court.

DeMuth and Belhanke left arm in arm.

ROXBURY MAN HELD IN THEFT

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Police today received word from Boston confirming the admission of a man under arrest here that jewelry worth $3000 was stolen Tuesday night from the home of Saul Glazer in Roxbury.

The prisoner, who described himself as James E. Norton, 26, of Tyler st., Boston, was arrested Wednesday as he left an Eighth ave. pawnshop. The pawnbroker told police the man had tried to pawn a platinum watch initialed "I. S. G." and he refused to accept it.

Police said Norton admitted he and two men had broken into the Glazer home Tuesday night and stolen $3000 worth of jewelry.

Robbers Take 2 Girls in Bank

Wahpeton, N. D., Sept. 30 (AP)—Robbers who carried sub-machine guns kidnaped a girl employe and a girl customer while raiding the Citizens National Bank today. They slugged the cashier and fled with $5000.

The robbers, who took with them as hostages Miss Ruth Whipps, a bookkeeper, and Miss [illegible] Stade, a customer, were reported barricaded in a farm building two miles away prepared to fight off [illegible] citizens who pursued them.

S. H. Murray, cashier, was struck on the head but was not hurt seriously. Witnesses disagreed as to whether there were three or five robbers.

Sheriff McIlwain and Police Chief Sweizer led the pursuers, whose cars were fired at from the fugitives' automobile as it sped away.

Eva Le Gallienne's Faith Carrying Her Through Many Trying Days

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

An enterprising young woman once found herself possessed of a promising idea and exactly $150 in working capital. This might have knocked the promise right out from under the idea except for [illegible] in spite of oppressing limitations [illegible] Faith. And having faith in great abundance [illegible] LeGallienne went to work. This was six years ago, at a time when theatre managers were counting upon more comfortable [illegible] than most of them possess today. Miss LeGallienne's ambition was to revive Ibsen and you may well imagine how she fared while pressing her case before the imperial judges who sat in the booking offices. As she discovered they were like the Pharaohs [illegible] presenting an excellent [illegible] for not becoming interested in her project.

The Lawd Honored

The "cherubs" of "The Green Pastures" had their day with the Lawd yesterday at the Peoples Church. They tendered him a "fish fry," sat on his knee and never blinked an eye as the news photographers popped away at them with flashlights. Richard B. Harrison gracefully accepted his newly acquired 68th year of life with a philosophy wreathed in smiles. He made a speech, naturally. He couldn't escape that, and when you heard him you knew that he would have been disappointed if the Rev. David S. Klugh of the Peoples Church had missed him in the excitement. It was a genuine "fish fry" in perfect "Green Pastures" style. Only one item was missing. Gabriel did not strut into the proceedings and offer the Lawd a 10-cent seegar. Anyway, they do not permit smoking in a church vestry.

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE

Here's a merry family group from "Thirteen Women," photoplay featured on the RKO Boston screen, tomorrow. Ricardo Cortez, Irene Dunne and little Wally Albright talk about home.

Gala Start for Epic by O'Neill

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

The interlude along the Rialto Monday night wherein something of the Hollywood spirit will be brought to Boston won't be nearly as strange as the actual showing of the drama which Boston barred several seasons ago. To frequenters of the theater district next Monday's will be a notable premiere, with a sort of backstage thought given to the strange contrast of then and now.

With all the ballyhoo and fixings of a filmland first night, "Strange Interlude" will celebrate the fact that it has at last smashed through the Puritanic barriers. Ruled out of this city by the censors it had to be content with presentation as a child of the legit on the stage of a Quincy movie palace [illegible]. It happens that on that initial evening we journeyed down to the Granite City to "cover" that premiere. It was a long, long evening inside the house—five hours or thereabouts in the presence of Mr. Eugene O'Neil's characters.

What a Contrast

What a contrast to the advent, now, of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer movie version of "Strange Interlude." No ride to Quincy will be necessary, no five-hour trying ordeal in a [illegible] amphitheater seat, no forced interlude for eats. But a short quick journey into the Rialto for a chummy [illegible] at home in the greatest comfort of a Majestic Theater chair.

All arrangements, Bert McKenney, handling the showing of the picture here informs us, are now completed. He announces that

Joan Crawford Is Taking Singing Lessons for 'The Merry Widow'

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1932, By Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 30—Here's a honey I tripped over by accident. Joan Crawford has been energetically taking singing lessons from Song Writer Dave Snell on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. And the lowdown—which nobody suspects—is that she is preparing herself for "The Merry Widow."

Harriet Parsons

Joan was eager to do a dramatic version of the Lehar operetta but Irving Thalberg is planning it as a musical production. If Joan can raise that husky contralto of hers sufficiently to take notes in a higher register she will get the role even though it's a musical one.

Seems to me there are a lot of people better suited to it and a lot of vehicles that are more up Joan's alley but M-G-M has scored before by doing the totally unexpected. Or have you forgotten platinum blonde Jean Harlow's "Red Headed Woman."

Team Reunited

After eloquent pleas from Author Phil Stong and Adapter Julian Josephson, who couldn't see anybody else in the role, Fox has decided to have Jimmy Dunn play the reporter in 'State Fair,' which not only adds another star name to the highpowered cast of the Strong best seller, but reunites Jimmy and Sally Eilers. And that's not going to do any harm at the box office. Jimmy and Sally, one of the most popular romantic teams on the screen, haven't been together since "Dance Team."

Helen Hayes' Next

In spite of many rumors that she would play the little Chinese heroine of "Son Daughter," Helen Hayes will start producing on "The White Sister" for M-G-M in two weeks. The famous old Griffith silent is certainly a better vehicle for her. Clark Gable has been lined up for the Ronald Colman role several times but it still isn't certain whether or not he will play it. A good deal of glamour attaches to "The White Sister" because of the remembered performances of Ronald Colman and Lillian Gish and unless M-G-M gives Miss Hayes a leading man of her own calibre the fans will be apt to make unfavorable comparisons with the original version.

Mae West Signed

You're going to hear more and still more about Georgie Raft's first starring vehicle, 'Night After Night.' The preview audience came out raving t'other night, not only about Raft but about Mae West. On the strength of those raves the voluptuous Mae, who was brought out by Paramount for the one picture, has been signed up. She'll play one more featured role for Para and after that the studio will star her in a series.

Rambling 'Round:

Carl Laemmle's son-in-law Stanley Bergerman, has dual cause for celebration. Bergerman's wife Rosabelle, presented him with a son shortly after Universal handed him a merited promotion. He'll supervise five big features, the first of which will be 'Skulls' which he also wrote. This takes Bergerman off the Tom Mix pictures which he's been over-seeing. Bergerman also supervised 'Imhotep' with Boris Karloff.

Truce Called

Paul Lukas and Universal have called a truce. After Paul's refusal to do "Nagana," the studio, by way of standing him in a corner, penalized him with a layoff. Now, however, Warners have borrowed him for the lead in "Grand Slam," the B Russell Herts yarn about a bridge expert. Story was intended for either Powell or Warren William but both are busy on other pictures.

Snapshots of Hollywood

LEONARD SILLMAN doubling in brass by escorting two ladies to KARYL NORMAN'S Club Boheme; EDGAR ALLEN WOOLF, IRENE KUHN and others also taking in the floor show at the Sunset Boulevard Cafe. BERT WHEELER, ROBERT WOOLSEY, JOHN MEDBURY with four pretty girls (two blondes and two brunettes) at the same place. RUTH ROLAND and BEN BARD reporting at JEAN MALIN'S Club New Yorker which seems to bring the celebs back again and again. BING CROSBY and DIXIE LEE getting a kick out of MALIN'S imitation of BING. LYLE TALBOT, CLAUDIA MORGAN, PHIL HOLMES, BOB VIGNOLA dancing to HAL WAYNE'S crooning music. TALLULAH BANKHEAD and Agent FRANK JOYCE confabbing over a Brown Derby table. EUGENIE LEONTOVICH and husband, GREGORY RATOFF dittoing. MR and MRS BILL GARGAN, GENE and VINA DELMAR. Jack Oakie taking that nowhere cruise on the fun-ship La Playa—(and how that Oakie gets around!). That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Gala Premiere

Tremont st. will shine as never before, with a flood of light, streamers, radio broadcasts and the what-not of letting the public know that the big show has reached town at last! Cameras will "shoot" and over the air will go the news of the arrival of celebrities at the portals. In every way, Mr. McKenzie continues, this premiere will surpass all predecessors.

For mistress of ceremonies Mr. McKenzie has secured Miss Alyce Siemens, known to everybody as the Girl About Town of the Boston Evening American. Her personality and felicity of phrase, as well as her experience on the radio and her unusually wide acquaintance, should add greatly to the glamour of the premiere.

"Strange Interlude," we [illegible] the length of [illegible] of [illegible] a special presentation [illegible] later [illegible] for the motion picture audience [illegible] acted and in our opinion is far preferable to its stage forbear. It is shorter by more than three hours, more sweeping in its treatment.

Russian Film

"Rasputin, Saint or Sinner," a film dealing with the declining years of the Romanoffs, will be shown at the Beacon Theater tomorrow. "Rasputin" opens with the mad monk in his prime—the lonely peasant now risen to power in the imperial court. Another feature will be "The Tragedy of Mount Everest," a story of exploration and adventure.

Globe Trotter on the Screen

Stirring pictures of Governor Roosevelt's campaign tour of the West come from Portland, Ore., San Francisco and Los Angeles. In the latter city he was greeted by more than 20,000 persons in the great Hollywood Bowl.

In Portland, the Governor's speech brings tremendous applause, especially when referring to his fight to keep electrical water power out of the hands of unscrupulous utility leaders. He says "Judge me by the enemies I have made," and "never shall the federal government part with its sovereignty and control over its power resources while I am President of the United States."

In San Francisco he praises "Al" Smith and declares "unequivocally for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment." William G. McAdoo, on the speaker's platform, joins heartily in the applause.

Highlights of opening games of the football season include pictures of the champion Southern California Trojans swamping Utah 35 to 0; the Chicago Maroons defeating Monmouth College, 41 to 0, and the Columbia Lions, in New York, defeating Middlebury by a score of 51 to 0.

TAMMANY BOLTS ROOSEVELT'S N. Y. SLATE

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—Tammany's refusal to renominate Samuel I. Rosenman, of New York, for Supreme Court justice revived reports at the capitol today that the wigwam may reject Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for the governorship and line up behind Mayor John Boyd Thacher 2nd of Albany at the Democratic state convention which opens here Monday noon.

Justice Rosenman formerly served as personal counsel to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Roosevelt appointed him to the Supreme Court last spring.

Rejection of Rosenman by Tammany and its action in endorsing State Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, Republican, for the Supreme Court bench came as a crushing blow to both the Roosevelt and Lehman forces. Hofstadter was chairman of the legislative committee whose investigation resulted in the resignation of James J. Walker as mayor.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will throw his support to any candidate selected by Tammany and its upstate allies, according to word received here today.

BIG MARGIN FOR ROOSEVELT IN ILLINOIS

By COLE E. MORGAN

Universal Service Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 30—The battle is on with fierce fighting in progress for control of the central industrial states from Pennsylvania to Illinois.

Returns this week in the nation wide postcard presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in cooperation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States show:

Governor Roosevelt is cutting heavily into President Hoover's lead in Ohio.

GAINS FOR HOOVER

Hoover is cutting into Roosevelt's lead, but not so heavily, in Indiana and Michigan.

Roosevelt is increasing his lead in the normally Republican State of Pennsylvania.

The generally doubtful State of Illinois is continuing to give Roosevelt a surprisingly large majority.

Of these five states only Illinois can be claimed as safe for either candidate. It appears that it will return a tremendous Democratic majority. At present, with 21,54[illegible] ballots tabulated, Roosevelt has a 1929 majority, drawing a safe 60 per cent of the ballots.

OTHERS DOUBTFUL

Campaign strategists obviously realize the uncertainty and danger in this area as they are bending every effort to reverse the tide.

No one can forecast with any degree of certainty what will be the outcome in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana. They are as doubtful as are New Jersey, Delaware and New York in the East.

Boy Vanishes on Way to School in Quincy

The disappearance yesterday of Philip Morgan, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Morgan, of 112 Granite st., Quincy, was reported to police today. The boy vanished while on his way to the Granite grammar school. Police think he ran away.

How Nominees Stand In Nation-Wide Poll

Washington, Sept. 30—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nationwide Presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

It also shows the majority each candidate has in each State in which he is leading.

In addition, it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each State, as compared with the last preceding report from the State. These State reports are usually a week apart.

The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each State where he has improved his position, as compared with the last preceding report from that State.

HAVANA POLICE IN GUN BATTLE WITH STUDENTS

Havana, Sept. 30 (AP)—Police and students engaged in a gun battle today on the street in front of the residence of a Cuban Senator just three days after the assassination of four prominent political leaders by gangs of gunmen.

Two women bystanders fainted, but no one was injured. The shooting broke out in front of the home of Senator Wifredo Fernandez and became a running battle.

Spread of rumors that schools were to be bombed today caused numerous parents to keep their children home.

Today is the second anniversary of the death of the so-called student "martyr," Rafael Trejo, which was marked on its first anniversary in 1931 by various bombings.

Official denials were issued to newspapers that the assassins of Dr. Clemente Vazquez Bello, president of the Cuban Senate, had been captured. Four unnamed men were being held in connection with the slaying.

Ferry Skipper's License Revoked

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Board of Steamboat Inspection Service investigating the Labor Ferry Observation disaster announced today that it had revoked the license of Capt. Alexander J. Forsyth, master of the Observation who was aboard the boat when it exploded and sank in the East River Sept. 9 with a loss of 71 lives.

Finland to Liberalize New Liquor Laws

Helsingfors, Finland, Sept. 30 (AP)—Further liberalization of Finland's liquor laws is provided in a bill submitted by the government to the Diet today. It would permit unrestricted sale of medium strength malt liquors to caterers, co-operative establishments and private individuals under supervision of the government alcohol company.

IF DEPRESSION KEEPS YOU OUT OF COLLEGE A YEAR, DON'T GIVE UP

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

R. E. ROGERS

WE MUST by now be pretty well satisfied as to the place that college education holds in the hearts and minds of the American people. The single most interesting fact about present economic conditions is that college registration has kept up.

In the fall of 1920, of course, nobody knew that there was a depression, least of all the governmental authorities who might have been supposed to possess information denied to the rest of us. The following year, even, the spirit of the people had been bolstered up to such an extent by optimistic statements from the White House and Wall st. that no one anticipated any falling off in college registration, and as a matter of fact there was no falling off. Technology, if my memory is correct, had the largest enrollment since the war.

Educators Prepared for the Worst

By the fall of 1931 everybody knew that we were in for a long hard pull. Observers of higher education looked forward to a slump in enrollment. Other, and perhaps more canny, observers remembered that in the depression of 1920 the registration, far from falling, actually increased. It was obvious that men and girls who otherwise might have taken jobs chose to stay in school as a kind of second best.

During the past year rumors came to us in the east of various small denominational colleges in Ohio and the Mississippi valley folding up for lack of pupils and funds, but in the main those schools that were not primarily dependent on tuition fees seemed to get along reasonably well. Those that did depend chiefly on tuition fees were observed to go in for high pressure advertising to fill their ranks. And that high pressure advertising seemed to work reasonably well.

But this fall even the most optimistic of us were full of foreboding. It was obvious that the reserve resources of many a family must have been nearly depleted. It was obvious that in spite of the assurances of the evangelists of the Republican Party, the coming winter is goin gto be worse than the last, with fewer reserves to fall back on, less money available for private benevolence, and with national, state and municipal appropriations inadequate to do the work. One looked forward, therefore, to a sad drop in college enrollments.

But once more anticipations seemed not to have been well-founded. The great universities are not suffering particularly. Harvard, indeed, is admitting a larger freshman quota than usual. Dartmouth is very well off. So are the others. The schools that deliberately restrict their enrollment to 500 or thereabouts apparently still have more applications than they can deal with.

At Technology, with the largest annual tuition fee that any similar institution charges, the drop in the entering class was surprisingly small, around 75 according to figures at hand. The senior class and the graduate school report a very small drop. The Junior class is about the same. But there is a sizeable drop in the sophomore class, nearly 200 men.

The reason for that is a condition which exists at Technology but not elsewhere. Technology has always a large influx into its sophomore class of "transfers," students who have spent one or more years at a liberal arts college, or at some other engineering school, and who decide to come to M. I. T. for their strictly professional work. These men under the present circumstances are probably deciding to remain at home, in their own territory. Possibly some of the schools they have been attending will accept produce, fodder, live stock nad so forth, in lieu of hard cash tuition money. Technology is not so fortunately situated that it can do that. The boy whose college is near his home town will obviously not undertake the expensive job of moving to a distant college at this time.

Students' Aid Reduced This Year

A careful survey would undoubtedly bring to light a staggering number of cases where families who might by the greatest sacrifice in good times manage a college education for a boy or girl are in these times utterly unable to render any help at all. And unfortunately this very year, when tuition aid is most needed, finds many institutions—even the greatest and richest—obliged to undertake drastic economies and, above all, to cut down on students' aid that might otherwise have been given. Furthermore, outside and part-time jobs for students must have shrunk very badly. All kinds of odd jobs, for which formerly well-to-do people could afford to pay a few dollars a week, have either been cut out or are being done by people who, formerly, never bothered with them. Casual employment everywhere is at a low ebb.

To the fortunate ones who are still able to squeeze a college education out of the family budget, there are congratulations and good wishes. But I am more concerned for the moment with those who cannot possibly go to school this year. They must not be discouraged and they must not give up the idea of further education. Remember a year's postponement—or even two years'—is not as important as dropping the idea altogether. It is hard to pick up the threads again, but it must be done.

Remember that a year or two will not ruin your whole life. If you can get a job, make the best of it. If you can not, try to use your time to keep alive the habit and practice of reading and studynig. The habit once lost is hard to recapture. Keep it alive, so that when the time comes you can pick up your education where you were forced to lay it down. There should be no reason why a temporary interruption should ruin all your plans. And lastly, remember that maturity plays a vital part in education. A year from now, two years from now, you will be older, stronger, more mature. Nature will have been working on your side, whether you are conscious of it or not. Fields that lie fallow often produce the best crops.

FOURTH MAN IS QUESTIONED IN MYSTERY

Divorcee Admits the Victim of Beating Had Visited Her Home; New Clue Found

A bloodstained rug was seized by police today in the home of Mrs. Grace Horne, 41, South End divorcee, as police arrested a fourth man for questioning in the mystery death of Harry J. Ryan.

Ryan who was found dying Wednesday morning in Asylum st., apparently from the effects of a beating, had been a visitor at the Horne home, police said. He lived in Buttonwood st., Dorchester.

Philip Hendricks, 23, of Brookline st., South End, was quoted by Sergt. William Donovan of East Dedham st. station as saying Ryan slept in the Horne home in a room from which the rug was seized.

TREATED FOR CUT

Hendricks declared he had treated a cut finger in the same room, but police said the stains were found in another spot from where Hendricks described the dressing of the wound.

Mrs. Horne admitted to police the man who died had visited her home but denied he was involved in any altercation there.

Joseph Anderson, alias William Riley, 19, of North st., North End told police Ryan left the Horne home for a time and returned to complain he had trouble with "some foreigners."

FOUND NEAR DEATH

Ryan left the Horne home, according to Anderson, after his pleas for help in fighting the foreigners were refused by Anderson and others.

It was a few hours after the time described by Anderson that Ryan was found dying in Asylum st.

Rest of the Crew Die in Angry Seas That Balked Aid; Ship Pounded to Pieces

Seattle, Sept. 30 (AP)—A check of the crew roster of the freighter Nevada, pounded to bits in the North Pacific, with a loss of 34 lives, revealed that Alfred Bentham, third engineer, of Hingham, Mass., was one of the victims.

Alfred Bentham

Only three men survived, saved by their own strength and daring and the heroism of lifeboat crews from two rescue ships.

They were [illegible] Island late yesterday by the President Madison in a serious condition from exposure and lack of food. They had remained on the island without shelter and with only dried flour to eat for two sleepless days after seeing their captain and shipmates leap into a gale-lashed sea never to appear again.

The three are: James Thorsen, a cadet of Portland, Ore.; Fritz Dewall, able-bodied seaman, no address, and Lucena N. Decanay, ordinary seaman, Manila, P. I.

They were so weak when taken aboard the President Madison they could tell only briefly of the horror they witnessed when their Japan-bound freighter struck the rocks and then began to break up.

After resting and eating as the President Madison resumed her course for Victoria, B. C., the trio revived.

SAW CAPTAIN DIE

Before their eyes, they said their captain, T. W. Johansen of Portland, Ore., and the first officer, H. T. Wendt, also of Portland, jumped overboard into the foaming surf and disappeared.

Alfred Bentham, third engineer of the freighter Nevada, was 34 years old and when in this section made his home with Richard Laurie of Meadow View rd., Hingham Center.

For the past year, however Bentham had been on the Pacific coast, the last word from him being received by Laurie about a week ago.

Jewry Gathers at Temples to Atone as Year 5693 Opens

Rosh Hashonah, beginning of the 5693rd year since the creation of the world, according to the Hebrew calendar, will be ushered in tonight by Jewry throughout the world.

Rabbi Friederman

With the advent of the feast, known as the Jewish New Year which will be observed by throngs at all synagogues and temples begins a 10-day period of repentance which will culminate in Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the most solemn day in the religious calendar.

Rosh Hashonah is a solemn occasion. There is no merry making, as it signals days of remorse for shortcomings and renewed courage for the future.

Elaborate preparations have been going on for the past week in Jewish communities for the celebration.

Rosh Hashonah, which literally translated, means the "head of the year," is generally observed by Jewish communities.

Rabbi S. J. Friederman, dean of the Orthodox Rabbis of Boston delivered the following message to the Jewish community of Massachusetts:

"May the New Year bless us, our dear ones, and through them and us, our fellow men with that joy which shall be a reflection of the blessing brought to others."

SUCCOUTH FOLLOWS

The symbolism of the ritual such as the sounding of the Shofar or ram's horn [illegible] to arouse the conscience of the worshipper to a sense of his obligation to his fellow man as well as to admonish him of individual shortcomings.

Three blasts of the "Shofar," set by tradition in the liturgy of the New Year, symbolize three great ideas of Judaism. These are the recognition of God as King of the world; as Judge who remembers the actions as well as the thought of men and nations, and rewards and punishes each; and finally, as the revealer of history, who in the end of time will have gathered all men unto Him in righteousness, as the children of Israel were summoned unto Him amid the trumpet blasts of Sinai when a covenant of love and law was drawn up between God and Israel.

The holy days beginning tonight will end with Simchas Torah (Joy of the Torah), Saturday, Oct. 23. The Day of Atonement will be followed by Succouth, which will be observed for eight days.

Books—And a Number of Things

—By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE—

It is curious how we change with the years. When I was a youngster there was nothing I enjoyed more in a theater than a dinner-table scene. To watch the actors eat—well, that was realism plus. Now it bores me to tears.

Is it, I wonder, because the players used to do it so well, and now do it so badly? Or did I enjoy the spectacle as a child because I myself was hungry and longed to share the meal upon the stage.

* * *

Nauseating

The other night, forced to remain in the city, I finished what I had to do a little before 9 o'clock, and realized that I could get to a certain theater in time to see a performance that I felt sure would interest me. And right after the curtain went up a whole family began to devour sandwiches and chicken salad.

I had just consumed a hurried meal, and the spectacle of these people doing what I had so recently done almost nauseated me. I knew that they must have dined only a couple of hours before, and I wondered how they could simulate hunger so well, until I began to watch them closely, one at a time.

And then I observed that they were only pecking at their food. A casual glance would not have indicated this. It was only when one studied each separate performer that one discovered the fact.

I thought, foolishly enough, how, if I were an actor in these parlous times, I should go without a real dinner, in order to devour greedily what was served upon the stage at nine o'clock. Mine would be a performance to set the town on fire. It would be so lifelike that the audience would envy me my healthy appetite or become disgusted with my realistic behavior.

I remember with what fervor David Warfield used to devour spaghetti in "The Music Master." I recalled Mrs. Fiske at supper with Lord Steyne in "Becky Sharp." I thought of that farm table in "Way Down East," when the entire family including the farm hands, sat down to a hearty dinner and gobbled up everything in sight. And who does not recall Frank Craven and his tragic meal in "The First Year?"

* * *

Intolerable

But, perhaps Mr. W[illegible] consume half the [illegible] tended to eat. And no doubt Mrs. Fiske only nibbled, and really took nothing at all from the glass supposed to contain champagne. Through some alchemy, known only to the actor, a semblance of eating and drinking was arrived at.

The fact is that eating, per se, is a rather disgusting process. We never see ourselves in the act of performing this function, so we are scarcely conscious of how unattractive we must be to others. It is the actor's difficult business to pretend to do something which he actually does not do; and the better he pretends, yet projects over the barrier of the footlights the belief that he is accomplishing a certain thing, the better actor he is. A photographic performance at a dinner table would be intolerable. Art accomplishes what the camera could never do.

* * *

Long ago there used to be a certain actress in our theater, of whom the [illegible] fact that this star was a "lady." Her family tree was all but placed in the lobby of every theater where she played to prove to the untutored multitude that she came from the finest stock.

* * *

Minors Excelled

Yet, when she appeared in a comedy of manners, somehow — I cannot say why—she never for a moment made [illegible] some of the minor members of her company who, I am certain, had never been in exclusive drawing rooms, simulated grandes dames and ladies of quality far better than she. With all her authority there was something lacking when she attempted to portray a lady, instead of merely being one.

* * *

It was said that the great Duse never used makeup. Yet rouge and powder, and even wigs, are essential in that mysterious world of make-believe behind the proscenium arch. One finds it hard to think that even Duse gained anything by refusing to use artificial means to make her appear more natural. A lady, being merely a lady on the stage, is only dull. When an underbred little cockney causes you to imagine she is a duchess, you know she is an artist.

A NEW MARRIAGE LAW?

Requiring Girls to Know Housekeeping Before Wedding

By Beatrice Fairfax

Help Men in Selecting Wives—What Happened to One Who Wanted a Real Home

SOMEONE WAS TELLING me the other day about a young man who married for a home. He was 32, had a fine start in his profession and made a good income. A home with an attractive wife and one or two attractive healthy babies began to look good to him.

The chronic helplessness of men when they go wife seeking is enough to rouse the compassion of a hungry tiger. They fall for all kinds of spurious decorations, which have no more to do with securing a home and real happiness than the meringue on lemon pie has to do with real nourishment.

They fall for garnishings, poor fares, and pass up real things!

ATHLETIC IDEAL

The young professional man I began to tell you about fell for an athletic's ideal. The girl he picked was a splendid golfer. She could swim, ride and play tennis. She was as healthy as a morning glory—and knew as little about housekeeping as one of them.

Once or twice, before they were married, she had made for the young doctor very poor tea. She didn't know, apparently, that tea must be made with boiling water. But he was very much in love and he didn't realize that poor housekeeping would become chronic.

A cook was hired, but the bride didn't know what to buy or how to order, and the cook was so wasteful that too much of the income went into the garbage pail.

The silly young wife, with her cups and ribbons for this and that sports achievement, thinks it's all "terribly amusing."

The idea of anyone imagining for a moment that she knew anything about housekeeping! It's just too absurd!

"Why not go to a domestic science institute and learn something about keeping house?" the young doctor's older sister asked, with a little acid in her voice.

ACQUIRE HOUSEKEEPING

"But I haven't a minute." And the bride reeled off a string of sports and engagements that kept her going all day.

The husband, between seeing patients and going to hospitals, is picking up meals in restaurants and cafes, an his dyspepsia is getting worse daily. It's getting so bad, in fact, that he is going to spend his two weeks' vacation in a sanitarium in the hope of improving. Meantime, his golfer golfs.

We are said, and with some truth, to be a law-abiding people but we could do with another law on the statute books—one to the effect that some slight knowledge of housekeeping be required of a girl before she undertakes the responsibility of marriage.

Dosn't Want to Marry Just Yet

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am the owner of a good (if second hand) car, draw a fair to middling pay envelope and don't make a girl cross-eyed to look at me—so I've been told. I like girls, have loved a few; but I don't want to marry yet. Times are uncertain, and the right girl hasn't come along so far. But I find after I've called on a girl a few times that she begins to get serious. One has wept, one has confessed her love, and worse, her mother and dad begin to throw out hints which drive me to the tall timber. What would you advise—cut 'em all out, declare you're not wife hunting or make an iron-clad rule not to see any one girl oftener than once in several weeks?

*BACHELOR

Dear Bachelor: You've not met the right type of girl yet. Scores of them fool just as you do. They want a friend to go about with but they don't want to give up their pay envelopes and settle down to matrimony just yet. Don't think of cutting 'em out or taking to the tall timber. Continue to look, and when you meet a girl you like you can tell her, with a grain or two of humor, that it's a pal you're looking for rather than a sweetheart. But O, my dear young friend, thousands of young men find themselves walking to the altar by that pal plank.

Marriage of Second Cousins

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am under the impression that the marriage of cousins is legal in some states and not in others. I am particularly interested to know whether second cousins may marry, and in which state.

F. M.

Dear F. M.: There is no legal impediment to second cousins marrying in any state. But to make sure there is not some queer bue law on your particular statute books, it might be well to call up the marriage license bureau, in the city from which you have written and inquire.

Tasty Ways of Serving Tomatoes

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

CENTURIES before Europe knew anything about tomatoes they were growing on the slopes of the Andes Mountains. These love-apples were considered poisonous and grown only as a garden curiosity. They were small and wrinkled. By cultivation and propagation, their size has been increased from four to eight times. Since about 1840 the status of the tomato has changed from that of a botanical freak to a highly accepted food.

Although the markets are supplied with tomatoes, practically all the year round, the home-grown ones are the most delicious and by far the most economical. Make the most of them before frost. They are delicious raw with bacon and toast either for breakfast or made into sandwiches for luncheon.

Tomato Tulips

Peel firm tomatoes of uniform size. Place each one on a lettuce leaf, stem end down. With the point of a sharp knife, make a one-eighth inch incision through the middle of the tomato. Make three slashes in each half. Still with the point of the knife cut carefully underneath each petal-shaped piece. Fold back the six petals. Now you have a small round tomato ball in the center with six petals turned back from it. Sprinkle with salt. Serve with a thick mayonnaise.

Stewed Tomatoes

(If raw tomatoes are used they should be first boiled for 10 minutes with a pinch of soda). To a No. 2 can of tomatoes, or an equal amount of fresh tomatoes, add 2 tbsps. butter which has been creamed with 2 tbsps. flour and 1 tsp. sugar. Add salt and pepper to taste. Let cook 10 minutes over a very low flame. Serve in sauce dishes.

Stewed tomatoes may sound a bit plebeian, but they certainly hit the spot on a chilly autumn day.

Tomato Relish

1 onion
1 green pepper
1 bunch celery
3 cups tomatoes
2-3 cup vinegar
2 tbsps. sugar
1 tbsp. salt
2 all-spice berries

Chop vegetables fine. Mix with other ingredients and boil slowly for an hour and a half. If a more highly seasoned relish is desired add a little mustard or cayenne.

Since either canned or fresh tomatoes may be used in this relish it can be made up when needed and thus relieve the housewife that much during the heavy canning season.

Etiquette for Seating on Auto Ride

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS BEEKMAN

A young man friend and myself have at different times invited guests for a drive in his car. I would be very grateful if you would advise me of my correct position in the car, particularly in the case when we ask a married couple, friends of my friend? Sholud I be seated in the back seat with the other lady?

B.

If you are inviting a married couple they should not sit together in the back seat. Either you sit in the back seat with the wife or with the husband. Usually the two men wish to chat together and they sit in the front seat, you and the wife sitting together in the back seat. What shouldn't be done is for you and your man friend to sit together in the front seat for this doesn't graciously share the hospitality.

A Hospitable Gesture

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

One of my girl friends never uses the conventional "Thank you, come again," and so forth when her guests are leaving. I wonder if this is a fault or a virtue of originality? I have heard several of her guests mention the fact that they are never invited back to her home. My question is—is it necessary to invite your parting guests back again?

NORMAN

This, I am sure you agree with me, is "a fault of originality." Certainly there is no virtue about being inhospitable, ungracious, especially to the point when the lack of indication of hospitality, the lack of graciousness, is so pronounced that it is comented on by one's guests.

The Marry-Go-Round

Love's Little Errors

By HELEN ROWLAND

PROPOSING is out of fashion. People just wake up to find themselves engaged. That is, the girl finds herself engaged—and the man wakes up.

Helen Rowland

* * *

The man who has been the life of the party the night before is usually the man who has the worst headache next morning—just as the man who has been the most desperately in love comes out of it filled with the bitterest cynicism.

* * *

The hardest thing to make any man believe is that when a woman says that she is "through" she sometimes actually means it and is not just waiting to be kissed and coaxed to begin all over again.

* * *

That faraway, complacent smile on a man's face may mean that he is thinking something nice about you, but it more often means that he has just thought of something nice about himself.

* * *

The worst thing about teaching a woman to drive a car, says a regretful married man, is that it turns her from an admiring dependent into a sarcastic critic.

* * *

Mistaking a Lothario for a Lochinvar is the fatal error which nearly every woman makes once in her life, and which an idealist keeps right on making.

* * *

Some men manage to sail along safely on the placid waters of bachelorhood until they are in the late forties—and then run into a fog and are wrecked on the reef of a foolish marriage to a little gold digger less than half their age.

* * *

LESS THAN HALF HIS AGE

Marriage, says Reno Ruth, is just a non-stop flight of fancy, ending in a nose dive for the divorce court.

Birdlife Back in Style

BIRDLIFE is back in the millinery world. A new Reboux model of dark green felt has a tiny red bird holding the turned-up brim at the wide back.

Flowing Lines

THE PLEA for pleats has been answered by designers who are showing lovely evening frocks with pleated skirts cut on flowing lines. A new frock of coral pink satin has a high waistline and the skirt fullness is achieved by narrow pleating. Coral bugle beads in scalloped formation gives emphasis to the hipline.

Different Sleeves

JUST WATCH and see how many different sleeves the new fashions will bring forth. Short sleeves wil still persist for early Autumn models as witness a frock of dark brown crepe with sleeves to the elbow made of ruffles in brown, white and mustard georgette.

When Rouge Is Not Used

BRIGHT RED rouge won't do when teeth have yellowed, makes them look worse. A raspberry tint is better. Dentists have a way of whitening teeth now, unless the dentine has worn away. And of course the twice-daily scouring is in order. After breakfast and at bedtime.

For Bantam Weights

BANTAM WEIGHTS who would put a few anatomical cushions over their bones need starchy foods. Let them begin the day with a bowlful of cereal well trimmed with sugar and cream. And a glass of cream and milk, half and half to luncheon and dinner rations. At bedtime, a bowlful of crackers and milk will help to put fat on the ribs and elsewhere.

Low-Heeled Shoes

Milk Is Good for Adults Daily

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

INFANTS do not possess that resistance to infection that most adults have. Age enjoys the benefits of experience. Contacts of all sorts have given strength of mind and body.

Dr. Copeland

We do not fall victims to disease because our tissues have learned how to guard themselves, but the tiny baby has not this advantage. Its tissues are delicate and its powers of resistance are weak.

It took ages to discover why so many babies died. Only a quarter of a century ago, one-fourth of all the babies born in New York City died before reaching one year of age.

But about that time Mr. Nathan Straus proclaimed the importance of clean, germless milk. Then the picture changed. The distributors listened to him, and pasteurized milk was made available for every household. What a blessing!

Among the marvels of nature is the provision for feeding the baby. First, mother's milk is a perfect food.

But suppose it is perfect, how readily it could become poisonous if it had to be extracted artificially and submitted to the contamination which cow's milk had in the old days. Taken from the breast as nature taught the baby to get it, the milk is almost sterile, free from dangerous germs.

For one reason or another unfortunately, some mothers cannot supply the required quality or quantity of milk? and in such cases resort must be had to substitutes, the basis of which is cow's milk.

Greatest care then must be used in determining the source of supply. In a great city like Boston, New York, or Chicago, where alert health officials guard the milk and reliable distributors supply it, there is no danger. Health officers in those cities and in many other communities will gladly tell the mother what distributors supply dependable milk.

Daily True Story

The Left-Hand Side

WHEN DETECTIVE TOM NOLAN came home he noticed that the house next door, which had been vacant for several weeks, was occupied. A moving van was just leaving and a few articles of furniture stood near the door.

"Who are our new neighbors?" he asked his mother.

"I think they're English," replied Mrs. Nolan. "They have one of those English cars. You know with the little hoods."

"Well, we're Irish, and they'd better stay on their own side of the fence," said Tom, laughing. "Hush," answered his mother, "I'm sure they're very nice people."

When Tom left home the next morning he noticed a car standing in front of the house next door. There was something odd about it. Not only the fact that it was English make. There was something else that didn't seem usual. Then Tom had it. The car was faced the wrong way, with the left-hand side next to the curb.

"Just like an Englishman," said Tom to himself. "They always drive on the left-hand side of the street. I'd better tell them about it before the cop on the beat gives them a ticket."

CAUTIOUS GIRL

A girl answered, [illegible] a very pretty girl. He had expected a man and for a moment he was a little disconcerted. But finally he managed to say:

"I live next door and I thought I'd tell you you'd better turn your car around. It's faced the wrong way and the policeman on the beat may give you a ticket for a traffic violation."

"Thank you," replied the girl. "We're from England, you see and I forgot. I had been told about it, but it was just habit for me to leave it like that. I'll turn it around."

Tom would have liked to offer to do it for her but wasn't sure he was familiar with the mechanism of English cars, so he merely stood around awkwardly while the girl turned the car. Then he mustered up enough courage to say, "Seeing as we're already acquainted I needn't introduce myself?" He told her his name and then added: "I'm a city detective and if you ever have any trouble—I mean if you ever get a traffic ticket let me know and I'll take care of it."

Helen, for she had told him her name was Helen Lakewood, [illegible] "I'm afraid I'll get lots of them. Mother didn't want me to bring the car but I like to drive. The trouble is I don't know where to go around here."

Tom took the chance. "Can't I show you?" he asked. "I mean there are some nice drives near here and I'd be glad to show you how to reach them."

The [illegible] they [illegible] together [illegible] keep on the right hand side of the street. Tom told her time and again "You know you're not in England now." Helen [illegible] and every now and then would turn over to the left hand side.

Their friendship ripened quickly and soon reached the stage where they were calling each other by their first names. Then Tom bought a car.

Helen soon familiarized herself with the differences in the driving apparatus.

"You're right," she said. "I do like this car better than mine. It's faster and it rides easier."

Tom didn't dare look at her when he answered. "To tell the truth," he said, "I got it for you. I mean I'd like you to drive it all the time."

TOM'S NEW CAR

Helen didn't answer and a few minutes later, he said, "I hope you understand that I wasn't trying to—I mean I like to ride with you and it wasn't right for a man to use a girl's car all the time and I was wondering—"

The blast of a traffic whistle cut him short. Helen suddenly stopped the car. Tom looked up to see a traffic policeman who had been on duty at a crossroads coming toward them.

"What's the idea?" began the cop. "What do you mean?" asked Tom. "Driving on the left hand side of the road," answered the policeman. "What are you—a couple of Britishers?" Tom could have shown his shield and ended the incident. But instead he said, "Yes, we're English. But it won't happen again." The policeman waved them on.

Tom turned to Helen. "You were thinking about what I said," he told her. "And if you hadn't cared you wouldn't have forgotten to drive on the right hand side. Isn't that right?"

Helen didn't look at him. She merely blushed and nodded.

New Features in Paris Suit for Winter

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, Sept. 30—A woolen necklace instead of a fur collar, a blouse of lacy wool and a belt buckle as big as your hand—these are some of the features of a new Paris suit that is one of the winter's successes.

Chantal is the designer. The suit itself is of broadcloth, a material whose popularity has just been revived recently. Broadcloth appears in this winter's Paris collection of clothes not only for dressy suits, but for afternoon coats, sports dresses, evening wraps and evening gowns.

Chantal's suit, as the sketch shows, keeps to solid lines. There are no draped or bias or fitted effect anywhere. The sleeves are wide at the armeyes and taper down to narrowness at the wrist. The pockets on the hips are so cut that they protrude from the jacket.

The color scheme is especially [illegible]. The suit is in Italian green, the blouse, knitted of [illegible] and wool, is in bright yellow, the necklace, made of three [illegible] of wool fabric, is in black, yellow and green. The same three colors, appear in the [illegible] of the skirt.

Two wide bands of silver metal combine to make both the buckle at the front of the suit and the clasp for the wool necklace. Each of them is about six [illegible]

Are you handicapped at the office?

To put in a full day's work, you need a full man's strength. A man, half-sick from constipation, has less chance to succeed in today's keen competition.

This insidious condition often causes headaches, loss of energy, sleeplessness. It takes the edge from your working hours.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MOTHER—Watch this Girl . . . This is the Time You Should be on Your Guard

"My back bothers me," she quietly complains . . . "I guess I'll lie down." Have you ever felt this way yourself?

Despondent, Listless Girls

SHE LOOKS despondent, worn-out and depressed. Young girls budding into womanhood often get quiet and wistful. Lassitude overtakes them. They should be watched!

"I have a headache," they quietly complain. "My back bothers me. . . . I guess I'll lie down."

These are the symptoms, mother. And you should be on your guard.

During this "trying time" every young girl needs the helpful benefit of a strengthening medicine like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Neglect now only invites suffering and unhappiness later on. Pain destroys beauty. Worry ruins the disposition.

That's why so many attractive young women become faded prematurely. The pretty girl of 18 becomes a languid lady at 25.

Suffering isn't natural. Remember that. It may be brave and heroic . . . but it's unnecessary.

When your daughter becomes tired and listless . . . won't you give her Vegetable Compound Tablets . . . just as other mothers do? For over fifty years this medicine has been considered a SAFE and ACCEPTED household remedy.

The very fact that it's been in use a long, long time, gives women extra confidence. They know it must be good . . . or so many women wouldn't take it.

And how true that is! For our records show that 98 out of every 100 women who write us actually report benefit from the strengthening treatment of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of either the tablets or the liquid. Don't postpone for another day the blessed relief this medicine brings.

"MARY FAITH" -:- -:- By Beatrice Burton

Kim Returns to Ask Mary for Divorce

"I'm going to let you stay in the office all the time, Mrs. Farrell," she said to Mary Faith when she came to work that first hot June morning. "Sometimes the other girls go out to take dictation or do typing in the other offices of the building. Sometimes they fill in as substitutes when the regular stenographers are ill or on vacation. But Jean tells me that you want to be as quiet as possible."

She gave Mary Faith a desk near the big windows that looked out into the lobby of the building. And there Mary Faith sat eight hours a day, typing lawyers' briefs, manuscripts, letter, anything that came her way.

Once again her days were filled with the click of typewriter keys the ringing of the telephone, the slam and rattle of filing cabinet drawers, the sound of the downtown traffic outside the front windows of the office

Every morning she packed her lunch in the cool breezy kitchen of the flat—usually two tomato sandwiches and a thermos bottle of the coffee that was left over from breakfast. She ate it, sitting at her desk, with a book from the library lying open on her typewriter before her

Walked Part Way

Every night she walked part of the way home because Dr Thatcher had told her that she ought to take plenty of exercise She and Kim's mother would get supper together and afterward when the dishes were done they would stroll around Haltnorth Park or go to the moving picture theater a block from home

"For a couple of deserted women we get along very well, don't we?" Mary Faith sometimes asked cheerfully when they were walking long side by side through the warm breathing darkness of the summer night. "I wonder what Kim would think if he knew that we were still living in the flat."

They never heard from him

"That's because we've had the telephone taken out," Mrs. Farrell decided. "He's probably tried to call our number, and because he can't get it he undoubtedly thinks we've moved out."

"He could find out by telephoning Aunt Ella or Mrs. Puckett," Mary Faith reminded her "We'll hear from him pretty soon Certainly he'll begin to wonder where you are and whether you're all right or not."

Roses Withered

But the June roses withered and died in Haltnorth Park and July came in, bringing with it midsummer heat that was like a breath of a blast furnace, and still they did not hear from Kim

One night they came home from the picture show and found him sitting in his roadster in the street outside the apartment

When he saw them he got out of it and came across the sidewalk to them. In the fan of light from the vestibule he looked very big and handsome in a pale gray suit that Mary Faith had never seen before At first she thought he had come back to her and her knees turned to water and her heart beat like a trip-hammer

"Why, Kim!" she said simply

"I want to talk to you, Mary Faith." He gave her a cold, level look from his gray eyes, and turned to his mother. "How are you, mother, and what are you doing here? Until tonight I thought you were safe and sound in Garrettsville with Aunt Ella."

"No. I'm safe and sound right here where I belong," said his mother. "Mary Faith and I thought we'd be more comfortable here, so after you left we stayed on."

"How do you manage it?" He followed them into the flat and waited while they turned on the lights in the little sitting room. Then he sat down on the arm of the Turkish rocker just inside the door, balancing his gray hat on one knee.

Mary Answered

It was Mary Faith who answered him. "I got a job, Kim," she said, "and we cut down expenses here. We had the telephone taken out and we stopped eating meat and doing a lot of other little things that meant spending money. We get along very nicely, don't we, Mrs. Farrell.

"We certainly do. We may not have all the luxuries of life," admitted Kim's mother, "but at least we're not accepting charity from anybody, and we're not stuck in a boarding house or a miserable country town..."

Kim wasn't listening to her His eyes were on Mary Faith's face.

"Did you send sixty dollars to McIntrae and Westover about a month ago?" he asked of her.

"I did, Kim. I knew that you wanted to send it yourself, in all probability, but that you were too stiff-necked ever to do it, and so I sent it for you. Why do you want to know about it, Kim? Have you heard from Mr. McIntrae?"

He nodded his blond and handsome head. "He sent for me last Friday," he said. "He told me that he admired the spirit that prompted me to return that money, and pulled a lot of that sort of talk on me. I didn't know what he was driving at but I had brains enough to keep my mouth shut. He told me he thought I'd learned my lesson, and then he told me I could come back to work for him if I wanted to."

"And did you?"

"Of course. I was starving to death down there in the Towers Building. If I hadn't gone back to him I'd have had to get a job somewhere else...For a week I've been wondering about that money, and tonight it occurred to me that you might have sent it to him. I knew that you and Jack Maldon were the only two people who knew that I never turned it in at the office. I telephoned Mrs. Puckett's, but she told me that she hasn't seen you in weeks. So I came around here."

"And are you going to stay here now, Kimberley?" his mother asked him.

"No." His lips came together with a snap. "No—I'm more sure than ever that it was a mistake for Mary Faith and me to be married. I came here tonight because I wanted to talk to her about divorcing me. It's not right for us to be tied up to each other when we've stopped caring for each other. You feel that way about it yourself, don't you, Mary Faith?"

Mary Faith sat in rigid agony on the very edge of her chair, her hands clasped tightly in her lap

Her dark blue eyes were very big in her white face and there were faint shadows under them. Her lips scarcely moved as she spoke

"I don't know, Kim."

"You don't know?" He was exasperated. "What do you mean, you don't know?"

No Divorce

"Well, I don't believe in divorce, Kim. And don't you remember what we promised each other the day we were married"—To live together all our lives."

"Look here, Mary Faith, I'm not going to sit here and argue the fine points of the marriage service with you," said Kim, dismissing his marriage vows with a wave of his hand. "I came here to ask you to divorce me. I don't care about you the way I did, and you seem to be getting along fairly well without me. You have my mother on your side..."

"You talk as if I were your enemy, and I'm not," Mary Faith interrupted him quietly. "I love you, Kim, and I'm not going to give you up to that Janet-woman without a struggle. Last year when you came to me and told me you couldn't live without her I gave you up—and three months later you married me. Now you want to give me up, and marry her I suppose.... But I think you ought to wait a while and find out how you really feel about her and about me. Time can settle a lot of things that nothing else on earth can settle, Kim."

He lost his temper then. "You talk like a fool," he said, furious with anger. "You talk to me as if I were a child that didn't know its own mind. Now see here, I'm going through with this thing—"

Have to Do It

"All right, Mary Faith broke in upon him once more. "You'll have to do it, Kim. I care for you too much to give you up, and besides, I know you'll not be happy with that girl. You don't love her.... You just think that you do because she follows you around and it flatters you to have her do it. If you really loved her the way you think you do you would have married her 'way last fall when you were as free as air, Kim Farrell!"

She got up and started out of the room, and he looked after her wondering how a creature so yielding and gentle by nature, could be so stubborn and determined all at once. At the door she turned and faced him once more

"If you feel like this about her in six months I'll listen to you, Kim," she said "It's July now. You come to me again in February."

In February the baby would be a month old

The months of the summer dragged by. Heat glimmered above the pavements of Spring st. every day in a parched August. The long days were all alike to Mary Faith except that one day she might have lettuce and ryebread sandwiches in her lunch and the next day there might be deviled egg and white bread. One week she might be reading "The Great Gatsby" and the next one she might have "Joanna Godden" open on her typewriter while she ate her lunch

Labor Day

On the first Monday in September—Labor Day—it rained as it always does on holidays, and Mrs Farrell went down to Garrettsville on the bus to spend a week with Aunt Ella

She came back to town on the following Monday with yards and yards of white cloth of different kinds—flanelette for the baby's nightgowns, sheer muslin for the tiny dresses, and soft cotton for the underthings

VALENTINE ✦ A Novel of Love's Disillusion ✦ BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

But the chicken and fresh baked angel food would make up! She slid the blue, sad looking bird into the oven, and lit the flame. It would look different when it was cooked, all brown and crackly, and juicy under the brown bubbly skin

Now for the angel food

It was a lot of work, but it did look good. She poured it carefully into its pan, slid it into the oven under the chicken The chicken was as blue as when she put it in It didn't seem to be cooking at all. She turned up the flame as far as it would go, and went downstairs to see if there was any mail. She was a little homesick. A letter from Aunt Julia would help

There was nothing from Aunt Julia, but besides the two long envelopes, that looked like bills, for Joe, was a square, thick, creamy one postmarked Hollywood

From Marjorie!" The first word from Marjorie since she wrote, announcing her marriage to Joe Sitting on the inside stairs of the apartment house, Val opened her letter and began to read

Val turned the pages with almost feverish intensity. She had been so thrilled over Marjorie's marriage, she did so so want Marjorie to be thrilled over hers

In the very first line Marjorie said she was. But every time she mentioned Joe's name it seemed to remind her of something she wanted to write about her Frankie and each time she mentioned Val's home she had to tell her about hers, and the last two pages of the letter were nothing more than a detailed description of her own apartment, from the Dresden china shepherdess lamp in her bedroom to the blue and white cross-bar dishtowels in her blue and white kitchen

And then, on the bottom of the last page, in Marjorie's worst scrawl

"Guess who I bumped into at Coconnut Grove when Frankie and I and another couple were dancing? Lester Sherwood!

"LAUGH, CLOWN—"

"He came right over and was very nice. He was with two fellows were are in pictures, and they had three girls. One of them is a star, but I don't know her name. I told him about you being married, and, Val, I wish you could have seen his face. He went chalky white, and then he turned red, and then white again He made me repeat it twice and then he got up from the table and said he would have to go back to his crowd

"He sang, half under his breath, 'Laugh, clown, laugh!' Just those words, Val, and often as I have heard Nick Lewis (isn't that the fellow we used to like so much at the Orpheum, hon?) I have never heard it sung so sad. I had tears in my eyes, I did honestly, and I said, to turn it off, 'Don't you know anything newer than that, Les?' and he said, 'Valentine was the only girl I ever loved.' And with that he turned on his heel and went off

"It gave me quite a funny feeling, really it did, Val. He seemed to have been drinking, quite a lot. Of course it isn't your fault, hon, but I guess you ruined his life all right. He is sure good looking

"Well, I must close, wishing you all kinds of happiness and lots of love from Frankie and me to you both. "MARJORIE."

Val read it over again. Sat, lost in thought on the dusty, carpeted stairs.

So long ago. She and Lester . . . that ride they took when Lester threw his arms around her and nearly crushed her, and she pulled away in a silly, schoolgirl panic.

MUSES ON PAST

What a silly she was . . . a lot she didn't know about life and men, then. Why, he must have thought she was crazy! No wonder he was hurt and angry, and never came back

If she hadn't done that it would have changed her whole life. She'd be back home now, married maybe to Lester, seeing Marjorie and [illegible] having gay, exciting times

"Hello, there! Why, what's the matter? Any bad news?"

It was Joe—home early

Joe! Of course there wouldn't have been any Joe if she had stayed in California and married Lester and life without Joe . . . well . . . it wouldn't be living, without Joe

"Why, Val! What's the matter! You act as if we'd been separated for a month!"

"Well, if you don't want me to kiss you, I won't!" she said, laughing, trying desperately to resign her composure.

"Go ahead! Who's complaining? Not me! But something is the matter. What is it? Tell me!"

"Nothing! Nothing at all. You just came along, and I was glad to see you . . . Joe, it's a letter from Marjorie Bemis! I feel awfully funny about it, though it really isn't my fault. But Marjorie met Lester—"

"Lester?"

VAL FEELS HURT

"Yes. He was the one I told you about. We had a falling out, and I never thought that he even considered me after that. But Marjorie saw him the other day and he's drinking terribly and he says I'm the only girl he ever loved, and his life is just ruined So I feel a little funny about it——"

She looked at him, her dark eyes soft and starry, pleading with him to understand

But he laughed and gave her a good natured push

"You don't care any more about his broken heart than I do. You're just thrilled about it!"

"Joe! How can you say such a thing!"

She was hurt. He shouldn't have said it. But that just stirred him to add, "Anyway, you can rest assured that you didn't start him on the downward path, honey. Don't believe all you hear. How's that dinner getting along? I thought I'd come home and lend you a hand—got off early specially to help you!"

Getting Away From World Series Stuff

THE HUNTER'S MOON soon will be hanging like a big golden apple up there in the blue velvet of the heavens. The birch leaves are starting to fall, and the oak. In places the sumac is turning red and the swamp maples are flaunting their crimson. That other [illegible] you find growing in the lowlands is painting its leaves that [illegible] which is both purple and crimson—heart's blood and the [illegible] o' heaven. We know not its name. How we wish when the [illegible] were ours for the plucking we had studied a bit o' botany [illegible] is that poem of Tom Moore's about drinking in youth so [illegible] of Pleasure's bright wine as to leave the vase of learning [illegible] empty as mine"? Whatever that unknown swamp bush is, [illegible] leaves are that blending of purple and crimson which is the [illegible] of rare old Burgundy. And the champagne is creeping into [illegible] air these cool exhilarating mornings. Some of the fodder already is in the shock, as Riley sings, and the frost soon will be on the pumpkin. All Nature is inviting us into the open. The fields call, the woods beckon and the hills command. Obey that impulse. Sunday is a day of rest for most of us. C'mon. Let's go!

DON'T RIDE. WALK. Walking is becoming a lost art among us Americans since automobiles became more plentiful than Democrats. Hennery Ford has shrunk our calves a couple of inches and our chest measurements correspondingly and given us a paunch that in other days belonged only to the alderman and the prize porker at the County Fair. One of the best preserved men we know of is Jim Corbett. Until this year, when illness laid the old champion low, his carriage, his military bearing, his booming voice, bright eye, buoyant spirits and infectious laugh belied his years. No one would have taken the conqueror of the great John L. Sullivan to be within 10 or 15 years of his right age. How did Jim flaunt Father Time? By walking. For years, summer and winter, week in and week out, Jim never let a day pass without at least five miles of brisk walking. He sought the open country when he could. When he couldn't—remember much of Jim's days and nights are spent in vaudeville tours—and he was chained to the city, he did his walking on city pavements. Corbett never took a taxi or trolley to any place he could walk.

THAT'S HOW JIM CORBETT kept his youth and what Izzy Kaplan, the famous photographer, calls his "sax eppeal." Izzy should copy Corbett. Izzy never walks. He's getting so fat he casts a fearful shadow. Nobody loves a fat man, Izzy. You'll have to do some hiking to retain your "sax eppeal."

WALK, DURN YOU, walk. Everybody walk. Everybody walk except the football fans. The football fans fortunate to have an automobile or a friend who has. We'll excuse them from walking if they only will forego their home college game now and then and hit the trail over the New England hills once in a while to see the other fellows play. See New England, football fans. See New England in its robes of flaring crimson and orange purple and amethyst, red and ochre and russet and yellow and brown. The leaves already are turning. Soon autumn's banners will fly from every hillside and New England will be a riot of color. Take the road that winds like a long ribbon over the blue hills of New Hampshire to Hanover, up through the Berkshires to Williamstown. The new four-track road to Worcester and Holy Cross is a pippin. And you fellows from Worcester, Springfield, Portland and other cities, forget your home town games once in a while and hit the open trail for Boston to see Harvard, B. C. and B. U. in action. Half the pleasures of football should be the coming and going. All the delights of the gridiron are not solely in the game itself.

SPEAKING OF FOOTBALL, a whole flock of us are going to wait until Sunday to get our gridiron treat. We are going to wait until Sunday to see football as it should be played. What college baseball is to big league baseball, so college football is to big league football. And we' tell you, folks, if you want to see football "as is football" go to Braves Field on Sunday and see the Boston Braves pry off the National Football League race in this town against Brooklyn. You all know what a galaxy of stars Lud [illegible] has rounded up. An All-American aggregation. But, [illegible] beware of that Brooklyn backfield! If there ever were [illegible] great football backs, Brooklyn has 'em—Benny Friedman and [illegible] Grossman. Friedman is a name to conjure with wherever [illegible] is spoken. One of the greatest backs that ever came out [illegible] the Middle West, the home of great backs. You haven't heard [illegible] much of Grossman. He hails from little Rutgers. But every [illegible] who really knows his football onions knows Jack Grossman [illegible] one of the greatest players that ever wore moleskins. GOMEZ NOT SO 'GOOFY,' SAYS OLD SCRIBE

By DAMON RUNYON

Yankee Stadium, New York, Sept. 30—Goofy Gomez didn't get to see his fiancee [illegible] after [illegible] though before the [illegible] inning of the second game of the World Series, there was [illegible] the press stand [illegible] Goofy [illegible] down town [illegible] of time to [illegible] the second [illegible]

[illegible] the Yankees won [illegible]

"Goofy" Gomez is a left handed pitcher for Colonel Jacob Ruppert's Yankees. His fiancee is Miss June O'Dea, a young lady of considerable pulchritude, who is dancing with a Broadway hit.

(How anybody can call that guy 'Goofy' after seeing Miss O'Dea, is more than I can understand, commented a grizzled baseball scribe, parenthetically.)

FORGOT LOVE

Well, anyway, Miss O'Dea was [illegible] matinee down [illegible] afternoon and mayhap dreaming of Goofy Gomez who [illegible] was pitching left handedly [illegible] the Chicago Cubs, and beyond doubt dreaming of Miss O'Dea.

[illegible] apparently dismisses all extraneous matters from his mind and settles down to [illegible] handing the Chicago Cubs to spells of dizziness and black spots before the eyes, leading the Yanks to a 5 to 2 victory over the National Leaguers.

[illegible]

TRUE LOVE NEVER SMOOTH

The course of [illegible] love [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] Goofy Gomez [illegible] hot foot with his teammates to catch a train for Chicago.

"Goofy" showed us more stuff this afternoon than Bob Grove did in 1929," says Charley Grimm, manager of the Cubs, commenting on the game.

"No wonder he won 24 games in the American League this year."

The Yanks are now 2 to 1 in the betting to win the series. Off the two games here the Cubs are a [illegible] World Series [illegible] may regain their health [illegible] home ground but don't bet on [illegible]

The St. Joseph's T. A. S. amateur boxing show scheduled for tomorrow night has been postponed to a week from Saturday because of the Hebrew holidays.

LOYOLA HERE FOR CLASH WITH B. C.

A long drill this afternoon on Loyola [illegible] with [illegible] Boston College preparation for the Loyola University game at University Heights tomorrow afternoon.

Head Coach Joe McKenney of Boston College was to meet his fellow alumnus Coach Tony Comerford and his Loyola eleven at the South Station this morning.

Coach McKenney will give Matt O'Malley a chance to relieve Ike Ezmunt at tackle during tomorrow's game.

EAGLE BACKS SMALL

The Eagle backfield is going to be the smallest that has represented the Maroon and Gold. [illegible] four men are under five feet [illegible] inches tall. McKenney is confident that their speed will make up for [illegible] of stature.

[illegible] Freitas, the veteran [illegible], will be assisted by three men who saw much action last year, two of them Chesnulevich and Dorgan being regulars and the fourth, Maloney, was a starting back in the Holy Cross [illegible]. Maloney is a fine defensive back.

FREITAS KICKING WELL

McKenney had Freitas kicking yesterday afternoon and he expressed much satisfaction at the improvement in his pupil's prowess.

The alumni held a pre game pep smoker last night in the Tower Building.

The highlight came when Thomas C. Heffernan, president of the [illegible] of 1927 presented the [illegible] Louis J. Gallagher, S. J., president of the college, with a check for $1000, a gift from his class to aid the stadium.

Cubs on Ropes Lose Title Hopes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

New York, Sept. 29

FIRST ROUND

Bill Herman opened with a hit, a plain and honest double.

A ball hopped off Crosetti's mitt and put the Yanks in trouble.

Old Stevie knocked a lengthy fly and Herman counted, stepping high.

Earle Combs was honored with a pass and Sewell got the same.

Lou Gehrig's wallop burned the grass and tied the baseball game.

Bill Dickey smote on hard indeed and so the Yanks were in the lead.

THIRD ROUND

Again the rampant Cubs arose and smote the pellet on the nose.

Old Stevie smacked a two-base hit that just escaped the Ruthian mitt.

Young Demaree hit straight and true and tied the score at two to two.

The best laid plans of mice and men are rudely blasted now and then.

With two men on and two men out they wouldn't let B. Dickey clout.

Instead they let him walk to first, and presently the bubble burst.

Ben Chapman whanged a hit to right and all Chicago said good night.

FIFTH ROUND

Cuyler sent a three-base hit sailing like a bird.

Nothing ever came of it, for he stayed on third.

Hungry Lou arose and socked as the round began.

Dickey swung his club and knocked Lou across the pan.

And that is how a deadly blight has wrecked Chicago hope, and why the little Cub tonight is hanging on the ropes.

TUFTS HOST TO MIDDLEBURY GRID TEAM

Coach Lew Manley puts his Tufts squad through its final workout today in preparation to defending the Jumbos' record of being unbeaten on home territory in five seasons against Middlebury tomorrow at the Oval.

The indicated starting lineup consists of Oliver and Grinnell, ends; Batchelder and Woodworth, tackles; Capt. Cochrane and Bump Spaulding, guards; Parkhurst, center; Sammy Clayman, quarter; Uanna and Staffon, halves, and Pat Clark, full.

Except for Oliver, Grinnell and Woodworth, each a sophomore, every player is a veteran.

Pat Clark has been booting punts high and far in last minute drills for the opener.

EARL NIKKEL AT FULL FOR ELI

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 30 (INS)—Earl Nikkel, whose fame at Yale hitherto rested chiefly on his stardom in Basketball, was one of a half dozen aspirants abruptly promoted to varsity or near-varsity berths on the football eleven today by head coach Mal Stevens.

A wind-up scrimmage yesterday in preparation for the Bates game tomorrow left much to be desired in the way of offense and Stevens placed Nikkel at fullback in lieu of Hughes, Johnson at center in Malin's place, Bronkie to guard, Holihan to tackle, and Clem Williamson to halfback. The new combination scored twice in 15 minutes.

Yankees Favored to Drub Cubs in Chicago

By JOE CASHMAN

New York, Sept. 30—The World Series caravan is headed westward towards Chicago today. It isn't likely to return this way this year.

The Yankees are riding high, wide and handsome with two victories in as many starts to their credit. The Cubs are shot full of as many holes as a sieve.

The American Leaguers should have little trouble taking two out of three to bring the engagement to a close in the Windy City, and it wouldn't be surprising if they made a clean sweep of the struggle and thus run their string of consecutive series triumphs to an even dozen.

Even granting that the Cubs long have been and again will be 100 per cent more formidable in their own back yard than on alien territory, it is impossible to figure them winning more than one out of three from the Yanks at Wrigley Field, judging from what they showed in the first two games in the local stadium.

CUBS OUTCLASSED

Charlie Grimm and his boys just weren't in the same class with the McCarthymen here, and class will tell just as strongly in Chicago or, for that matter, in Timbuctoo, as in Gotham.

The Cubs used their two best mound bets, and outhit and outfielded the Yanks in the first two games, yet they lost the first, 12 to 6, and the second, 5 to 2.

ROOT OR MALONE NEXT

In the next two games they must call on Charlie Root and Pat Malone, neither of whom, by the greatest stretch of the imagination, can be expected to be any more effective than Bush or Warneke. And they have nobody on the bench who could improve their attack or defense.

The Yanks, on the other hand, even though they won each of the first two games easily, were never at their very best for a moment in either battle. They can't possibly be any further off form in the remaining games and they should improve considerably, though, for the sake of the Cubs and the reputation of the National League, we hope they don't.

Thus far the classic has been the most drab, uninteresting and one-sided ever played. A manager of a second division club that didn't play better than even the Yanks in the past two days, would fire his whole gang if he could find nine ditch-diggers to take the field. He would take school children in preference to the Cubs, if he had any sense.

Babe Ruth & Co. would be soft picking for the Red Sox at the pace they have travelled to date against the Cubs, and the senior circuit champions are either weaker than the poorest club in the junior loop or else they're scared to death of the New York sluggers.

CHI CLUB FOLDS UP

We incline towards the latter theory, despite the vaunted courage of the Windy City entry. For, even if the Chicagoans weren't the strongest outfit in their circuit, they certainly couldn't help but put up a better exhibition than the Cubs are doing, if it hadn't lost its heart.

Ruth, Gehrig, Dickey and the rest of the New Yorkers are dangerous batters, but the highest hitting average ever compiled wouldn't entitle a pitcher to have such a severe case of jitters facing the compiler, as all four of the Cubs' flingers displayed in the first two games.

Bush, Grimes, Smith and Warneke twirled as though they were convinced they didn't have a chance. Naturally, they didn't, when they felt that way about it.

The Cubs, especially their hurlers, must regain a little self-confidence or they'll not only be defeated but disgraced as well.

SECOND GAME AVERAGE

The second game was much faster and snappier than the opener, but at its best it was just another ball game, no better nor worse than the average battle staged at Braves Field or Fenway Park during the regular season.

Gomez and Warneke were very good in spots and not so good in others. Neither was the pitcher he was during the greater part of the campaign.

As in the first game, the Cubs took the lead yesterday in the first inning. Then, after the Yanks had gone ahead in their half, the National Leaguers came back and tied the count in the third.

Once more, though, the Yanks went in front in their half. After that the Cubs called it a day, one inning sooner than they gave up the chase on the previous afternoon.

All the remaining games must be vastly superior to the two played here or this series will go down as one that would have been better left unplayed.

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 30—Charles Rolfe of Swampscott, Mass., was elected captain of the Dartmouth cross-country team here today.

MRS. VARE, VIRGINIA VAN WIE IN GOLF FINALS

GLENNA PUTS OUT CANADA STAR

Peabody, Mass., Sept. 30 (AP)—Glenna Collett Vare and Virginia Van Wie, two of the most consistent golfers in the country, will battle for the 36th women's national championship in tomorrow's 36 hole match at the Salem Country Club as a result of today's semi-finals. They have met many times before and Mrs. Vare has defeated the Chicago girl with monotonous regularity.

Mrs. Vare defeated Ada MacKenzie of Canada, 5 and 4.

Virginia Van Wie of Chicago gained the title round by defeating Charlotte Glutting of Short Hills, N. J., 4 and 3.

Mrs. Vare gained her seventh championship round since 1922 on the 14th where her four, one over par, gave her a five and four victory.

VAN WIE LEADS AT TURN

Virginia Van Wie of Chicago laid a stymie for Charlotte Glutting, Short Hills, N. Y., to break their eight-hole deadlock and go to the turn one up on the long hitting youngster who chipped Enid Wilson, British champion, out of the title quest yesterday.

Miss Van Wie laid a stymie for her opponent to win the ninth with a par four. Miss Glutting missed the cup by several inches trying to curl around it and had to take a third one for a five. This break gave the Chicago girl a one up lead, making the turn.

Miss Van Wie continued one up on Miss Glutting by halving the 11th, where both encountered trouble. Virginia half-topped her drive into a trap on the fairway and played a mashie shot getting out. She put a brassie shot against the wind to 30 feet of the green. Her chip shot was 15 feet over the pin and she two-putted.

Charlotte hooked her tee shot into the gallery and her ball bounced off a spectator into the rough. She played out well and put her brassie 40 yards short of the green. She chipped to within 12 feet and holed her second putt.

SCORE 3 AT 12TH

Both got their threes on the 154 yard 12th. Miss Van Wie drove to the green 20 feet away, and Miss Glutting was almost with her. Both had easy second putts.

FIVE TERRIERS ON BENCH

Boston University will be without the services of three regular linemen and two capable reserves for its opening game with the U of New Hampshire at Nickerson Field, Weston, tomorrow. The loss of these men will make the Wildcats favorites to win.

The three regulars who are out are Herb Semino, Johnny Murphy and Lou Lobel. The other two are Homer Beserofsky, 190 pound guard, and Bill Fitzmaurice, promising sophomore fullback.

Losing Semino and Murphy, the two regular ends comes as a stiff blow. The end positions have been bothersome all this fall as there is a lack of capable reserves. Semino has a bad knee and is limping bad- ly while Murphy is in poor shape and will have to undergo a physical examination tomorrow morning.

Lobel, who has been a regular tackle for two years, and Homer Beserofsky will be unable to play because of the Jewish Holidays, while Fitzmaurice has a bad ankle and will not be able to get into a uniform for at least another week.

Bill Cowell's Wildcats seem to have an Indian sign on the Terriers and for that reason also they will be favored to win tomorrow. The teams have been playing against each other for four years and the best B. U. could do was to get two tie games, the other two affairs going to the Durham eleven.

BOWDOIN GRID TEAM PICKED

Brunswick, Me., Sept. 30—Coach Charlie Bowser today named the line-up which will represent Bowdoin in the game with Massachusetts State here tomorrow.

Hank Richardson is at fullback, with Don Reid, Heinler Hubbard, Bob Winchell and Witoldo Bakanowsky alternating at halfback. The quarterback is Charlie Burdell.

In the line Bowdoin has Capt. Johnny Milliken at center. Carl Ackerman and Bob Torrey at guard and Stan Low and Charlie McKenney, tackles. The ends will be covered by Stan Sargent and Al

Canzoneri Kayoes Kirsch in 3d Round

New York, Sept. 30 (US)—Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion, showed to a distinct advantage in his first New York non-title bout when he stopped Lew Kirsch, young East sider, in 1 minute and 29 seconds of the third round of their windup at the Queensboro Stadium.

Kirsch gave Tony a rugged tussle for the first two rounds, but didn't stop his advances.

CUBS' MASTER-MINDS WORRIED

That's Good-Time Charlie Grimm (center) scowling as he watches his Cubs take a second beating from the Yanks. With him are Coach Charlie O'Leary (left) and Coach Corridan (right) who compose the Cubs' board of strategy if any. These three are riding a special West today—probably into more trouble. The Cubs' agony may be over soon.

Waterville, Me., Sept. 30—A signal drill and a forward passing session concluded Colby's preparation for the football game with Trinity College at Hartford tomorrow.

GEHRIG, RUTH NIGHTMARE TO WARNEKE

By JOE CASHMAN

New York, Sept. 30—After striking out Hartnett and Warneke on six pitched balls, Vernon "Lefty" Gomez admitted that it was merely an old Spanish custom.

When asked if he held any fear of the Yankees Lonnie Warneke merely shifted the straw to the other side of his mouth and said, "They're just the same as I am. We all pull on our pants one leg at a time."

This, however, seemed to be a stall, for Warneke appeared to be shaking all over like Gilda Gray when the thumping twins, Ruth and Gehrig, stepped to bat.

With the attendance jumping to 50,709, almost 10,000 more than the first day, Col. Ruppert's grin was better than that of Joe E. Brown, who spent the day with the Yankee owner.

Things are expected to start popping in Chicago, which is nothing new for Chicago, when the carnival opens up there. The Cubs are said to be a fighting team with plenty of intestinal fortitude but haven't shown any signs of it yet. They've shown about as much fight as a couple of high-priced fighters.

Gabby Hartnett hit two doubles in the first game and evidently got the impression that every time he connects it must be for a pair of bases. Gabby tried to reach second on a hit into left field, but Chapman fielded the ball and whizzed it to Crosetti, who had time to smoke a cigarette before Gabby arrived at the keystone sack.

Many of the customers were led to believe that they were over in Brooklyn watching the Dodgers when Sewell and Combs were run down and tagged out. It looked suspiciously like an old Robin play.

Although both teams are trying to do better the series still needs a [illegible] spice. Pepper Martin or someone like that to shove into the spotlight and give the fans something to talk about.

BROWN STARTS AGAINST R. I. ELEVEN

Providence, R. I., Sept. 30—Brown will introduce the public address system in all home football games this season. The Rhode Island State College game, which will be played here tomorrow, will be the first encounter handled under the new system. Announcements will be confined to the callings of the numbers of the ball-carriers and tacklers, the substitutions and the penalties.

Brown is introducing this new system in this section. It was first used last week in the demonstration of the rule changes on Brown Field, and won so much favorable comment that the athletic council voted to use it for all home games.

Coach D. O. "Tuss" McLaughry sent his Brown gridmen through their last hard workout today in preparation for the Rhode Island game which will open the Bruin schedule.

Although Brown has a fine array of sophomore candidates for the team, indications point to a veteran lineup for the start of the tilt tomorrow.

Cubs Should Use "Horse"
Team Has Folded Up
Fear Ruth, Gehrig
Make Present of Runs
Cubs Can Play Better
McCarthy Gets Revenge

'SAY IT ISN'T SO,' CHICAGO THEME SONG

En Route with the World Series Ivory, Sept. 30—I have just been riding on the mechanical horse in the gymnasium of our special World Series train and after I am through with this I think I'll drop in the barbershop and get a twice-over shave—like the [illegible]s just got—and then I'll take a little swim in the swimming [illegible] on our train and have my breakfast.

I was particularly pleased with getting to ride the electric horse, because, as I remember my American history, Calvin Coolidge rode through almost two terms as President of the United States on an electric horse without ever having to go to the whip.

It is a very speedy and intelligent electric horse on our train, and from what I saw in the Yankee stadium yesterday it wouldn't be a bad idea for the ball teams in this World Series to take him to Cubs Park tomorrow and ride him around the bases.

I suppose a lot of the folks will be down to the train to meet Charley Grimm, the manager of the Cubs, and say to him

"Say it ain't so, Charlie, say it ain't so."

Cubs Have Been Licked Before They Started

But it is my bounden duty to report that it is so and in all its harrowing details. An old National Leaguer myself and one who picked the Cubs to win the National League "'way back in March," I feel that I can afford to be brutally frank.

And to be brutally frank the Cubs are allowing themselves to be licked before they start.

They are so doggone afraid that Babe Ruth is going to hit a home run that almost every time the Babe and the Babe's big brother, Lou Gehrig, come to bat, they make the Yanks a present of three or four runs to keep 'em from hitting one homer.

In fine, Ruth, a nice fat old guy, who is going to get spiked by Earl Combs in right field one of these sunny afternoons, is placed in the position of being the bogy man of the series.

It looks as though somebody has told the Chicago boys that "the goblins will git you ef you don't watch out," and so every time Ruth or Gehrig goes up there to take a cut at it, they stick their heads under the pillows.

Billy Herman Has Attack of "Jitters"

This is particularly true of young Billy the Kid Herman. This young man was by way of being about the best second baseman in the National League this year, but somebody must have started him reading the papers or looking at the news reels in the movies.

Because every time Ruth, Gehrig or Dickey goes up there to hit, he seems to develop a sort of palsy. So thus far he has been playing second base like my uncle Luke used to play second fiddle in the Joe Town string band—very sour.

More often than not he has been out of position, and more often than not when he wasn't he might as well have been. You don't need to be a very smart baseball man, or even a baseball man at all, to realize that if the hits are getting by you on your left it might be a pretty good idea to ease over in that direction in advance.

This is not written in a spirit of criticism and I would be the last to even mention it if I didn't know the Cubs were capable of much better baseball.

But I set out to tell you about a fellow named Joe McCarthy coming back to Chicago today. Joe is one of Chicago's own prodigal sons and he is coming back bringing his own fatted calf. You will remember the essential facts of the story of course.

Joe was the manager of the Cubs and doing a great job of it and getting along fine until he bumped into one of these World Series in which his team performed about as Grimm's has been performing to date.

That didn't please the late William Wrigley to any noticeable extent and so before the following season had run its course, McCarthy was out and a fellow named Hornsby was in.

There was a squawk at that heard around the baseball world and much talk of dirty work at the cross roads and undermining. But it probably was no more true in that case than it was in the case of Johnny Evers before Marse Joe or in that of Hornsby himself after him.

FACING HOME FOLKS HARD FOR CUBS

Aboard The Cubs Special Train, En Route to Chicago, Toledo, O., Sept. 30 (AP)—Speeding toward old familiar fields, the twice-thwarted Cubs rose today from their Pullman berths more concerned with the problem of facing the home folks than with the outcome of the World Series with the New York Yankees.

In every mind was the thought of the crowds of rabid faithful who lined the streets of the home town two days after the Cubs won the National League pennant, frantically yelling their names, showering with confetti the open cars they rode in triumph to the civic reception in their honors.

The mayor was there in the reviewing stand and all the notables of the city, proud of their champions, absolutely certain they could not be beaten. No city in the baseball world revers its diamond heroes, worships them quite so intimately and volubly as Chicago.

NOTHING MATTERED

Nothing mattered but that they won. And when they did there was no limit to the heights the heroes ultimately would achieve.

So its not difficult to imagine how the rank and file of the Cubs, from Manager Charley Grimm all the way down to the bat boy, felt coming home to that kind of fandom, beaten in both the first two games in New York, having in their own eyes let down the most loyal, most enthusiastic, most believing fans in all the baseball world.

"It gets you down," one of the regulars said as he poked [illegible] breakfast victuals listlessly. "I don't know how we will face the gang. I guess we've been trying too hard."

Underneath this feeling, however, was the deadliest kind of determination to fight it out with the Yankees to the last.

"This is a tight spot," said Grimm seriously. "But we've been in tight spots before. We won the National League pennant beating the odds. There's no quit in this ball club."

NAMES ROOT

Grimm has named Charley Root, veteran right hander, to pitch Saturday in the first of three games scheduled in Chicago. He believes the Yankees will have a great deal of trouble hitting the sidearm curver there.

"Left hand hitters have a terrible time there because the ball comes up to them straight out of the left center bleachers."

It was pointed out that the five leading clouters of the National League this season, all left hand batters, have averaged sixty points lower in their hitting against Cub right handers in Chicago than they did against pitchers elsewhere. And the Yankee attack boasts five left handers, Earle Combs, Joe Sewell, Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth and Bill Dickey.

Grimm said Mark Koenig, old Yankee shortstop, now with the Cubs, who aggravated his injured [illegible] in the opening game and was replaced yesterday by Bill Jurges, probably was out of the series, but [illegible] insisted otherwise.

PRAISES GOMEZ

"I'll be all right," he said. "I could play today if we had a game on."

In a fanning bee, Grimm paid [illegible] tribute to Vernon Gomez, [illegible] left-hander, who downed the [illegible] yesterday, and Charley Ruffing, winner of the first game.

"Ruffing," he said, "showed me the greatest fast ball I ever saw. Gomez looked better than even Lefty Grove of the Athletics did against us in the 1929 series."

NEVINS BACK FOR BUFFALO CONFLICT

Harvard's squad of 50 grid giants will swing into the green carpeted-enclosure of the Stadium this afternoon for the first time this season.

The first four varsity elevens are slated to run signals up and down the gridiron, as a test of its plays for the game with Buffalo tomorrow.

The afternoon before the opening game perenially marks the first visit of the Harvard eleven to the great stadium where it will meet seven of the most powerful teams in the country on successive Saturdays, among them West Point, Brown, Holy Cross, Dartmouth and Penn State.

The entire practice session will be restricted to signal drills, with the quarterbacks trying their strategy against imaginary foes.

The Crimson kickers will receive a long workout to familiarize themselves with the cross current winds that have won and lost many a game.

START FIRST ELEVEN

Casey will try out his first eleven tomorrow. It was thought for a time that the starting lineup would consist mainly of the members of Team B. But today Casey assured everyone that he would open with the regulars. But every member of the squad will get into the fray.

The Crimson suffered an unforeseen blow when Bradford Simmons was declared ineligible for the season. The loss of Simmons just about put the finishing touches to Harvard's strongest center squad in years. Simmons is a three-sport athlete and his loss will be seriously felt. He will receive another chance to clear off the deficiency at midyears, however, and if he passes then will be eligible for crew next spring.

The loss of Simmons, however, was more than offset by the return of Charlie Nevins, Harvard's first string fullback.

Casey has planned a last minute switch in the backfield which will send Johnny Dean to fullback, and place Nevin at halfback berth when the Crimson is on the defensive.

Dean will back up the line, with Nevin covering the secondary wingbacks. Dean is a deadly tackler and a sure defense against short passes over the middle of the line.

In an attempt to strengthen the center of the line weakened by the loss of three of the four varsity pivotmen, Casey ordered Johnny Lockwood, former freshman captain and center, to be brought up from the junior varsity to the regular squad.

The change was made in the middle of yesterday's scrimmage.

Huskies in Harness -:- Answer Coach's Bark -:- at Huntington

BRAVES MEET GREAT CLUB IN OPENER

On the eve of the professional grid debut the Boston Braves were scheduled for a full day of skull practice, with Coach Lud Wray holding the chalk and pointer today.

On Sunday the Braves trot onto Braves Field to meet Benny Friedman's Dodgers. At that time, it is the earnest wish of Coach Wray, the boys will have a large and fairly accurate knowledge of what the Braves system is all about.

BRAVES MEET FAST CLUB

Unlike college openings, where the local university picks a push-over for its debut, the Braves swing into the routine against a club which, if anything, is better than itself.

For Friedman's Freebooters, be it noted, have already one professional league game to their credit. They have met and licked the Stapleton eleven, while the Braves have met nothing more serious than the local or garden variety of semipro football teams.

HUNTINGTON TO OPEN UP WITH BROCKTON

By JOE MOONEY

Huntington School, which seems forever destined to confusion with Northeastern University and the Y. M. C. A., at least to the writer, embarks on its 1932 grid career against Brockton High on Saturday.

This establishes, more than anything else, that Coach Monty Moore is a grid mentor totally without fear. For the background of Huntington School, both from the point of view of practice and the matter of material, could be covered at length on the back of a postage stamp.

The lettermen available to Huntington this season number exactly two. They are Herb Whittemore of Somerville, who will play tackle to the best of his 235 pound ability, and guard Daniel Lucey, formerly of Natick High.

MOORE A MAGICIAN

The time available for Coach Moore to develop a team for the Brockton opening has been of the shortest. Since the opening of the school, the coach has been granted just 10 days' grace to produce an eleven.

Thirty-five aspiring candidates turned out for uniforms and practice at Huntington Field, Brookline, 10 days ago. Of these, the promising prospects are about six in number.

There is Joseph Paquiero of Natick High, who is a candidate for the left end berth.

Vin Strout, of Milton, will do for the opposite tackle berth from Whittemore.

MUST FIND CENTER

Dan Lucey and Reno Soldati, of Somersworth, N. H., are a pair of first string guards. The pivotman of the line is yet to be discovered among the candidates.

Dutch Ayer, who assists Monte Morre with Huntington's backfield candidates, reports a slightly more liberal supply of backs than the line squad can boast.

The carrier most likely to figure in Huntington's offense is Harry Handy, of Falmouth, a veteran of two seasons.

A fine quarterback has been discovered in the person of Jerry Kelly of Dorchester high.

Another good halfback is Charlie Higgins of Medford, who was fast enough to take second to 300-yard champion Larry Scanlon a year ago.

Higgins is at present listed among the untried material, but if Coach Moore throws this kid in against Brockton, Saturday he will see enough to class Charlie with his tried backs.

Brockton, with a steam rolling outfit which has swept more highly touted elevens than Huntington to defeat, will furnish Coach Moore with ample insight on his eleven.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

JOHNNY BUCKLEY will place the small matter of 25 grand right on the line for a guarantee for Jackie Fields to meet Andy Callahan in a 15-round world's welterweight championship bout at the Boston Garden in the event the latter licks Lou Brouillard a week from tonight.

I understand that Buckley is quite confident that Callahan has the Brouillard bout as good as won. If you drop into Jerry Buckley's Gym on Cambridge st. and ask the Callahan pilot what he thinks of the Brouillard match, he won't mince any words in telling you the New England champion is going to win.

One thing one must admire about Mister Buckley. He is always with his fighter 100 per cent. He gives a preliminary scrapper as much attention during a training period as he does Jack Sharkey.

This is due to the fact Buckley understands and likes the boxing game, is loyal to the men under his direction, and because he can see in each of them a potential champion.

When Sharkey was a $150 fighter there wasn't the least doubt in Buckley's mind that he would become world's champion. He stuck to this opinion even in the face of some cruel reverses.

• • •

Gambled With Vacca

ANOTHER CASE of where Buckley had faith in a youngster who at the time was unknown was that of Johnny Vacca. The latter was signed to meet Fidel LaBarba, at the time world's flyweight champion, at Mechanics Building. [illegible] when it snowed on the day of the show the promoter wanted to call off the match. Buckley saw Vacca losing the opportunity of his young life. So he agreed to let Vacca fight for nothing to save the show.

Vacca made himself over night when he trounced LaBarba. He later received $4000 for repeating his triumph, and picked up $5000 more for a third LaBarba bout on the Coast. In all, Vacca made $30,000 as a result of the fight he fought for nothing.

It will not be any new thrill for Buckley to manage the New England welterweight champion. George (Kid) Lee of Worcester, when under the Buckley management, won the New England title from Al Mello at Braves Field. Incidentally, Lee is assisting Callahan in getting ready for Brouillard.

Show Improvement

Northfield, Vt., Sept. 30—A Norwich first team backfield with Walter Mersheimer at quarter, Elwyn Blanchard at fullback and Albert Hicks and George Habicht at halfback worked well today, showing much improvement. These men are likely to do most of the backfield work for the Maroon this fall.

Pat Delvecchio, big fullback out with a broken foot, may get in some of the late season games.

Fish and Game

By WIN BROOKS

There is balm in Gilead for the smelt fisherman who is having slim fishing this fall. Boston harbor is swarming with mackerel and they can be taken on a white streamer fly, or jig, or, occasionally, a bait.

James W. Reardon, veteran rod and gun enthusiast, recalls a day he took a wash boiler-full on a light rod in a little more than an hour's fishing. They're splendid sport on a fly rod, he says, and a school can be "chummed" about an anchored boat with bait.

SONNY FACES WASHBURN AT GARDEN

TONIGHT'S CARD

DOUBLE WINDUP

Gus Sonnenberg vs. "Gentleman" Jack Washburn (Finish match, best two [illegible] three falls)

Nick Lutze vs. Matros Kiralenko (One fall match, one hour

PRELIMINARIES

Charlie Strack vs. Benny Ginsberg.

Bibber McCoy vs. Boris Demetroff.

Al Morelli vs. George Saunders.

"Scotty Dawkins vs. Eddie Fizes.

"Buck" Weaver vs. "Bull" Martin.

Wong Bock Cheung vs. [illegible] Mercier.

"Man Mountain" Dean vs. Nick Skotos.

By RINGSIDE

Gus Sonnenberg and "Gentleman" Jack Washburn will rip the wrestling lid off at the Boston Garden when they collide in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, tonight.

It will mark the old Dynamiter's return to the same ring in which he won the world's heavyweight championship from Strangler Lewis. Sonnenberg quit wrestling at the Garden when Bowser was refused a lease at the North Station sports palace, and the wrestling rights were turned over to Ray Fabiani, Inc.

Now that Bowser is once more entrenched at the Garden, Sonny will tackle all comers there. He picked Washburn as his first opponent in view of the fact "Gentleman" Jack was the star of the Garden troupe during the days of Fabiani and Toots Mondt promotions.

GUS TO RELY ON TACKLE

Sonny has always prided himself on the fact he is as rough and tough as the next fellow. In fact, it has been said on good authority, that the old Dynamiter can take on two or three tough birds at one sitting and not exert himself too much.

Gus will rely on his flying tackle to win from Washburn. All he asks is a few shots at "Gentleman" Jack.

Washburn threatens to roughhouse Sonny to defeat. He doesn't think Gus is a finished wrestler, and he believes he can lick him at the free-for-all style of milling.

LUTZE WEIGHS 210

In the other half of the double windup, Nick Lutze of California will oppose Matros Kiralenko of Russia. Lutze has put on considerable weight during the past two months and now scales 210 pounds. Even at this poundage he will be spotting Kiralenko 20 pounds.

Charley Strack will take on Benny Ginsberg, "Bibber" McCoy will meet Boris Demetroff, while Al Morelli will collide with George Saunders.

There is also interest in the appearance of "Man Mountain" Dean, a 300-pounder, who will oppose Nick Skotos of Chelsea. There will also be three other prelims.

Jack Conway Uses Magic Coin, So Picks Sonny

Jack Conway tossed his famous magic coin today in an effort to name the winner of the finish wrestling bout between Gus Sonnenberg and "Gentleman" Jack Washburn at the Boston Garden tonight.

The coin favored Sonnenberg to win in the battle of the rough house giants.

GOLFERS FIND ACE TOURNEY TEST SOFT

Another 82 competitors in the Boston Evening American's Hole-In-One golf tournament at Franklin Park shelled the 19th green to a fare-thee-well in the morning round today.

While none of the stiff-fingered 82 succeeded in displacing the three leaders in the tournament, a newcomer lodged himself in fourth place

HIS FOURTH SHOT LUCKY

Tom Brady pitched his fourth shot within 2 feet three inches of the cup His ball seemed destined to be a perfec ace as it sat down hard on the edge of the 10 foot circle and rolled in a dead straight line for the can. But it picked up a piece of mud and rolled past the cup

For the second time in two days, the co-holders Fred Augur and Bob Schneiderman, who were once tied for third place, were dropped a peg in the prize scale.

Brady's new fourth place mark moves Augur and Schneiderman into a tie for fifth and sixth places

Brady's best ball also moves Vito Mirabile of Medford right out of the prize picture. Vito hit a "hickey" yesterday which gave him sixth place for a few short hours.

ALMOST SINKS ON FLY

The gallery was treated to another thrill when Tommy Mahan of the Brookline Settlement hoisted a perfect spade mashie shot on his second ball to come within an inch of holing out on the fly

The ball sat down an inch to the left of the cup and then bounded out of measuring distance

Ten golfers from the Brookline Settlement made a good aggregate showing by placing 7 shots within the 10-foot radius

Altogether, 15 balls landed in the birdie area up to 1 30 today

Jimmy Conroy, who was a member of the Brookline flight, got the best ball of the group, though his shooting was not as spectacular as Tommy Mahan's Conroy's best was 4 feet 10 inches

CURLEY MOST CONSISTENT

The most consistent good shooting of the morning was that of Jack Curley, the New England open champion, who put three of his five shots into the magic circle

Curley used a No. 6 iron and after two tries dropped his third, fourth and fifth shots into the circle in rapid succession. They measured 5 feet 7, 7 feet 6 and 9 feet, 4½ inches from the can

A windswept and chilly setting failed to lessen the enthusiasm of either competitors or gallery, both of which were in larger numbers than any day before

47 BALLS STOP IN BIRDIE CIRCLE

Take a look-see at the number of balls which have come to rest within the confines of the birdie circle during the two days of the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN'S Hole-In-One tournament!

You can count them for yourself but there are 47. No more, no less. A fine tribute to the local golfers, who have played 1480 at, if not on the specially constructed green at Franklin Park

During a similiar contest in New York, in which the contestants were restricted to legitimate hole-in-oners only 14 balls out of a total of 1385 were within the circle and the nearest to the cup was 2ft. 1in

Here is a complete list of the Evening American's Birdie-Circlers to date with 1200 golfers (6000 balls) still to show.

Messrs. Pat Flanagan, Tom Manning and Hal Totten, Yankee Stadium, N. Y., or Wrigley Field, Chicago: You gentlemen have handled the World Series descriptions in creditable fashion to date. Kate Smith and Ruth Etting Lake Placid, N. What's chances? By the way Kate, your manager, Ted Collins, pinch hitting as your announcer while you vacationed this past fortnight, did quite well. Especially after the screen hit you contributed in "Scarface." They say the entire U. S. columning faternity has been eager for something about your early career. Go on, tell them how we fellows bizz-bazzed over Boston cream pie and coffee together almost every night late, at the St. James Restaurant on 181st Street, New York. You had movie ambitions then, remember? Let's see, now, 1919 and 1920 it was, sure! Keep up the good work boy, you're immense Show the movie folks an impersonation of "Frisco" sometime—eh? You know like you used to do it for us. What a time we had deciding who would pay the check in those days. Good luck, Georgie We'll be listening down East when you broadcast

NBC names R. C. Patterson, N. Y. Commissioner of Correction, as Executive Vice-President. Mr. Patterson is celebrated as a prison reformer. NBC should be in for some changes. Artists may yet be calling themselves inmates.

The question is whether those of us who believe in real liberty can show ourselves sufficiently intelligent and courageous to put an end to the abuses which we know have existed and still exist in our government. The day of laissez faire—or doing nothing—has passed. Nothing but co-operation of right-minded men will guard us for the future.

"We cannot expect the office holding and office seeking class to lead the way. They follow their constituents. Leadership must be furnished by the average man and voter who has elected and will elect his representatives."

Another advertising campaign [illegible].

There is no doubt in our minds but that the All-New England co-operative recreational advertising campaign has brought into all the New England states men and women who either this year or next will become property owners. No one needs to be told that a new property owner in the country districts is welcomed as both a human and as a financial asset. The right sort of new owner increases the amount of neighborliness at the place. He makes the community life richer. He shares himself and his friends with the local inhabitants and they share their friends with him.

He provides work for native laborers, buys food and materials at the local stores, pays taxes, and does his share to keep the young people of the place from being forced to go to the city to find work. In time he brings friends who buy nearby property.

G. M. Selling "Unimportant"

A [illegible] of the selling in General Motors came from a [illegible] house. In [illegible] it was [illegible] that the selling represented [illegible] speculative transaction [illegible] analysis of the company's prospects. It was [illegible] which frequently [illegible] the market [illegible] to the [illegible] affected.

[illegible] started [illegible] rumors "in explanation" [illegible] none of which were correct.

Record Order for Paper by Kroger

[illegible] order was made known [illegible] Seminole Paper Corp [illegible] International Paper [illegible] order from Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. for 38 cars [illegible] Marinette, Wis. [illegible] La Follette, President [illegible] of Seminole Paper Corp and President Morrill of Kroger.

Boston & Maine Is Adding Work Hours

Boston & Maine Billerica car shops to go on 48-hour week [illegible] Monday. About 700 [illegible] are affected. For the past [illegible] months employes have been [illegible] employment each [illegible].

Northern Pacific Fulfills Promise

[illegible] made several months ago [illegible] Northern Pacific [illegible] the American railroad to [illegible] revenue figures [illegible] covering the [illegible] week of September [illegible] over 12 months ago [illegible] gain compared with the preceding [illegible] in more than [illegible]. The increase largely [illegible] grain traffic and [illegible] rise in the [illegible] farm commodities.

A. T. T. Installing More Telephones

[illegible] made in [illegible] market circles that the excess of telephone disconnections over new installations by the Bell System showed a sizable reduction during September compared with August. The net [illegible] a month ago was 201,000 phones against [illegible] in July. Present estimates are that the September net [illegible] will be about 50 per cent less than reported for August, due in part to the reopening of business and manufacturing establishments and the return of many [illegible] ers from their Summer [illegible].

Farm Cash Income Rises $20,000,000

Speculative sentiment [illegible] of [illegible] which depend to a large extent upon farm purchasing power has undergone little change despite the prevailing hesitancy, according to current gossip. However, the Street as a whole seems to have conflicting views regarding the influence of wheat price movements on these issues. Whichever opinion proves accurate much comment was aroused because farm implement and mail order stocks entirely ignored a report showing cash increase started in July rose an additional $20,000,000 in August. At present reduced machinery and merchandise values this enlarged farm wealth means a potential purchasing power of almost double that sum.

Freight Loading Gain Estimated

The Street expects today's railroad freight loading statement will reveal a gain of approximately 15,000 cars over the preceding week.

Big Wheat Bull Campaign Doubted

In view of widespread expectation of a bull operation in the wheat market the reverse opinion of a leading authority may prove of interest. This expert fails nothing new in the situation to warrant sustained higher prices for the cereal, "because American prices are still out of line with Canada and with other world markets." He is willing to admit, however, that since this condition has ruled for so long, it may have lost some of its force as a bear argument, adding that despite heavy speculative buying the last few days, it is reasonable to assume that heavy hedging sales and short selling will hold the price of wheat down unless buying assumes enormous proportions.

Mack-Chrysler Rumor Denied

Interests familiar with Chrysler affairs denied the report this company was seeking Mack Trucks. The latter stock's pool apparently inspired the story, according to Mack officials.

The latter have not been entirely in sympathy with the vigorous bull pool's activity in their stock.

Drug, Inc. Well Bought

Some foreign buying came into Drug, Inc., following the news that its big retail unit threatened reorganization unless its store leases were revised downward. Drug owns the biggest British drug store chain, so that its affairs are well known to English investors and speculators.

It is known that the Drug, Inc., management months ago considered the threat made the past week by its subsidiary company to its landlords. The claim is made that nothing is to be lost by the request for lower rents in the retail [illegible]. The unit has been operating at a loss for months.

Phila. Gas Rate Cut Is Announced

Philadelphia, Sept. 30. Mayor Moore suggested to City Council that the gas rate reduction in Philadelphia go into effect October 1 instead of January 1 as proposed by City Gas Commission.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

Bulk of trading is being done by professionals. There is little use in having an opinion of the market at this stage. So far it has maintained a trading range. Wait and see how it breaks out. The rise of $17,000,000 in brokers' loans nearly offsets the decrease of last week. Stocks in the meantime have done little, which suggests some distribution.

Steel Talk

Talk is cropping out again of big doings in the steel industry before long. So far the stories are largely among floor traders, some of whom, 'tis said, are willing to bet U. S. Steel common will hit 60 before [illegible]. The steel [illegible] tonnage report is on [illegible] away, which probably accounts for much of the gossip.

Last month's disappointment has held guessing down, though an increase is generally expected. It ought at least be more than the 3000 odd tons gain for August. Of course, there will be a lot of uncertainty about the steel blocks as long as the steel preferred dividend is in danger.

Du Pont

Du Pont is one prominent industrial that will show up better in the third quarter than in the second, it is reliably reported.

This will be welcome for third quarter reports will generally be pretty drab . . . Du Pont's net for the June quarter was only 27 cents a share, mostly income from General Motors.

The company is understood to have experienced a decided pick-up in its rayon, cellophane and heavy chemical divisions. The last suggests that Allied Chemical is likewise doing better.

Here and There

Buying is reported in Atchison for former bear account on the belief that the road has turned the corner. The rails so far have done nothing to reflect the further gain in traffic to be reported tomorrow. This isn't surprising since there are the receivership threats against the Nickel Plate and the Frisco . . .

The public has been practically out of the market for some weeks, so that the brokers' loan rise may be due largely to pool operations.

Myron C. Taylor, head of steel is understood to have had luncheon with several railroad heads the other day. This is reviving the old story of a big rail order for steel.

New Foreign Money Order Plan Offered

A foreign mail remittance service to meet the demands of Boston residents sending money abroad who do not require the speed of the cable money order will be inaugurated by the Western Union Telegraph Co. in conjunction with the American Express Company tomorrow.

The remittance is mailed by the local Western Union office to the American Express Company at New York, which mails the order to its representative.

STOCK TREND IS DOWNWARD IN BOSTON

Stocks were mostly lower in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Trading was dull and changes were limited largely to a fractional range. American Woolen preferred was soft and sagged over a point. Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred was down a point, while the prior preferred was 2 points higher.

American Telephone sagged around a point while New England Telephone was slightly higher. Rail shares were soft with New Haven, Atchison and Pennsylvania showing fractional recessions. Connecticut & Passumpsic preferred, an inactive issue, was strong and sold up 5 points to a new high for the year.

Reece Button Hole Machinery was strong and showed a gain of over a point. Mohawk was almost a point above its previous closing level. Small losses were recorded for such issues as Gillette, Anaconda Copper, Stone & Webster and Warren Brothers.

Baltimore Gas Net Income Is Shaded

Consolidated Gas Electric Light & Power Company of Baltimore in its report submitted to stockholders covering the eight months ended Aug. 31, 1932, shows net operating revenue amounted to $5,965,774 against $6,224,440 last year. After crediting other income, and deducting fixed charges for the eight months' period, net income available for dividedends and general corporate requirements amounted to $4,221,761 against $4,676,265 for the same period for 1931.

Chevrolet Sales Slightly Higher

Detroit, Sept. 20—Early reports show sales of Chevrolet cars and trucks in the second 10 days of September were 8,673 against 8529 in the first 10 days of the month.

According to H. J. Klinger, vice-president and general sales manager, this was the fourth consecutive dealer report showing a gain in sales. A total fo 17,162 cars and trucks were sold to Sept. 20 and total for the month is likely to exceed projected quota by several thousand cars.

Int. Power Acting to Retire Its 5½s

The International Power Securities Corporation will retire on December 1, next, all of the remaining $3,935,000 outstanding 5½s, 1954, secured by bonds of Union d'Electricite, Paris, at a premium of 4 per cent above par, and accrued interest. The initial offering of the bonds in 1924 was at 93¼ to yield 7 per cent.

Bellas Hess Shows Improved Business

National Bellas Hess Co.'s fall business is showing a steady increase with daily orders running at times fully 50 per cent in excess of original estimates, President C. D. Berry said. As a result of this demand the Kansas City plant is taking on 50 0employes.

St. Paul Loadings

During the first 28 days of September St. Paul handled 95,474 revenue freight cars, against 85,168 in the like period last month and 117,267 in the like 1931 period.

TRADE REVIEWS ARE CHEERFUL

New York, [illegible]

"The general movement now has extended to both the industrial and distributive divisions, though the gain in the former is less conspicuous than in the latter," said Dun's.

"There is now more of a disposition to look forward to a steady enlargement in the consumption of manufactured and raw materials, although full cognizance is taken of the possibility that upswings may not be so sharp as those occurring since the middle of July. Indications of betterment are beginning to find their way into the statistical indices of electric power consumption, car loadings and the number of telephones in use."

[illegible]

"We are still thoroughly immersed in the depression [illegible] will dispute that. And with such problems as high tariffs, war debts, excess producing capacity [illegible] unsolved we are not going to rush to recovery. Nevertheless, there are many indications that we are slowly making progress towards sound better [illegible]," says Bradstreet's.

Deaths

FLANAGAN—In Brookline, Sept 30, 1932, Francis M., beloved husband of Helena F. Flanagan (nee Meehan). Funeral from his home, 28 Dean Rd., Saturday morning, Oct. 1, at 9:20. Requiem mass in St. Mary's of the Assumption Church at 10 o'clock. Relatives and friends are especially invited.

PRICES DRIFT LOWER IN DULL DEALINGS

New York, Sept. 30—Prices drifted lower for active shares on the New York Stock Exchange today through most of the session. The market appeared depressed by lack of stimulating news as well as by a fresh decline in wheat.

Mild rallying efforts around noon recovered part of the early losses, which ran from 1 to 2 points, but new buying failed to appear and prices again slipped off.

TRADING IS QUIET

Trading was quiet, but volume showed a tendency to pick up on the downside.

The widely-touted bull move in wheat again failed to materialize, and grain prices extended yesterday's losses. Corn went to the lowest levels since the end of the last century. Cotton was slightly better, but this failed to prove an offsetting factor.

Rail stocks were supported by lessening of the fears of a Nickel Plate receivership tomorrow as bond deposits for refinancing the maturity rose above 60 per cent, and talk of a more lenient Federal policy was heard.

The carrier shares, however, were influenced by the general reactionary tendencies, and ruled lower with the rest.

In the day's setbacks losses of 1 to 2 points occurred in American Waterworks, American Telephone, North American, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey and American Power & Light. Detroit Edison was down 3.

Declines of 1 or 2 also appeared in Lackawanna, Union Pacific, Atchison, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical and Drug.

Motor, oil and copper stocks showed good resistance, although they were carried down fractionally with the rest of the market. National Biscuit, Corn Products, American Tobacco B, Johns Manville, American Can, Westinghouse and Eastman were off a point or more at their lows.

Sogginess of the commodity markets was accompanied by moderate selling of farm equipment shares.

TRADE HOLDING GAINS

Weekly trade reviews said seasonal gains in trade were being maintained and Dun's found further improvement in several directions, asserting that there was now more of a disposition to anticipate steady enlargement in the consumption of manufactured and raw materials, although full cognizance is taken of the possibility that upswings may not be so sharp as those occurring since the middle of July.

Bradstreet's reports from 55 cities indicated that "personal factors" were still showing a "stimulating influence."

Check transactions at the 47 leading cities of the United States for the week ended Sept. 28 totaled $4,122,049,000, as compared with $5,516,374,000 in the preceding week, or a decline of 25.3 per cent, according to Bradstreet's.

Comparison with a year ago reveals a decrease of 47.3 per cent. Omitting New York city, bank clearings amounted to $1,396,196,000, as against $1,738,248,000, or a drop of 13.9 per cent.

Clearings were off more severely at New York City than in the remainder of the United States; declines reported in all other sections were uniformly large, ranging from 10 to 20 per cent.

After adjustments for seasonal variation, the index of bank clearings as compiled by Bradstreet's Weekly for cities outside New York City declined to a new low for the year. The index now stands at 36.4 per cent of the 1928-30 average, as compared with 41.7 last week and 68.2 last year. However, the moving average makes this decline appear somewhat less; this week's figure being 39.2 as compared with 39.6 and 62.3 for last week and last year, respectively.

Conn. River Power Financing Expected

An offering of $18,000,000 Connecticut River Power Co. first mortgage 5s is expected to be made shortly by the Chase, Harris & Forbes Corp. This is the new company resulting from the consolidation of the Connecticut River Power Co., the Grafton Power Co. and the Grafton County Electric Light & Power Co.

The proceeds will be used to repay advances made by the New England Power towards the development at Fifteen-Mile Falls on the Connecticut river. New England Power in turn will employ the funds in meeting $20,000,000 notes due Dec. 1.

Industrial Expansion Is Found Slow But Steady

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—While definite industrial expansion has been recorded this month, statistical observers report the upward trend has been slow and steady and that no "buyers' panic" is anticipated.

In the first place, it is pointed out, where the dearth of goods has developed, it generally has been a quick delivery problem, and the adequacy of productive capacity to meet any logically expectant demand over a period of months will militate against any great rush of buying on a rising market.

In the recent reversal of the buying trend textiles, shoes hats and ready-made clothing of the wearing type have felt the major part of the demand. Other lines close to the consumer, however, have shown larger orders than in many months. There have been increased sales of clocks, furniture, manufactured leather goods and similar merchandise that cannot be termed "absolutely necessary."

At the same time, the Standard Statistics Co., finds that:

"Permanent developments in business policy during the past three years are easily confused with outgrowths of the depression."

"Among the evolutionary changes," it is added, "none is more consequential than the accelerated adoption of hand-to-mouth purchasing. Shorter style cycles and the emphasis on quick moving of profitable lines of merchandise have combined not only to limit the size and variety of retailers' inventories, but have also made manufacturing to stock increasingly hazardous. As a general policy, hand-to-mouth buying policy is here to stay."

Inquiries have developed, it is said, inventories in that established distribution channels are extremely low; that a scarcity condition exists in staple lines of textiles and that a sellers' market has developed in a few other manufactures.

But with this improvement, economic investigators warn, "no swift upturn" can be expected under the existing conditions of depleted purchasing power, and what is hoped for is a continuation of the steady growth in buying which has been taking lace throughout the country.

Coolidge Group Stirs Railway Interest

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

New York, Sept 30—The appointment of a non-partisan committee, headed by Calvin Coolidge, to study means of stabilizing the railroads quickens public interest in the broad question of lifting the great transportation systems out of the mire which threatens insolvency.

In his Salt Lake City address Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt had in effect raised the railroad question out of partisan politics by committing his party to a program of railroad rehabilitation. President Hoover, in messages to Congress, has also stressed the need of more constructive railroad regulation.

The Coolidge Committee, which includes such well known Democrats as former Governor Smith and Barnard M. Baruch, war-time chairman of the War Industries Board, came into being at the request of the great institutional investors, including savings banks and life insurance companies, which are heavily involved as holders of railroad bonds.

The committee by its activity will emphasize a new force in American politics, namely, that of the investors' bloc. Similar economic surveys of the transportation problem have already been made in the same spirit in Great Britain, Australia and Argentina.

I have been sounding out leading railroad executives to get their idea of what is necessary to end the reign of red ink.

W. B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway System, who has a reputation for blunt outspokenness, told me:

"It seems to me that Mr. Roosevelt's railroad program is essentially sound. Especially important is equal regulation of carriers competitive with the railroads. So long as our hands are tied and our competitors are free to make any rates or do anything necessary to take the business we cannot know where we stand and a chaotic condition will continue. This is true of inland and intercostal water competition, the same as with motor carriers, although Mr. Roosevelt's program does not apparently embrace water carriers."

United Cigar Leases Cancelled

New York, Sept. 30—Referee in Bankruptcy Kurtz at New York ordered cancelation of 151 leases held by United Cigar Stores Co. of America, in cities throughout the country. Longest lease still had 83 years to run. In 96 of leases United was the sole tenant, and in 55 there were sub-tenants. Kurtz directed owners of property on west side of Sixth avenue occupied by Thirty-fourth street store of Saks & Co. as subtenants, to show cause, next Tuesday, why lease to United Cigar Stores Co., carrying a rental of $400,000 a year, should not be disaffirmed.

Postal Telegraph-Cable Gains

For the first time since April, 1931, there has been an upward trend in telegraph and cable receipts for as long a period as 11 weeks, said Pres. Gibbs of Postal Telegraph & Cable Corp. The nation's business insofar as it is reflected in receipts of the company, has shown a consistent although not spectacular upward movement since early July, he says.

RAILROAD NET SHOWS A GAIN

New York, Sept. 30—Extent to which railroads are keeping expenses in hand and consequent immediate effect any upturn in gross will have on net is demonstrated in results of major carriers for August. Gross is estimated to have increased about 6 per cent from July and net operating income 13.3 per cent. Last year August gross was 3.3 per cent below July, and net operating income was off 1.9 per cent.

August reports at hand indicate aggregate net operating income and gross for all class 1 carriers showed the smallest percentage declines from 1931 period since April.

Rail executives at a meeting in New York next Wednesday will decide whether they can afford to refrain from proceeding with efforts to obtain a 20 per cent cut in wages of contract employes. President Hoover has asked them to put off negotiations until after January 1.

CHANGE YOUR MIND OR YOURSELF BY SCIENCE

By GILBERT SELDES

The first time I read the headline I thought that the millenium had come or I hadn't read correctly; sometimes your eyes play tricks on you and you think you have seen "France Eager to Pay Debts" or "Hoover Endorses Democrat's Program," when the headlines have really said "France Eggs Germany on to Pay Debts" and "Hoover Endorses Own Domestic Pogram." But in this case I had read well enough. The headline really says "N. Y. U. to Alter Personalities in Laboratory," and, what is even more astonishing, the body of the story repeats the same message. Seven psychologists—count 'em, seven—will man a laboratory under the direction of Newman L. Hoopingarner, associate professor at the New York University School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance; and in this laboratory will be equipment "enabling the specialists to alter personalities of men and women to coincide with the postulates for success in their chosen occupations." The trick will be worked first on students and "a five-year plan of personality improvement" will be outlined as soon as the defects of the victim have been compared with the requirements of his chosen profession.

GILBERT SELDES

A Few Names

And why not let each of us send in a little list to the professors of N. Y. U.—a little list of those whose personalities could be altered to the general advantage of the world? If experiment is wanting, there are some eighty-five Senators and a host of Congressmen who have always assured us of their readiness to lay down their lives for their country. Let them merely lay down their personalities. There is Pat Hurley, if I may mention a name. There are the people who can't wait for Russia to starve so that the wrecked Romanoffs can be restored, and there are the somewhat hasty literary lights who can't wait for the American republic to go down so that Communism may take charge. There are, in fact, mill-yuns of people—

Missing Mr. Cohan

After some brilliant successes the movies have made a colossal mistake. They have failed to make use of George M. Cohan. I am sure that, as in the case of Eisenstein, the great Russian director, the difficulties were many; I am sure that it was not easy to fit Mr. Cohan into the movie scheme. But the point is, that if the movies are going to grow, and not be what Mr. Nathan calls "the mooning pictures," their scheme ought to be adaptable enough to make room for genius. In Mr. Cohan's case the error is serious, for he is an astounding figure, the man who knows more about the popular stage than any other in America, a prime actor, a brilliant director and a man who ought to have fitted perfectly into the movie's picture.

Mr. Cohan's report of his miseries in Hollywood are like the accounts of many others who had to leave the land of sunshine and money. He was assured of work and when he reported for work they gave him a paycheck. It was bad enough that the story was being continually rewritten and that a new supervisor took charge every hour or every day until they got down to high school sophomores. What Mr. Cohan could not bear was that while he was idle people kept asking him, "What do you care? You're getting paid, aren't you?" It never occurred to them that a man with the distinguished abilities of George M. Cohan actually wants to do his work and is unhappy if he is not doing it.

There are a number—I am told a growing number—of intelligent people in Hollywood; but until all the heads of all the studios understand what was in Mr. Cohan's mind, the index of Wall Street prices for movie stocks will be a proper index to the value of the movies.

Moreover, Mr. Cohan has said something for statesmen to consider. Mr. Hoover and his friends have sworn again and again that their first duty is to see that no one hungers or goes cold or shelterless in America. Little has been done; a little more will be done. But they ought to know that there is a pleasure in working, that people really like their jobs; and that men deprived of work for three years are unhappy even if they have a bowl of soup and a bed. One of the things we feel ourselves entitled to is an occupation. We aren't likely to feel tender to those who deprive us of that satisfaction.

The Transit Department of the City of Boston, 1 Beacon Street, seventh floor, invites proposals from citizens of the United States and corporations or other legal associations wherein the controlling interest to the extent of at least over one-half thereof is owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States, for building Section C, Traffic Tunnel. The work consists of the construction of the walls and invert of a reinforced concrete open incline from the present tunnel portal in East Boston to Porter Street, with concrete base for future paving in the plaza, and requisite pipes, conduits, manholes and other adjuncts and appurtenances. A bond of an approved surety company will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in a sum of 65 per cent of the total bid price. Proposals must be filled out and signed by the bidder on forms to be obtained at this office, inclosed in a sealed envelope, indorsed "Proposal for Building Section C, Traffic Tunnel," and delivered to the department or to its secretary before 12 o'clock noon on Monday, October 17, 1932, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. A properly certified check in the sum of five thousand (5,000) dollars, payable to the city, must accompany the proposal. This check shall become the property of the city if the contract is not executed by the bidder within the time prescribed after the date of the notification by the Department of the acceptance of the proposal and the readiness of the contract for signature. Proposals must be made in duplicate. The sealed duplicate without check, is to be deposited by the bidder with the City Auditor, Room 20, City Hall, previous to the time named for opening the proposals. Plans, proposals, specifications and forms of contract may be obtained at this office. A deposit of $25, in cash or by certified check, will be required for a set of plans and two sets of specifications. Mutilation of them will be deemed sufficient cause for the forfeiture of said deposit. The Department reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

Business Experts Turn to Sales Tax as Way Out of U. S. Fiscal Muddle

Recent statistics of revenue receipts by the Federal Government constitute a reminder that Congress cannot repeal economic law.

The intoxicant of political oratory may influence votes, but it has little effect on the course of economic developments.

Purely political considerations turned Congress in its last session from adopting an economically sound tax program, including the manufacturers' sales tax.

Since that time inexorable facts have been demonstrating the inadequacy of the hodge podge tax measure, the receipts from which in August fell far short of Treasury estimates.

Accordingly it becomes increasingly evident to students of taxation that Congress, at its next sitting in December, will have to undo its earlier blunder.

Experience shows that hypothetical increases on hypothetical incomes produce no tangible funds for budget balancing.

Moreover, special burdensome taxes on unfavored commodities interfere with the channels of distribution and curtail taxable trade.

To a growing array of analysts it is becoming clear that the way out lies in adopting a GENERAL MANUFACTURERS' SALES TAX. Even some of the former opponents of the sales tax in and out of Congress have been converted to advocacy of this productive and comparatively painless form of taxation.

The committee on taxation of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York has found that:

> "In spite of the criticism against it, your committee is of the opinion a Federal sales tax is, in the present emergency, the only available and desirable revenue source."

The committee also urged drastic economies in governmental outlays, concluding:

> "It is becoming more apparent that the Federal budget is not balanced.
>
> "Even the additional taxes imposed for this purpose by the last Congress have failed to accomplish this end."

Relief from initiative-destroying taxation through reduction of Federal operating expenditures on the one hand, and through adoption of the widely diffused and readily borne manufacturers' sales tax on the other, will strengthen the foundations of economic recovery.

Government should take from the back of business the unnecessary burden of an unsound system of taxation.

The Wrong Ingredient

At a conference, a medical one, in Austria, a savant rose to tell what is the matter with us. As a nation our digestive system is all out of whack. We put too much ice in our drinks, and with a refrigerated gastric department and gall-bladder, we are not quite what we should be.

Still, look at the Eskimos and other dwellers in the frozen North who look healthy enough. It may be that the evils of ice-usage are exaggerated. And by the time the drink gets down it should be pretty well warmed up. Nobody, anyway, shovels cracked ice into his stomach.

The Athenians, the Romans and Persians swallowed immense quantities of sherbet, lumps of frozen water, nicely flavored, without any apparent ill effects. Ice cream has been a great item of human diet for a thousand years.

It seems a little too late in the day to blame the ice that clinks in our glass for what ails us. The trouble must be with the gin.

A Duty of the State

The State, by all means, should replace and restore the damage done to the house of Judge Webster Thayer by the atrocious bomb plot.

The property of this Judge was destroyed and the lives and safety of those dear to him were jeopardized by a dastardly and cowardly plot which may have been conceived by sympathizers of Sacco and Vanzetti, or may have been conceived by some other agency anxious to provoke a wave of hatred and revulsion against radicals at this time.

In any event, Judge Thayer is a public servant and he has been made, in this matter, the victim of his public service.

The people of Massachusetts, whether they agree or disagree with the judgments of their public officials, want them to be safe in their person and secure in their property.

This Light Plant Pays

The municipally-owned electric light plant at Burlington, Vt., will show a handsome profit at the end of the year. No red ink entries there, so common to private industry. No sales of watered stock and mulcting of the public, a la Insull.

The profits of a municipal plant may be used to reduce the electric rates. They may be used to reduce taxes. They may be used to expand the plant, without bond issues or other overhead capital costs to be paid by the consumers. They are NOT used to pay excessive dividends.

Burlington takes its place in the bright sun with several hundred other municipalities of this country wise enough to own their own utilities and capably managed to pay profits even in a period of financial distress. In fact, we have seen some notable examples of cities whose entire tax levies have been paid by the profits of their lighting plants. You would have difficulty in proving to those people that municipal ownership is a wild and wooly adventure.

Brummels in Bastille

Chief of Police Jacob Rudolph, of Glencoe, which is not far from Chicago, thinks that with most of his jail guests it is just a tough break. Most of the town prisoners are "worthy," he affirms, and are incarcerated through "no fault of their own."

He appeals to the local pride of Glencoe to dress up these martyrs behind bars.

"A jail full of well-dressed men would reflect credit on the town," says Chief Rudolph, and urges citizens to bring in neat shoes, hats, suits and overcoats.

The appeal should not go unheeded. A town like Glencoe with such a Chief of Police and citizens who can be touched by this plea deserves to have no need for a jail at all.

Day by Day in France

Ex-King Alfonso

PARIS, Sept. 30—I sat four tables removed from former King Alfonso in front of Le Collisee, the new modernistic cafe on Champs Elysees. Not many seemed to notice him. He was with several compatriots, talking animatedly and furiously smoking cigarettes chain fashion, lighting one from another.

He extracted cigarettes from a jeweled case with cord and tassel—like Paul Whiteman sports. His attire—he's a sporty dresser—was dark tweeds, saffron-hued spats, a black and white checkered shirt (with collar to match) and snow-white four-in-hand—a conceit he spawned, and popular among boulevardiers.

There were increasing flecks of gray in his hair since I saw him two years ago, when he came to an English port to inspect the Europa, in which we were crossing. His vicissitudes have aged him, a gaunt, lantern-jawed face accentuating the pronounced bulge of the famous Hapsburg lip.

His aperitif was a violet-hued libation, to which he added frequent spurts of seltzer. Only once did his expression lose a gravity, and that was when some passing pieton halooed and waved. He jumped into a heel-click, saluted and there was a smile—a tired smile, seemingly forced.

He is living opposite the leading hotel in Fontainebleau. Guests rock on the verandas rather expecting him to appear in a roomy post-chaise, drawn by four plump horses and driven by two jolly postillions. Instead he usually scurries out of the lodge gates on a bicycle with a comic red tail light.

• • •

From my table, too, France's "most beautiful man" was pointed out among the saunterers. He is Maurice Guerdjian, and his title came in a contest recently at Deauville. He suggests an enlarged edition of Adolphe Menjou, frail, meagre mustache and all. His walk was swishy and his smile had the simper of acute self-consciousness.

• • •

In front of Weber's last night, like an echo from Chaucer, an ancient cocher, with red-wheeled and metred fiacre and a flazed, cockaded hat, drooped on his perch at the curb. Business for him has not been good and most of his vanishing guild seem perpetually in winey befuddlement. Anyway, he came out of his nap with a start, tugged at a ponderous vest chain to bring out a biscuit-sized, stem-winding silver hunting case watch. Everybody looked on with suppressed merriment. Finally the watch flew open, and Bill Hamilton screamed: "What, no cuckoo!"

• • •

This evening I took one of my favorite Paris drives—through the scabrous slums of Belleville, spiraling to that exquisite lily in the bog, Parc Charmant. Here's the Paris of hobbling, mustached old women with capacious shopping bags, paunchy Papas in peaked caps, boucheries chevaline, dark, ugly four-tabled cafes, pinch-cheeked children in gabardines, three-foot bread loaves, yipping black and white mongrels, notion stores whose doors sound far away bells, screaming viragos, distrustful concierges, lentils and porridge, sour comptoirs, cocottes washing their hair in courtyard windows, mufflers, flickering street lights.

• • •

For the ladies: Schiaparelli, the Parisian Peggy Hoyt, features an evening dress in light weight wool, of all things! Very decollete in the back and with a short metal cloth jacket. The Schiaperelli waist-line is very high—Empire stuff.

There is a noticeable lack of cigarette smoking among French ladies of quality. As Harry Silvey remarked last evening: "Only the croquettes smoke them." The Lambs better be sending over for him, by the way.

• • •

Billy thought he was cute this evening sitting on the red plush wall divan with me at l'Aine Rouge. When the Frenchman dining at the next table departed, he snatched a chicken liver left on the plate. But I out-cuted him by edging a five franc tip the same gentleman left over to my side. Paris is more fun.

• • •

A lisping voice twice over the telephone has plaintively inquired: "You no more care for your baybee? Why you no come to see your poor Clarette?" I wish Harry Silvey would attend to the telephone calls of his cast-off ladies.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

We Who Wait

"HOW CAN I LIVE, now that he is gone?"

"What is there left in life, with my darling dead?"

Have those terrible questions come to you? Thank God, if they haven't. Be grateful if your world is still complete.

For thousands walk beside you whose world will never be whole again—those pitiful thousands whom death has robbed. They are almost like another race. Half alive, half dead, they move amongst the happy, careless living, performing tasks that have no meaning, waking to dawns that hold no hope.

Elsie Robinson

They are the loneliest people on earth—those whom death has robbed. They speak a language the happy ones cannot understand. They have looked upon a mystery and an agony the happy ones cannot even imagine. And rarely does anyone stop to listen to their desperate cry: "How can I go on?"

And so today this article is not for you who are still whole. It is for those whom death has cut in two. It is the answer, the true answer, to their question. And the answer is:

YOU CAN GO ON! (I know—for I am one of you.)

YOU CAN GO ON!

YOU MUST GO ON!

You are not branded. You are not bankrupt. Life has not lost its meaning.

LIFE HAS A MEANING FOR YOU NOW THAT IT NEVER HAD BEFORE.

YOU HAVE A CERTAIN WORK TO DO THAT YOU NEVER HAD BEFORE.

Why are you suffering? Because you loved. Because you dared to stake ALL your happiness on love.

Others were more cautious, more selfish. They did not stake everything they had on love. They scattered their affections; safeguarded their hearts and lives against such catastrophe. But you gave all you had. And now—it's gone! And what is there left?

ALL THE LOVE YOU EVER HAD IS LEFT!

THE GRAVE CANNOT KILL LOVE; NOR CAN TEARS TARNISH IT!

You are not ashamed of that love, are you? Even in the face of this desolation you do not regret it, do you? You would not yet any one tell you that it was a foolish love, or urge you to forget, or tempt you to say you're sorry. No! If you had it to do all over again you would still love him, or love her, just as recklessly, just as gloriously, wouldn't you?

THEN PROVE IT!

LIVE YOUR PRIDE!

Live as though that dear dead one were still beside you, watching, wondering, whispering wistfully: "Are you still so sure, beloved? Still so sure that I was worth all this?"

Answer that whisper! Answer it as you would answer it if you could see those yearning eyes, that gentle mouth. You would not deny them in life. Then do not deny them now.

Answer that whisper with pride! Answer it with laughter! Answer it with courage!

ANSWER IT BY LIVING SO BEAUTIFULLY THAT EVERY ACT OF YOUR LIFE WILL BE A MEMORIAL TO A LOVE THAT CANNOT DIE!

ANSWER IT BY LIVING SO ABUNDANTLY THAT THOSE WHO SEE YOU WILL ENVY YOU, AND WILL WISH THAT LIFE MIGHT HOLD SUCH A GLORY FOR THEM, EVEN AT THE PRICE OF SUCH GREAT PAIN!

And then—what! Is that all the comfort you can hope for—just that brave show before the world? What of the terrible hours when you are alone?

Their terror will pass.

IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO STAND BY LIFE, LIFE WILL STAND BY YOU.

IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO SAY THAT LOVE CAN NEVER DIE, LOVE WILL PROVE IT.

IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO FACE DEATH, DEATH WILL FLEE BEFORE YOU.

And the darkness will lighten. And the veil will lift.

And you will SEE, you will KNOW, that life and love GO ON!

Just Folks

The Little Country Hospital

The little country hospital is hidden out of view
And people seldom notice it as pleasure they pursue,
But let an accident befall—which is the fate of men—
The proudest man is glad to see the small-town doctor then.
And in that little hospital which humble folk maintain
He'll find that hearts are merciful and quick to comfort pain.

It isn't like the city place, with sections blocks apart,
Where every patient's listed as a number on a chart
And specialists for this and that convene to thumb him o'er
And ask a thousand questions of the ills he's had before.
For in the country hospital, which lacks all pomp and style,
The surgeon on his morning round has time to chat awhile.

And whether pain be in your groin, your stomach or your toe,
The cause of it the doctor there assuredly will know.
He will not shunt you round the place for rays of that and this,
He'll diagnose your case himself and very seldom miss.
And whoso'er shall tread the hall when you are free from pain
Will stop to speak a cheery word and wish you well again.

So little country hospital, which humble folks support,
Which struggles for existence, since its funds are always short,
I pay this simple tribute now to all your tender care
In lessening the hurt and pain which mortals have to bear,
And pray for God's rich blessing on the men and women brave
Who give their every ounce of strength another's life to save.

Putting the Farmer 'On the Spot'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

THE PERSISTENCE of Senator Capper in the old line of campaign bunk cannot be ascribed to age as in the case of Mr. Curtis. It is easier to ascribe his absurdities to a sense of humor. What could otherwise explain his proof that the Hoover acceptance speech is one of the most statesmanlike the world has known with the statement that "Mark Sullivan, the historian and political writer, finds nothing like it in all our history." How Mr. Sullivan, who has a good sense of humor and enjoys a joke, must have chuckled!—he who is the minister without portfolio in the Administration and who habitually spends his week-ends at Rapidan as a member of the kitchen cabinet.

But it is not so easy to be patient with Senator Capper's zealous support of the last two administrations' attitude toward agriculture. No one owes more to the farmers than he. He publishes a farm paper which has an enormous circulation and, in all conscience, he ought to stand up and battle for the farmers' interests instead habitually of being an apologist of the system which has reduced them to ruin.

We here challenge Senator Capper to discuss in the next issue of his paper the amazing statement just sent out by the Administration in reference to loans made the farmers.

A Rather Remarkable Plan

These statements are sent out to men who may purchase farmers' crops or have dealings with them in reference to the $65,000,000 loaned them by the Government. Billions have been loaned to banks, railroads and great corporations in the process of financing the financiers out of the public funds. We are not objecting to this financing of the banks and railroads—we are merely stating a fact.

It is common knowledge that, in at least one instance, the money loaned a railroad was used to pay a great bank, which found it more comfortable to close the account with the taxpayers' money than to renew the loan, as it amply was able to do. It is also generally understood that in the neighborhood of a billion dollars loaned to Big Business will never be paid back; and the money lost will be replaced by the taxation of the people to that amount. But we do not object to that. It is worth a billion if its loss will prevent a more serious crash than we yet have had.

All this is called to mind merely to emphasize the different attitude of the Administration toward money loaned to the farmers. It wants that money back. It proposes to get it back. And in this statement sent out to men who deal with farmers it sets forth a rather remarkable plan for getting it back.

The Farmers' Misfortunes Are Being Proclaimed

The loans were made on a promissory note secured by a first mortgage or first lien upon all crops growing, or to be planted and produced, this year. The Administration writes men who deal with farmers that:

> "These mortgages are of record in the various counties which recordation constituting due legal notice to all buyers of these mortgaged crops that the said Secretary of Agriculture has a first claim to the proceeds thereof."

But the Administration is not content to inform these prospective purchasers that the mortgages are recorded; before me as I write is a full list in one State sent out from Washington. The necessities of the farmers are thus being advertised. Their misfortunes are being proclaimed. And so the Hoover Administration writes:

> "For the convenience of purchasers of crops, and other interested parties lists of these loans by counties have been prepared, and there is attached hereto a list of loans made to farmers in the county in which you are operating. Should you need a list for any other county within your trade area, please advise us immediately and we shall send you such additional lists as you may require."

And so the unfortunate farmer, forced to make a loan to escape ruin, is "put upon the spot."

Europe Must Be "Saved"

And what is the prospective purchaser of the fruits of the farmer's toil to do? He is asked, before making payment to the farmer, to consult this list.

If the man whose product he is buying is one the list, the purchaser is informed that he is "under the obligation to see that the purchase money is applied to the payment of the debt."

And then this:

> "You should draw the check to the amount of the proceeds of that transaction in favor of the Secretary of Agriculture and forward such check directly to this office or deliver it to our authorized field inspector."

Which means that if he buys all the farmer has to sell, he is to treat the farmer like a potential crook and send everything the farmer made to Washington.

Evidently there is to be no moratorium considered for the farmer. We cannot grant moratoriums to everyone, and Europe must be "saved."

Remembered—With an Insult

This applies to the cotton growers of the South and to the tobacco growers as well as the growers of grain and the producers of live stock. But the Administration will take no such step to get back the billion it will lose in the financing of the banks and railroads. This will be "cancelled" in due time. And the farmer will be taxed to make up the loss.

The publicity given the farmer's misfortune and financial distress in the neighborhood where he lives and does business is in striking contrast to the Administration's bitter hostility to publicity on the necessities of the financiers.

The extraordinary means resorted to to make the farmer pay is in strange contrast with the lack of alertness or interest in the case of the greater loans.

But the insult is in the inference that the farmer is a dishonest man and cannot be trusted to pay his debt out of the proceeds of his toil if the money once gets into his hands.

He is to be humiliated by being refused the ordinary courtesy of getting the money for the sale of his product and writing his own check; the Administration which can trust the financiers won't trust the farmer; and the man who buys the farmer's wheat, cotton or tobacco will please ignore the person with whom he trades and send the money directly to Washington!

All of which is in keeping with the attitude of the present governmental regime toward the "forgotten men" of the farms, who, for once, are being remembered—with an insult.
